COURT SPEEDS UP PINCHOT DECISION

Today

What Secrets Has He? Doing It, Every Time. Affection, Then Science. Gasoline, 5 Cents.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

"DIAMOND LIL," typifying Democracy in Wall Street, is amused by the Claudius H. Huston situation.

Mr. Huston is chairman of the National Republican Committee.

Some high-minded Republicans, including President Hoover, don't want Mr. Huston as chairman.

But, apparently, the high-up Republicans don't dare accept Mr. Huston's challenge to "come and put me out."

On the way out, Mr. Huston might talk.

Democrats wonder what Republicans fear in the way of possible conversation in the "compulsory exit" process.

ALMOST ANYBODY can do a thing once or twice.

The distinguished Robert T. Jones, of Atlanta, Georgia, does a thing better than anybody else ALL OF THE TIME.

Yesterday, with the thermometer at 100, and 5,000 super-heated enthusiasts following him, Bobby Jones made his first nine holes in 34, two strokes under par, in the National Open Golf championship. And this he does after cleaning up everything in Europe and consuming the usual welcome home dinners.

WHEN ONE of his officers announced a victory, Napoleon used to ask:

"What did you do the next day?"

Bobby Jones could answer:

"I went out and beat them again."

DR. FRANKEL, learned Metropolitan Life expert, says the philosophic mind rules the child best.

Between the ages of 3 and 15, according to Dr. Frankel, each child goes through all the various stages through which the human race as a whole has passed, from the Stone Age to the present day.

"The philosophic mind," knowing that a young child is a young barbarian, and cannot be anything else, does not foolishly expect too much, and force the child to be a hypocrite.

HOWEVER, one thing is more important in the bringing up of children than the philosophic mind, or anything else, and that is AFFECTION, and especially the love of a mother.

No science can take the place of that.

It is to the mind's expansion and healthy growth what food is to the body. There is no substitute.

IF YOU own an automobile, get in and drive to the Pacific Coast. Gasoline out there is selling as low as five cents a gallon, and it is predicted that the price war will drive it as low as three cents a gallon, the amount of the state tax.

In other words, the producers will give the gas away, charging consumers only the amount of the state's taxation.

Rather drastic, but it should lead to some solution of the oil and gasoline problem.

MR. BURR, research director, of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, deals effectively with the gar, a cannibal fish shaped like a snake, that destroys great quantities of good fish.

Mr. Burr attracts the cannibal with a 200-watt spotlight, and the gar, swimming near the surface, is caught in a net charged with electricity, stunned, sinks to the bottom and suffocates. It cannot live in deep water.

Respectable fish caught in the net are not injured. Destruction of the gar will save endless millions of good fish.

If only that could be tried on warlike nations!

FIFTY YEARS ago, in Berlin, Heinrich Stephan, German postmaster general, announced that he would establish a telephone exchange for private citizens. Only 94 applications were received. The number rose to 200 within a year.

Now Berlin has half a million subscribers.

But the American telephone system is still greater than all other systems combined.

THE CHANGEABLE lady in Rigoletto was no more uncertain in her moods than today's stock market. Brokers went home yesterday, everybody in a "buoyant" mood, and a "big bull market ahead" discussed.

More earnestly than ever the advice is given, DON'T GAMBLE. Sound stocks, paying a good return on your investment, will be bought by the wise from now on. Gambling will bring its usual reward.

NEW YORK gains in population, partly by cutting down the death rate. Its population which, on April 1, according to the government census, was 6,935,084, will be 7,000,000 on August 10, according to Dr. Wynne, health commissioner.

In New York's metropolitan area within 50 miles of the city hall there are now 11,000,000 people. There will soon be 11,000,000 on Long Island alone.

EIGHT AMERICAN girls and women were presented to Queen Mary and King George at Buckingham Palace last night.

Those looking on at the performance included Prince and Princess Takamatsu, of Japan, spending part of their honeymoon in London.

Born royal, the interesting young Japanese couple just "dropped in" at the palace, the princess desiring to see how the British king and queen handle a court presentation.

BOBBY JONES CROWDED BY FIELD

Cleveland Golfer Has Early Lead in Second Round Of National Open Grind

INTERLACHEN C L U B, MINNEAPOLIS, July 11.—(AP.)—Bob Shave, of Cleveland, equaled par with a fine 72 today in the second round of the national open golf championship, taking temporary lead of the field with a total of 148 for 36 holes.

Shave shot the incoming nine in 34 strokes, two under par, with a birdie at the tenth and an eagle 3 at the eleventh.

The second 18-hole round of the championship began with the clubhouse thermometer registering 98 and with every prospect that the players again faced a blistering tussle for leadership.

A light breeze had the effect of a cooling illusion and old man humidity at least, was not on as much of a rampage as during the first round.

LEADERS BUNCHED

Bobby Jones knew he had the fight of his fighting life in front of him. He found himself trapped on both sides by as dangerous a clan of golfing warriors as ever strode forth in any gouf tournament.

One stroke ahead of Jones were Tommy Armour, of Detroit, the "Black Scot," who toppled him

HALE OPENS FIRE UPON TREATY

British, Under Its Terms, Have U. S. Hamstrung and Hog-Tied, He Tells Senate

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.)—President Hoover today refused the Senate's request for the secret documents on the London naval treaty.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Amidst expectation that President Hoover would refuse its confidential documents concerning the naval conference, the Senate today heard the treaty, as negotiated in London, denounced by Senator Hale.

Mr. Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson discussed the situation caused by the call for the secret papers. They do not consider that publication of such material is in the public interest, so a quick reply to the Senate along that line is expected.

Pending the settlement of that difference between the White House and the Senate, debate on the pact brought the renewed opposition of Hale. The Maine senator, who heads the Naval Committee, contended that ratification would prove the United States is incapable of looking after its own interests.

His long, prepared speech recalled that in detailed support of the pact made Tuesday by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, who saw good where Hale sees evil in the treaty. Again the galleries were filled.

For the third day, a bare quorum of 49 answered the first rollcall. The man from Maine had been waiting two days to express his opposition. He spoke slowly, declaring:

"The British by the terms of this treaty have us hamstrung and hog-tied, and there they will keep us so long as limitations of armaments are the order of the day."

Sir Thomas Lipton Laid Up With Cold

LONDON, July 11.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton has developed a cold and is staying indoors. There is nothing serious, inquirers were told, but in view of the forthcoming visit to the United States for the America races, he is taking no risks.

Because of Sir Thomas' indisposition, the dinner planned by the British Sportsmen's Club for Monday has been postponed.

STREET FLOODED FROM BUILDING TO BUILDING WITH RUSHING WATERS AFTER 36-INCH MAIN BURST IN VOSKAMP STREET

WATER FLOODS 100 HOMES

With a roar that awakened the neighborhood, a water main burst at Voskamp and Basin streets, North Side, at 4:30 a. m. today and flooded the basements of 100 houses.

Scores rushed from their homes in confusion, only to be met by a rush of water which reached a depth of three feet.

Police hurried about assuring terror-stricken residents of the district.

The main broke at the juncture of a 16-inch main and a 20-inch main, tearing a hole two feet square in Voskamp street.

6,000,000 GALLONS

Water bureau officials estimated that 6,000,000 gallons of water were lost through the break, one-fifteenth of the capacity of the Cabbage Hill Reservoir. The water mark in the huge basin re-

2 Gold Miners Die, Trapped by Flames

LEAD, S. D., July 11.—(AP.)—Two miners were killed in a fire that destroyed three buildings at the Homestake Gold Mine last night. They were trapped in the elevator cage when the engineer at the top of the shaft had to run from the flames. Damage to the Homestake mines was upwards of $1,000,000. The mine, in the northern Black Hills, is the largest producer of gold in the United States.

Building Owners Urge City Efficiency in Tax Boost Fight

Indignant over Council's disregard of recommendations for more efficient management of the city market houses and other municipal buildings, the Building Owners and Managers Association today planned a new demand for action.

It is to be part of a vigorous campaign to enlist property owners of Pittsburgh in the fight against increasing taxes on real estate. The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board is co-operating.

J. W. Bamford, a director and former chairman of the taxation committee of the Building Owners' Association, pointed out that at Council's request the real estate men and experts make a careful study of the municipal buildings.

SUGGESTIONS MADE

They found waste and inefficiency, and in their report made specific suggestions for saving money and increasing income from the city property. It was recommended, for example, that the city discontinue furnishing free light, heat, janitor service and refrigeration to the market tenants, and that rents be raised to the same level as those charged for similar accommodations in privately-owned buildings.

An ordinance was prepared, based on the report, which it was estimated would turn a $25,000 a year loss in the Diamond market into a $35,000 a year profit. But, according to Bamford, nothing has been done about it.

The Building Owners Association has had leaflets prepared for

2 WOMEN FINED IN DICE GAME

Mrs. Georgia Clark, 30, of Columbus, and Mrs. Teresa Hamilton, 28, of Cincinnati, accused of staging a crooked dice game in the William Penn Hotel, were fined by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today. Mrs. Clark was assessed $100, Mrs. Hamilton $25.

Their husbands, listed as Arthur H. Hamilton and Arthur Clark, who played minor roles, were fined $25 each.

Police told of Mrs. Clark inveigling three Pittsburghers to her room and, in the game, shooting six consecutive passes. Inspector Albert Beebe said he recognized her as the woman who had tried a similar stunt here several years ago.

Lowman's Daughter to Wed Jardine's Son

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(INS.)—The marriage of Miss Katherine Lowman, daughter of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, to William N. Jardine, son of the former Secretary of Agriculture, will take place soon, friends said today. The engagement was announced last night.

Both the young people are prominent in official society here, being identified with cabinet life here in recent years.

BLONDE, DAGUE ASK 'FAIR' TRIAL

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 11.—Opening their legal battle to save Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague from the electric chair, Attorneys Ben Jarrett and Thomas W. Dickey argued motion for new trials before Judges R. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers here today.

ACTS AUG. 8 ON LUZERNE BALLOTS

Justice Frazer Sets Earlier Date, Declaring Fairness To Voters Impelled Change

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court today set August 8 for a hearing on the Luzerne County perforated ballot case.

The outcome will decide whether Gifford Pinchot or Francis Shunk Brown is to appear on the November election ballots as the Republican candidate for governor.

The hearing will be held in Philadelphia, upon order of Justice Robert S. Fraser, acting chief Justice during the absence of Chief Justice Robert Von Moschisker in Europe. The hearing originally had been fixed for September 29 in Pittsburgh.

EXPLAINS HIS ACTION

Justice Fraser communicated his action to the prothonotary's office in Philadelphia today. He said:

"My attention, as acting chief Justice, has been called to the fact that the hearing of the gubernatorial primary contest from Luzerne County has been made returnable in ordinary course at the next regular session of this court, which convenes September 29, 1930, at Pittsburgh. Our rules provide that any pending appeal may be advanced to hearing on application of either side, or by the court of its own motion.

"To avoid apparent misapprehension, I direct you to notify counsel on both sides, appearing in the appeals referred to, that though the court is in recess, owing to the importance of the questions involved, and in the absence of a request for advancement from either party, the hearing of the appeals is, by order this day filed, advanced for hearing at Philadelphia on Friday, August 8, 1930, at 10 a. m., eastern standard time, at which time, the court will proceed to hear and determine the questions in controversy, unless counsel for the parties mutually agree upon a different date, at which event the court will, if

He introduced to them Laura McKay, of Sparta, as the new Mrs. John Hunter. They have been married since May 7, 1929, but had kept it a secret.

Doyle Buried in Garden, Await First Message

CROWBOROUGH, Sussex, England, July 11.—(INS.)—With an utter absence of the usual signs of mourning, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who forsook literature to probe the mysteries of death, was laid to rest here today.

The body of the great writer, creator of the world-famous "Sherlock Holmes," was interred in the garden of his estate, Windlesham. Plans for an impressive funeral in the parish church were abandoned when it was learned Sir Arthur had expressed a wish to lie forever beneath the rolling terrain of his Sussex home.

Two Non-Conformist ministers, in simple suits of black, conducted the brief ceremony as the coffin was lowered into its grave. Besides Lady Doyle, her two daughters and her son and other immediate relatives, only a few close friends gathered in the fragrant garden as the body was lowered into its last resting place.

Sir Arthur's first communication from the spirit world, confidently looked for by all members of his family and his host of followers throughout England, will be listened for at a seance on Sunday night.

Mrs. R. B., Green St., had advertised her Beechwood Blvd. home for rent all spring, in another Pittsburgh newspaper. She got no results. B. is glad she listened to the Ad-taker's advice.

Carroll Show Re-enacted In Court by Girls

NEW YORK, July 11.—(INS.)—A lesson on how to dress a window "a la Earl Carroll 'Vanities'" was rehearsed today in Jefferson Market Court.

Police Capt. James Coy told how it was done. Capt. Coy first became noted as a drama critic in Mae West's recent "Pleasure Man" trial. He said:

"There were five girls on the stage in evening clothes. These girls were supposedly wax figures. They came to life. One of the cast said to Jimmy Savo, 'I'll teach you how to dress a window. Go over and take off their stockings.'"

Coy, emulating Jimmy Savo, the leading comic of the "Vanities," did not stop with stockings. He went on to describe how Savo dressed and undressed the show girls in an allegedly obscene manner. The task could have been done with much less immoral effect, contended the police captain.

Capt. Coy also told how he saw Faith Bacon in the nude, making "various movements."

The eight show beauties on trial with Jimmy Savo and Earl Carroll for presenting an immoral performance sat in the front row. Some were bored, some giggled, one was embarrassed and hid her head.

The hearing didn't seem to get anywhere, with Capt. Coy insisting he had seen wholesale epidermis and counsel for the defense declaring there wasn't one nude girl in a carload of Earl Carroll's girls.

So the case was continued until next Tuesday, and the eight beauties went home in their automobiles—or somebody's automobiles—and traffic was in a jam for 20 minutes.

POLICE EXHAUST SUPPLY OF TRAFFIC VIOLATION TAGS

EMERGENCY CALL SENT FOR MORE

Parking Ban Downtown Seen As First Remedy to Aid In Eliminating 'Fixing'

The Bureau of Police today ran out of tags for traffic law violators. What was expected to be a year's supply of tags, 190,000, was exhausted and only those held by individual policemen now menace autoists.

The Bureau of Traffic Planning was appealed to for an additional supply of tags and promised to have them on hand in a few days. Last year 191,000 tags were issued. So far this year 190,000 have been issued. Of this latter number only 41,000 have reached Traffic Court. The majority of the missing 149,000 are supposed to have been cared for by "fixers."

Elimination of downtown parking, inauguration of a long-time program of law enforcement, and wharf-parking facilities loomed today as a panacea for the "tag fixing" menace which has brought forth emphatic condemnation by motor clubs, the director of public safety and civic associations.

Such a solution was advanced yesterday when the Citizens' Better Traffic Committee, in special session, appointed a sub-committee to investigate the feasibility of the proposition and at the same time submitted resolutions to Mayor Charles H. Kline and Council, urging immediate adoption of a blanket ordinance codifying all traffic violation penalties and procedures.

"ENFORCEMENT JOKE"

Director Clark has branded enforcement of parking violation penalties a "huge joke." In an interview several months ago with a Sun-Telegraph reporter he emphatically announced his favorable attitude on a downtown parking ban. This resulted after the department of public safety head had terminated a tour of mid-western cities where such programs now are in force.

Incorporated in the Traffic Committee's resolution is a clause urging motorists to desist in seeking influence to bring about "fixing" of tags and to help reduce accidents, both of a serious and minor nature.

"PARKING BAN NEEDED"

City Traffic Engineer Lewis McIntyre today issued a statement in which he stressed necessity of a parking ban. McIntyre also recommended that public hearings be held before recommendation is made by the committee to Council.

He said:

"The saving of human lives comes first, last and all the time. There is no doubt that elimination of parking in the Golden Triangle will stop thousands of parking violations and ignoring of traffic lights."

An array of figures and statistics produced by McIntyre show that with parking frowned upon by legal procedure, traffic can be expedited nearly 50 per cent. But 2.8 per cent of shoppers downtown come by automobile, he said a Bureau of Traffic Planning survey disclosed. Wharves, garages and parking lots can handle all parkers here, he believes.

Wary motorists, "stung" and forced to pay fines, are emphatic in the denunciations of those with supposed pull from "peanut" politicians who draw $25 fines for possession of as many as 300 to 400 tags.

"FIX APPARENT"

The "fix" must have been put in somewhere, they believe. All deny credulity of alibis put forth that hard luck stories told by offenders are taken into consideration. Our spokesman said:

"I think these yarns have no face value in Traffic Court. Where fines of several hundred dollars should be imposed, the $25 penalty is set up. The 'fix' is apparent. Police will tell you it costs too much money to make out separate informations on each ticket."

Ben Marshall, assistant superintendent of police, and Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey today were on record that a parking ban would eliminate to a great extent the possibility of tag "fixes."

Thirty-nine motorists lined up in Traffic Court today. Nine were fined $10, 13 were freed, 13 cases were postponed and four accused failed to appear.

gained 10 pounds in jail and Dague also seems heavier.

CALLS TRIALS UNFAIR

"We maintain that these defendants were tried and convicted unfairly before an opinionated jury and under prejudiced circumstances," Attorney Jarrett declared, "and so we ask the court to grant our motions for new trials.

"We intended to show that, at a tender age, our client suffered a fall which affected her mentality and through her relatives we intended to prove that she was wont to steal.

"The state was permitted to bring in high-priced experts to testify to her mental status. They condemned her as an habitual criminal, but what chance had she?

"This defendant has no money to retain experts and no opportunity to refute the testimony of these paid state witnesses. Does this constitute a fair and impartial trial?"

OBJECTIONS

In answer to the defense contention that exclusion of witnesses as to Irene's sanity had prejudiced her case before the jury, Charles J. Margiotti, special state prosecutor, argued that there was no offer of an insanity plea at the time by her counsel. He pointed out that the offer made by her lawyers to show that she had an impulse to steal was a contention of only partial insanity and that this does not constitute an excuse for murder.

An insanity plea as a defense for murder must involve general insanity, Margiotti argued.

On the contention that Irene's sister, Mrs. Sarah J. Muldoon, was barred as a witness, Margiotti said that she was only a layman witness and could offer no expert testimony as to Irene's mental condition.

Both cases are being argued at the same time. Dague's wife was present at the argument today.

DAGUE DEFENSE

Among the 28 reasons advanced in the motion for a new trial for Dague, are an overruled objection to cross examination of the defendant concerning other crimes he and Irene participated in and the introduction of alleged admissions made by Dague to Sheriff Charles H. Wright in Arizona shortly after his capture.

Dague's wife and children, left by the erstwhile Wheeling automobile salesman for a career of crime, visit him occasionally and Donnie, 5-year-old son of Irene, is brought to the county jail at regular intervals to see his mother.

JOB DENIED DAGUE'S WIFE

CHARGE VOLPE ISSUED VOTE ORDERS

Witnesses in Wilmerding Row Say Chief Ruled Tax Receipts Not Needed

Three more witnesses in the Wilmerding election contest today testified that James Volpe, political boss, had instructed an election board not to demand tax receipts or naturalization papers of voters.

According to the testimony, Volpe told the board of the Fifth district a verbal statement that the voter had such papers was sufficient. Volpe previously had denied giving such instructions.

Former Judge Thomas J. Prather, special master, adjourned the hearing today until July 21, to allow the court to rule on whether an alleged fraudulent tax receipt was to be admitted in evidence. The offer was made by Attorney John D. Meyer, representing James F. Richards, former tax collector, who is contesting the election of C. R. Shiring.

CALL GRACE IN MERGER LOAN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 11.—(INS.)—Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, will be called as a witness in the trial of the "billion-dollar lawsuit" over the merger of Bethlehem with Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company to explain details of an unsecured loan of $800,000 for the purchase of Sheet and Tube stock to be voted in favor of the merger.

This announcement was made today by attorneys for Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, whose suit to prevent the consolidation is being heard in Common Pleas Court here by Judge David G. Jenkins.

The $800,000 loan was revealed in testimony given yesterday by H. G. Dalton, partner in Pickands, Mather & Co., and a director in both the Sheet and Tube Company and Bethlehem. Dalton testified that Grace offered the loan to Pickands, Mather & Co. without a note and without collateral. The amount was paid off within five days, Dalton declared.

Taking of testimony in today's session of the trial was delayed while attorneys for the anti-merger forces read into the records the depositions of witnesses who will not appear.

CRUSADE OPENS FOR ELECTRIC TRAINS HERE

Letters Sent Other Cities To Get Necessary Data; Would End Noise, Smoke

A movement for electrification of the railroads in Pittsburgh was under way today.

Councilman Robert Garland is the leader, as vice chairman of a new committee to further the plan that has just been appointed by James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce. George S. Oliver is chairman of the committee, but because of his absence in Canada Mr. Garland is acting as chairman. He said:

GARLAND LEADS CRUSADE

"We intend to make every effort to induce the steam railroads to electrify their lines in Pittsburgh. What a boon it would be to everybody if the Pennsylvania lines were electrified, say, from Greensburg to Beaver Falls, and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie from McKeesport to Beaver! It would reduce laundry bills and make it unnecessary to paint houses so often. The elimination of railroad smoke would be particularly appreciated by housekeepers, who would see the difference in curtains, portieres and wall paper.

"New York, Philadelphia and other cities have this improvement, while Pittsburgh, just as strongly entitled to it, has been slighted. We intend to get it, too."

LETTERS SEEK DATA

As a preliminary step, letters have been addressed to various cities inquiring how they obtained electrification of steam railroad lines, how far beyond the corporate limits electrification extends, and asking other pertinent questions.

Mr. Garland has introduced resolutions on the subject in Council, but without result.

The Chamber of Commerce had a committee on electrification some years ago, but it accomplished little.

The personnel of the present committee is not ready for publication because acceptances have not yet been received from all who have been invited to serve, and it is proposed to have none but enthusiastic workers on the body.

CRASH INQUEST SET FOR 17TH

An inquest into the fatal auto plunge of the Boulevard of the Allies, June 29, when a machine crashed through a railing and dropped 150 feet to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks, today was set for July 17.

Louise Peters, 1512 Union road, McKeesport, and Philip Zuckerman, 306 West General Robinson street, each driving a car said to have sideswiped a machine driven by Hayman, forcing him off the boulevard, have been held for the inquest.

EVELYN LAYE

DIVORCE GIVEN EVELYN LAYE

LONDON, July 11.—(INS.)—Miss Evelyn Laye, popular English musical comedy star well known on Broadway and in Hollywood, was granted a divorce today from "Sonny" Hale, also of the stage.

Miss Laye named as co-respondent Miss Jessie Matthews, another darling of the English footlights, who has appeared in New York. She is in Hollywood and her deposition was read in court.

It is understood Miss Matthews and Hale will be married shortly.

Miss Matthews only a few weeks ago was granted a final decree of divorce from A. E. Lytton, London businessman. The marital difficulties of Miss Laye and Miss Matthews, strangely intertwined, have been before the British courts for more than a year.

Miss Matthews, who played in New York in Cochrane's revue, "Wake Up and Dream," startled the theatrical world when she applied for a divorce some time ago, reversing the usual custom of alleging infidelity and admitting her own misconduct, basing her suit on this confession of guilt.

In her papers, she told the court she wished to be freed from Lytton so she might marry Hale, who played opposite her in "Wake Up and Dream." Miss Laye's action against Hale had been instituted some time previously.

FOLLOWED PINCHOT MOVE

The action of the court followed the announcement yesterday by Mr. Pinchot that the existing situation made it necessary for him and his friends to preempt a party title at the proper moment, so his name could be placed on the official ballot as a candidate for governor in the November election.

The Brown faction has been contesting Pinchot's vote in Luzerne County on the ground all the ballots were perforated. This perforation was made by order of the Luzerne County Court, to check fraud.

Davis Remains Silent About Pinchot Ticket

WASHINGTON, July 11. — (AP.)—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Republican nominee for United States Senator from Pennsylvania, continued his non-committal attitude today toward the proposed pre-emption of an Independent ticket by Gifford Pinchot.

Asked if he would be on the Pinchot ticket, should the State Election Bureau approve the former governor's application for pre-emption, Davis said:

"I have not been invited."

He indicated he would have nothing to say while the discussion is in what he regards as its elementary stage, and that before he takes any action, he will consult with Republican leaders, also with other candidates nominated in the May primaries.

ANTI-DRYS IN RACE

HARRISBURG, July 11.—(AP.)—A concerted movement to elect members of Congress and the Legislature, as well as a governor favorable to repeal of prohibition, was begun here with the pre-emption here of the Liberal party's name in 150 congressional, state, senatorial and legislative districts in the state.

Wilbur Morse, Philadelphia, secretary of the Pennsylvania Division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, filed papers for the districts with the Dauphin County Court. State-wide pre-emption papers for election of a governor and other offices were taken out in the court June 4.

Convict Betrays Trust, Flees Fourth Time

RALEIGH, N. C., July 11.—(AP.)—Otto Wood, convict, subject of an "experiment in humanities" by Gov. O. Max Gardner, was at large today.

In his fourth escape from Central Prison yesterday, Wood broke a pledge that he not try to escape again as long as Gov. Gardner was in office.

After his third escape, Gov. Gardner singled Wood out for an experiment, had him released from solitary confinement in a veritable dungeon where he had spent 26 months and made him an honor prisoner.

Wood was serving from 22½ to 30 years for the murder of a Greensboro pawnbroker. He was committed in 1923, and is wanted in Virginia and Tennessee after completion of his term here. Previously he escaped from the Ohio State Penitentiary.

When made an honor prisoner he told the governor:

"I won't offer you my word of honor, because that wouldn't be much; but you can be sure of one thing, I'll never run away as long as you are governor."

The governor, when he learned of Wood's latest escape, said:

"I do not regret releasing him from solitary confinement, but I do regret his betrayal of my trust in trying to treat him humanely as other prisoners at state's prison are treated."

Washington Rum Arrests Grow, Others Decrease

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(INS.)—The capital still is thirsty despite President Hoover's expressed desire to make it the model for the nation in prohibition enforcement.

Although arrests for all other sorts of offenses have fallen off, arrests for liquor violations increased 46.8 per cent in the three months ending June 30, over the same period last year. An additional increase of 8.7 for Shepherd law violations also was noted.

There were in the period 1,635 arrests for violation of the Volstead law, an increase of 522. Under the Shepherd law, making drunkenness a punishable offense, 3,726 arrests were made, an increase of 298 over the previous period.

DORAN DENIES FRAYNE OUSTED

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, former commissioner of prohibition, said there is no truth in the statement in the August number of the magazine, Plain Talk, that Joseph A. Frayne, former assistant prohibition administrator at Pittsburgh, was dismissed from the service for accepting bribes.

Dr. Doran said that Frayne was never dismissed from the service and is now a special agent attached to New York City prohibition headquarters, where he was transferred from Pittsburgh.

Frayne was an assistant administrator in charge of the enforcement unit, under John D. Pennington, for more than a year, resigning January 10, 1929, and was re-assigned to New York prohibition headquarters as a special agent.

While in the Pittsburgh district he directed investigations in many of the large rum conspiracy cases. Among them were the original McKeesport conspiracy, the Homestead conspiracy, the North Side cases and others.

BONNER, LINGLE DEATHS LINKED

CHICAGO, July 11.—(INS.)—Authorities today studied the affairs of Thomas Bonner, slain racketeer veteran, believing that his death might be linked to the gangland murder of Alfred J. Lingle, racketeering reporter whose death caused a furore in police circles.

The inquest into Bonner's death was continued to give police time to investigate. Two gunmen entered Bonner's apartment early yesterday, engaged him in a loud argument and shot him to death, escaping through the front door. Bonner had a police record dating back to 1919.

While investigation of the Lingle murder by the police "board of strategy" and the state's attorney's office was apparently at a standstill, the July grand jury was reported today as being prepared to begin its official inquiry after a 10-day study of the case. Several police officials and acquaintances of Lingle are expected to be called.

At a hearing this week the promoters of the race moved to continue the injunction while state police counsel asked that they be dismissed.

VOTE MACHINES ASSURED HERE

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, of the Board of County Commissioners, has promised that the county will be prepared to purchase as many voting machines as the machine company which gets the contract can deliver in time for the fall election.

Armstrong's statement followed a meeting Tuesday at which it was decided to re-advertise the bids for machines because of "closed specifications." State Senator Frank J. Harris, who was present, asked the commissioners to promise to install machines in Pittsburgh, and Armstrong refused to comment.

'Forty-Niners May Make Senate History

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(Universal.)—The new "Forty-Niners" seemed destined to make Senate history today. Since the special Senate session opened to consider the London Treaty frequent roll calls have disclosed only 49 senators on hand, or just enough to make a quorum.

Although the opposing senators could easily tie up Senate business by remaining out of the chamber, Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, their leader, has refused to countenance such tactics.

Johnson has been commended time and again by the treaty supporters for his display of sportsmanship and fair play.

ceded a foot because of the sudden drainage.

Workmen found the main shooting water 15 feet into the air, but it was hours before they could dig down to the pipe to shut it off, meanwhile the water poured out of the broken main and spread over an area of more than 10 blocks.

Streets inundated were sections of Voskamp, Basin and Vinial streets, Spring Garden avenue and Welser way. Many side streets and alleys also were made impassable.

FURNITURE SET AFLOAT

Police, after a hasty checkup, said that houses on Welser way were flooded, the water in most cases filling the basements. In several places it filled the first floors of buildings. Furniture on the first floor of the home of Henry Fritske, in the 1200 block of Voskamp street, was floating about when Fritske, who left the place when the main broke, returned several hours later.

Street car traffic was tied up for several hours on the Spring Garden and the Spring Hill lines. Cars were detoured in order that workers could make their way downtown during the early morning rush.

The Bureau of Highways and Sewers announced there would not be a shortage of water. Repairmen expected to have the main restored to service in 24 hours.

VON BERNHARDI DIES IN BERLIN

BERLIN, July 11.—(AP.)—Gen. Friedrich Von Bernhardi, high German officer during the World War, is dead at the age of 81. He was the first Prussian officer to enter Paris after its fall in the Franco-Prussian War.

Bernhardi was a vigorous exponent of the policy of "frightfulness" in war. He was best known to Americans through his book, "Germany and the Next War," which was widely read and cited against Germany and the allied countries during the World War, where he quickly achieved the legendary stature of the guiding military mind largely responsible for German entry into the conflict.

Defeat of the imperial armies never crippled his pen. His post-war volume, "The War of the Future," was read widely in many countries.

BERMUDA KILLS DRY AID TO U. S.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 11.—Parliament has rejected a bill prohibiting the taking of liquor aboard ships bound for the United States by a vote of 16 to 15.

The measure had been introduced as a "good-will gesture" in an effort to aid America's enforcement of the dry laws. It is feared that the United States will discontinue waiving the necessity of passports for American citizens traveling to Bermuda, thereby injuring the tourist trade.

Proponents of the bill hoped that its passage would serve to prevent such a step on the part of the American government. Opponents objected to it on the principle that it would help in the enforcement of the laws of a foreign country.

Lights Go on Spree, Tangle N. Y. Traffic

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—Motorists and pedestrians on the upper West Side saw red and green at the same time for about two hours last night when traffic lights on three major thoroughfares went on a color spree.

One of the worst traffic snarls in years resulted. Confusion spread to adjoining streets and there were many minor collisions and narrow escapes before a repair squad located a blown-out fuse.

A birthday greeting, signed by 200 children, members of the summer play school, has been sent to Mr. Kaufmann, who is now in Paris.

HUSTON STICKS, FOES SILENT

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(INS.)—Claudius H. Huston has enjoyed a reputation for many years as a poker player of no mean parts, and political observers today were fully convinced he is applying the tactics of the national indoor pastime to the situation revolving around his continuance as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Whether the hand he is holding contains nothing more than the suspected pair of deuces, or whether he has drawn to a full house, no one knows.

There hasn't been that promised showdown, and Huston apparently has those seeking his resignation bluffed to a standstill.

On the basis of a rather cryptic statement issued by the chairman personally, it is being assumed generally he plans to step aside after the special session of the Senate has adjourned, but those who hope so have no assurance.

Meanwhile, the men who 24 hours ago were loud in their demands that Huston get out, are now strangely silent. They say they pledged themselves to Huston to let him do the talking, but the chairman says he gave no promise of future resignation in exchange for their silence.

Coolidge Sees Failure Due to Lack of Effort

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 11.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Probably some people can conscientiously say that they never had a chance. But most people have failed because they did not really try. A recent report tells of a young man with a wife and children, working eight hours each night to support them and maintain himself in college, where he ranked near the head of his class.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Any student knows of the life of Darwin, who from a sick bed that permitted him to work scarcely more than 20 minutes each day changed the course of the thought of the world. How easily one of these men could have concluded that the necessity of supporting his family made it impossible to secure an education and the other that poor health prevented him from following his scientific investigations to a conclusion.

The great fact seems to be that when a man dedicates his whole soul to his work, when he fully determines to meet the responsibilities that he incurs, in his time of need some power outside himself directs his course and gives him the strength to prevail. To such men comes revelation. They do better than they know. Therein lies the hope of the world.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Stowaway From DuBois 'Swapped' for 5 Chinese

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—Is one hungry American the equal of five hungry Chinese?

On that depends whether Capt. George Fried, of the United States liner America, or Capt. A. B. Randall, of the George Washington, came out ahead in a little swap they effected in mid-Atlantic.

Shortly after leaving Hamburg for New York, Capt. Randall discovered he was harboring five extremely hungry Chinese stowaways, while about the same time Capt. Fried learned he had an equally hungry stowaway in the person of Amil G. Olsen, 23, of DuBois, Pa., who had hidden aboard the ship in New York with the hope of getting to Havre.

As the two ships passed in mid-Atlantic, the captains, via wireless, got talking things over as captains do and each learned of the other's unbooked passengers. Capt. Randall suggested a swap, and computing the price of rice and beef, Capt. Fried took him up on it. The transfer was made, but the winner in the deal has not been announced.

Alimony Report Reveals Princess Taxis' Wealth

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 11.—(INS.)—If the Princess of Thurn and Taxis can collect $300,000 she claims is due her three sons from J. V. Thompson, then she and the sons, John, Gerald and Edward, would have a fortune of more than a million dollars.

The report of the trustees of an alimony fund, left the princess and her sons 24 years ago, when she and Lord Gerald Purcell Fitzgerald were divorced, shows a total of $722,745.80. Of this amount $425,941.86 is credited to the princess and $296,803.94 to the sons.

In 1906 Lord Fitzgerald left a fund amounting to more than three-quarters of a million dollars to the princess and their sons. This mainly was the income from the operation of the South Fayette Coke Company, which previously to the divorce had netted Lord Fitzgerald many millions.

The report of the trustees of the funds show that in five years the princess' fund increased more than $12,000. Edward Fitzgerald is living with his father and the other sons with their mother here.

The money is invested in mortgages and bonds.

HIGH FREIGHT CHARGES LOSE CAR ORDERS

Standard Plant Transfers Work From Butler Plant, Service Commission Told

The Standard Steel Car Company has been forced to transfer orders from its Butler plant to its plant in Hammond, Ind., as a result of high freight rates in the Pittsburgh district. This statement was made yesterday by A. J. Bessolo, traffic manager for the company, in testifying before the Public Service Commission in the short haul freight rate case.

Bessolo stated that an order for 2,000 cars was received last year. The original estimates called for plated production at Butler and the use of steel made in this district. The publication of changes in the short haul rates here indicated such large increases in costs that the order was filled by the western plant which is in the Chicago switching district and which was not affected by freight rate increases.

COMPETITION DIFFICULT

Competition of the Pittsburgh plant with the Chicago district railroad car makers has been made extremely difficult as a result of the new rates which were placed into effect on May 20 according to Bessolo.

Under the old rates the average cost of shipping the steel to make a railroad car at Butler was $27.33. Bessolo said that this had been increased to $40.91 by the new rates. The cost of shipping the same amount of steel to a Chicago plant is $9.74. The difference in favor of Chicago has been increased from $17.59 to $31.17.

BLOW AT BUTLER

Bessolo said that the Standard Steel Car Company had developed Butler from a town of about 7,000 persons to a city with a population of 30,000. He said that the company had developed most of the Butler traffic which the railroads are now threatening to destroy by their rate policy.

The producers and consumers of steel are expected to complete the presentation of their testimony against increases in the short haul rates today. The railroads have finished the presentation of their case with the exception of the entrance of a few exhibits to the record. Preparation of these has been delayed so that a date probably will be set by the commission for a future hearing.

SEARCH FOR 2 GIRLS ASKED

Police today were asked to aid in search for two young women, one missing two years.

Sarah Deutsch, 23, formerly of 26 Higbee street, graduate nurse and honor student of Schenley High School, left home two years ago, her sister, Mrs. Victoria Howell of Detroit, told the Missing Persons Bureau.

According to Mrs. Howell her sister, while on duty in Montefiore Hospital, became infatuated with a shoe company manager who was robbed en route to a bank and was taken to the hospital to be treated for his wounds. When he left, Miss Deutsch disappeared, police were told. Mrs. Howell wishes her sister to reside with her in Detroit, she said.

Mrs. Agnes Piera, of 3120 Sarah street, asked that search be made for her daughter, Anna, 17, who disappeared June 14. She was employed in a Squirrel Hill home, the mother said.

INDIANS MASS AFTER FIGHT

BOMBAY, India, July 11.—(AP)—Disorders of a serious nature broke out along the Maidan Esplanade this evening and 60 civil disobedience volunteers were injured when the police forcibly broke up a demonstration in sympathy with soldiers imprisoned for offenses in Peshawar.

The Nationalist demonstrators thronged into the Esplanade from every direction by a prearranged movement. Large forces of native police and militia were on hand. British troops waited near the scene.

One of the injured was Mr. Modi, president of the Bombay Congress Committee, who led one line of marchers.

At 6 o'clock the Gandhi followers still were arriving in the Maidan and preparations were made to extend the zone of policing.

The procession was stopped by the police and ordered to disperse. The marchers refused. The police charged with their staves, knocking down great numbers. Many were taken to hospitals. Some sat in the street and refused to budge.

distribution calling attention to the fact that the tax on real estate has increased more than 90 percent in Pittsburgh in the last 13 years. Taxpayers are asked:

"Where are we going and when will it stop?

"Do you realize that every increase in taxation reflects itself in your living expenses?"

TAX RAISES SHOWN

ASSOCIATION'S ARGUMENT

Commenting on the table, the association says:

"Total tax millage has increased in 13 years more than 90 per cent. Assessments have also increased during the same period so that the average office building or apartment house is paying for 1930 from 90 per cent to 150 per cent more for this item of expense.

"For example, assume a building is assessed at $100,000.00 on land assessed at $50,000.00; the total tax on this property in 1917 would be $2,920.00. The total tax on the same property for 1930, assuming that assessments were not changed, would be $5,565.00, an increase for 1930 of $2,645.00, or a percentage of 90.6 per cent. Very few properties, however, have escaped increased assessment during the last 13 years so that the increased tax payment in practically every instance is more than 90 per cent.

Bamford said the building owners would not object so emphatically against high taxes if their money were being usefully expended, but that they strenuously protested against being mulcted of taxes squandered in waste and inefficiency.

SUN-TELEGRAPH

And Win a Valuable Cash Prize, Too. It's Easy!

You all remember Ann Harding, the charming star of "Condemned" and "Paris Bound." You will all want to see her in her latest picture, "Holiday," which starts Thursday at the Stanley Theater.

One Hundred Readers of the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads Will See Her as the Guest of the Sun-Telegraph.

You have been told many times of the wonderful opportunities to save time and money advertised in the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads. The idea of this contest is to prove it to you. Here's how! The Sun-Telegraph will give Two Theater Tickets to each of the twelve persons who select the Four Best Bargains advertised in the Classified Section of the current issue of the Sun-Telegraph. In addition there will be a Cash Prize of $10, each day, to the person who submits the best of the twelve prize-winning answers.

The contest is really very simple. All you need to do is to go through the Classified Ads carefully. Select the ads which appeal to you as unusual bargains, whether they tell you about a house in Crafton that can be rented for $38 per month, where you can buy a $135 saxophone for $35, or a special price on a used car. When you have decided on the best offers, copy the ads or cut them out and paste them on a piece of paper. Then after each ad write a brief paragraph of not more than fifty words telling why you think it to be one of the Best Bargains offered for the day. Remember, thirteen prizes are offered for each day and it will be easy to win. Before you start, read the following rules carefully!

Rules of the Contest

1. Select from today's Classified Section Four (4) Ads which you think are the Four Best Bargains offered today.

2. Copy the Ads as they appear or cut them out and paste them on a piece of paper.

3. Write a brief paragraph of not more than fifty words on each ad, telling why you think it is one of the best bargains offered today.

4. Neatness is important as it will be one of the important factors of determining the winners.

5. Date your presentation carefully and mail it not later than noon of the day following the day the ads appeared.

6. Address all replies to The Manager, Classified Department, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

7. Thirteen prizes will be given each day. There will be Twelve Prizes of Two Guest Tickets to the Stanley Theater and one Prize of $10 cash, to the reply judged to be the best of the twelve prize winning answers.

8. In the event of a tie duplicate awards will be given to each of the tying contestants.

9. Replies will be judged and the Winners Announced in the Classified Section just as soon as possible after the replies have had time to reach this office. Watch for the announcements.

FRANCO-ITALIAN FEUD WANES

PARIS, July 11.—(INS.)—Tensity of feeling that had cast a shadow over Franco-Italian relations since these countries engaged in a spirited naval controversy was dispelled today by Foreign Minister Briand's announcement that France had begun a six-months' shipbuilding holiday, to pave the way for naval negotiations with Italy.

Briand, who recently unfurled his plan for a United States of Europe, spoke for three hours to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, in his effort to soothe whatever ruffled feelings the members still entertained against France's Alpine neighbor, after the latter's recent more or less aggressive demands for a showdown on their respective naval strengths.

France will not lay the keel of a ship nor drive another nail into steel plates until after December, the veteran French political leader told his compatriots, counselling them to take the future calmly, avoid panic and outbursts and leave further Franco-Italian conversations and negotiations in the hands of the respective ambassadors of the two countries.

D. B. OLIVER, 96, UPSETS GUESS

According to the mortality tables of insurance companies everyone is supposed to be dead at 96, but if an insured person holding a straight life policy lives to be that age the insured is paid the face value.

David B. Oliver (Uncle Davy) has joined the rare class with the distinction of having lived long enough to receive such insurance.

A check for $18,000 was mailed to the retired manufacturer and member of the Board of Public Education since its organization by the Mutual Life Insurance Company. The money has been forwarded to Mr. Oliver, who is summering at East Hampton, Long Island, N. Y.

"Uncle Davy" will be 96 next October 31 and will receive other sums of money on policies for he has outlived the mortality tables as kept by life insurance companies.

Such a policy was recently paid to Mrs. Sarah Fownes, the 96-year-old mother of Henry C. Fownes, president of the Oakmont Country Club.

The payment of the check to Mrs. Fownes made her the second woman in the last half century to beat the mortality table of the insurance company according to J. M. Dalbey, local manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

HOOVER LAUDED BY WATSON

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP).—Unreservedly praising President Hoover for facing "great problems he did not create," Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, said in a radio address last night that time would prove the wisdom of the administration's accomplishments.

Speaking over a national network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the Republican Senate leader reviewed the administration achievements and said the President is disappointing only to those who have prepared to be and who want to be disappointed. He said:

"He has faced grave problems he did not create. He has met innumerable difficulties for which he is in no wise responsible. To solve them he has carried through a great program of legislation and administration. The effects of these policies upon public welfare have not yet had time to manifest themselves."

CHINA BANDITS SACK TOWNS

SHANGHAI, July 11.—(AP).—Widespread banditry has caused America, Great Britain and Japan to use gunboats for protection of foreign shipping against machine and rifle fire and consuls to warn their nationals to flee from the Middle Yangtse Valley.

Warships patroled the Yangtse between Kiukiang and Ichang to drive off outlaw bands who pirated Chinese vessels and plundered many river towns.

Missionaries and other foreigners were reported in serious danger of being captured by bandits and held for ransom. They were urged to leave isolated places for Yangtse centers where foreign warships could protect them.

All foreigners and many Chinese have left Shasi, river port above Hankow, which is threatened.

Judge's Air Ruling Branded as Menace

CLEVELAND, July 11.—(AP).—A menace to aviation was seen today by Maj. Louis G. Meister, Cleveland manager of Curtiss-Wright flying service, in the ruling of Federal Judge George P. Hahn at Toledo in setting 500 feet as the minimum height at which planes may fly over property adjacent to airports.

Maj. Meister asserted that more than 3,500 feet of ground space are needed for pilots to bring their planes down from an altitude of 500 feet and that very few airports in the country are that large.

Contagious Foot Disease Attacks Millions—Watch Out

You May Have It

An Intense Itching and Burning Under and Between the Toes Often Spreads to Soles of Feet—Skin Breaks and Blisters

Stop Infection Before It Spreads

Look at your feet tonight and especially under and between toes. The United States Public Health Service assert in a recent bulletin that at least one-half of all adults suffer from it at times.

And bear in mind it is no disease to trifle with for many of its victims have been disabled for weeks.

Usually the skin cracks—it blisters—when the blister breaks there is often an oozing of liquid.

If not caught in time the disease usually spreads along the sole and sides of the foot—the skin reddens and may peel off.

CAUTION: The disease is infectious—someone in your own home may have it—(find out tonight). Beware of bathmats, either at home or in hotels—use a newspaper—it's safer. Wear your own slippers and walk as little as possible in your bare feet.

TREATMENT: After bathing the feet apply Moone's Emerald Oil generously, not only under and between the toes but over the bottom and sides of foot. This powerful oil soothes and penetrates—stops the itching and checks the growth of the germs.

Pharmacists everywhere in America dispense Moone's Emerald Oil—a bottle lasts a long time.

BROWN TO SEEK POSTAL RAISE

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP.) — Convinced that an increase in postage rates is the only feasible way of lifting the world's biggest public utility "out of the red," postal officials are preparing to press their advocacy of a higher charge for carrying first class mail.

When Postmaster General Brown submits his annual report to Congress in December, the enactment of legislation authorizing the increase is to be his most urgent recommendation. The postmaster believes a rate of 2½ cents an ounce on first class mail would balance the department's budget for the present.

Assistant Postmaster General Tilton, generally regarded as the financial expert of the department, said today an increase in the rate on letter mail is the only solution of the deficit problem.

Last year's postal deficit amounted to $50,000,000. Tilton estimates it will run over $60,000,000 this year.

'Ambridge Girl Hit; Driver Arrested

Knocked down by an automobile in Duss avenue, Laura Janicki, 16, of 834 Melrose avenue, Ambridge, today was in the Sewickley Valley Hospital. The driver of the car, John Praside, Jr., of Leetsdale, was arrested, but released later under bail.

ROME MOURNS LATE CARDINAL

VATICAN CITY, July 11. — (AP.) — Mourners by thousands from all ranks and conditions of society passed the body of Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli as it lay in state in violet vestments in the throne room of D'Ataria Palace.

Everywhere throughout Rome was manifest the mourning in which the populace joined with Vatican City over the passing of the 93-year-old dean of the Sacred College and high prince next to the Pope of the Catholic church.

Arrangements went forward for the funeral announced for 10 o'clock Saturday at the Church of St. Ignatius when Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, new dean of the Cardinals, will officiate.

2 Arrested After Hitting Parked Car

Paul Dalton, 24, of 16 Camp avenue, Braddock, and Earl Scully, 22, of 1822 Braddock avenue, Swissvale, were to be given hearings today at Munhall. An automobile in which they were occupants passed through a red safety light and crashed, police said, into a parked car at Eighth and Library avenues, Munhall, late last night.

Scully was thrown from the car, suffering bruises. Both men were jailed on charges of intoxication, the police docket showed.

MOVIE GOSSIP AND REVIEW ALONG WITH WINCHELL'S NEW YORK CHAT

Hiring Writer Indicates Bancroft Trouble Is Ironed Out

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 11.—Underworld stories have proved almost as sturdy as westerns in their hold upon the public favor.

Paramount has sent for Charles Francis Coe to return to Hollywood and write a gangster vehicle for George Bancroft. Apparently George has settled his difficulties with the studio and is ready to start work on Rollin Down the Rio, his next picture.

George Bancroft

Some of the Hollywood stars have found royalties from phonograph records a profitable source of income. Not all have fared so well, however. A certain comedian says that he wrote the company after six months asking for a statement. He received the following reply:

"On receipt of 50 cents, we will send you the master record."

THIS HERMIT MODERN

One of the most picturesque figures in Hollywood is Peter the Hermit. He has a leonine head of gray hair and often dresses like a beachcomber. He seldom wears shoes. Yet, while many an actor is looking for a job, I saw Peter driving down the boulevard yesterday in a brand new, expensive roadster. With his hair flying in the wind, he looked like some stuffy saint mysteriously transported into 1930.

When "The Spoilers" company went on location at Big Tujunga, they found themselves in need of technical advice on how to build a sluice box. Someone appealed to the watchman at the nearby dam. He did the job neatly. And so strange is coincidence that he proved to be William Doyle, who was Rex Beach's partner in Alaska during the time that "The Spoilers" was conceived.

Ann Pennington's opening night as featured dancer at the Hotel Roosevelt was the occasion for a turnout of many stars and of practically all the Broadwaites now in Hollywood.

Ann Pennington

Leon Errol was among the impromptu entertainers, also Glen Hunter, who's to do a stage play here in the near future. Carmel Myers and Leatrice Joy did numbers. Incidentally, Leatrice Joy has followed Bebe Daniels' example in dying her hair auburn.

There were many parties of stars. I caught glimpses of Gloria Swanson, Roscoe Arbuckle, Elsie Bartlett, Leota Lane, Helene Chadwick, Ruth Roland, Lew Cody, Theda Bara and many others. Miss Bara received loud applause when she was introduced to the crowd.

EX-STAR DOG WORKS

An interesting parallel to the careers of human stars is furnished by the life of "Buddy," Mack Sennett's famous dog-actor.

Twelve years ago, Buddy played the lead in his own two-reel comedies. Today, with his coat showing gray hairs, he is doing a character role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's dog comedy, "All Quiet on the K-9 Front."

In September, J. Farrell MacDonald, well-known screen character actor, will enter 25 oil and pastel pictures in the exhibit of the Laguna Art Association. This player has had an extraordinary career. He studied law and engineering at Yale, and art in London. Carl Russell and Milan Ghent were among his instructors. It was a number of years later, and by chance, that he became a screen actor.

J. Farrell MacDonald

After Al Jolson left Warner Brothers, his luxurious dressing room was taken over by Jerome Kern, the composer. For two days, Mr. Kern relates, everything that he composed was in the key of G. At first mystified, he later discovered that the hum of nearby generators was in this key and he had been unconsciously influenced by it.

VAUDEVILLIANS CLICK

Warner Brothers are so pleased with the work of Olsen and Johnson, the vaudeville team, that they will change the name of "Nancy From Naples" to "Oh, Sailor Beware." The ex-two-a-day-headliners play comedy gobs in this musical.

Later, they are to be featured in the talkie version of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." Lloyd Bacon, who did several of the Jolson pictures, will direct this film, and the two romantic leads will be played by William Gaxton and Helen Broderick, both from Broadway. You'll recall that "Fifty Million Frenchmen" also was produced on the stage by the Warners.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Wonder if it is different anywhere else? . . . She's so good, he's no good. All God's chillun on the Canyon are no good . . . She's cheating him, he's two-timing her . . . Wonder if it is different in Camden, or in Tampa, or in Glens Falls, or in Fort Worth? . . . Fannie Brice, won't sing "My Man" nomore.

Oughta write a nice letter to that Cleveland nurse and apologize for what I wrote in answer to hers . . . No wonder she was so discontented . . . Pretty melody to that chorus of "I Remember You from Somewhere" . . . Cute thing that gal from "Vanities" who did the "Bottle" number in the unexpurgated manner at the Abbey . . . Like to punch the guy on the nose who curses and beats chorus girls at rehearsal . . . Oughta throw a blind paragraph at him in the col'm and let him know I'm wise to him, the mouse! . . . Tough about poor "Sonny" Selwyn.

Everybody is going crazy . . . Everybody is a little nuts . . . Can't be the humidity at all . . . Nor the stock market . . . Orgies here . . . Orgies there . . . Cracked ice . . . Mineral waters . . . Women . . . And good Scotch and Golden Wedding Rye . . . "Don't crack. She's married, see?" . . . "Can he help it, if she is crazy about him? She can't stay longer than 4 o'clock as her husband is due back at 5 from some place . . . But she's a nice kid, at that" . . . "Whose girl is that one?" . . . "What do you care? Go ahead, she told me she thinks you're cute" . . . "As soon as Myrtle is through with her date, she's coming up. Can't get away from the date. He's from her home town, Pittsburgh. Her mother is brokenhearted" . . . It isn't the humidity at all . . . It happens when it's winter, too.

That editorial on Bolitho in the World was a honey . . . Glad I knew him . . . Gotta get Ruth to paste it up on the wall where I can look at it . . . Peggy looks so innocent in that picture on the wall . . . Get a load of Woollcott over there sitting on the radio. . . . Morgan sits on pianos, so why can't he give imitations? . . . That Evelyn Laye is plenty pretty . . . Why the devil doesn't Ruth have that colored photo of Broadway framed? . . . Best picture ever saw of the old Stem and she lets it gather dust there . . . Look at that Cohan guy, is he a Grand Guy, or is he a Grand Guy? Hello Walda and Gloria. Daddy loves you so . . . Daddy is making pennies . . . Huh, huh, lotsa pennies, pussycats, so mamma can travel in drawing rooms . . . Get a load of those two flashlights—taken six years apart . . . No steel hairs in that one next to Mrs. W's little boy, Jimmy . . . Look at that one next to Gladys and Mark six years later . . . You get old-looking too fast in this racket.

That Mallin guy has terrific drawing power . . . The business at the Abbey holds up even in this weather and Vallee, who is listed among the Most Popular Attractions, leaves his own night club because of insufficient trade . . . Al Segal's piano playing is genius stuff and if his new "find," Ethel Merman, doesn't top Bee Palmer in another season, then I'm switching to Atheism.

Some of those sin-den managements slay me . . . When will they ever learn that nothing burns up a sucker so much as handing him a $4 couvert charge when he buys wine at $25 a quarter-of-a-pitcher full . . . Hope the stage hand who robbed that chorus boy of his valise on the last night has to buy an operation with the coin. . . . The poor kid had everything in it he owned . . . Times aren't tough enough . . . Must make a note for "Things I Never Knew 'Till Now" that when you put a "Don't Disturb" sign on your door at the Lincoln those maids wake you to ask: "Vot time you want you rum made opp?"

Wonder why that "Sketch Book" femme doesn't lay off him. . . . The libel laws are too strict . . . She busts her own neck getting drunkee and then tells one of Those Lawyers that he did it Because He Has Plenty of Sugar . . . And the dope settles for a mess of it—mustn't have publicity—family reasons . . . Maybe I'm wrong . . . Wonder who that woman is with the six diamonds in her nostrils, three on each smeller? . . . Where'll I go? . . . Mustn't get dizzy again, tonight . . . But where is there to go? . . . Mustn't go to sleep . . . What! And miss something? . . . Missed that fight last night and wouldn't have, if "Potatoes" Lachman hadn't been so obstinate . . . Night club wars are always sweet front page yarns . . . Usually concerns alleged celebrities and they make good pictures . . . Now, if that woman weren't his wife, it would have been a darling! . . . When a man hits his wife in a night club, it isn't news.

QUAINT CROOK DRAMA, FUN STAGE BILL IN STANLEY

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Road to Paradise," a talkie of average entertainment quality, though preposterous in its strain on credulity, and a lively stage show, "Coney Island," make up the bill in the Stanley which had its opening yesterday. "Road to Paradise" is chiefly interesting in the clever manner in which Loretta Young plays twin sisters.

In the stage presentation, presided over by Dick Powell, Sammy Lewis and Patti Moore, in a routine of comedy and dancing, capture the fancy of the audience in the greatest volume. Marietta, seemingly a boneless miss, demonstrates convoluted terpsichore rather amazingly. Clyde Hager is conspicuous chiefly for saffron jokes. And if you must see a wrestling bear "Coney Island" offers the opportunity.

David Broudy's overture and Bernie Armstrong's organ specialty are of the kind to be popular.

'Wild Company' Next In Sheridan Square

"Wild Company," Fox movietone all-talking drama is coming to the Sheridan Square Monday. The leading roles are portrayed by Frank Albertson and H. B. Warner, with Sharon Lynn and Joyce Compton in important roles.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

What Breaks Does a Good Girl Get in Life?

Nary a break, according to Cynthia.

For years and years—18 to be exact—Cynthia has been a good girl. She hasn't petted or danced or smoked or made whoopee. She has cultivated all the virtues which gentlemen advocate so enthusiastically. She has been modest, refined, reliable and home abiding.

And what has she to show for it?

Not a thing—except gobs and gobs of loneliness!

Have the young men of today—who so loudly bewail the passing of the "Dear Old-Fashioned Girl"—beseiged Cynthia with attention because of her righteousness and refinement? Yes, they have not. Instead they have passed her up cold and made whoopee with the wild, wild women of the day who do everything Cynthia doesn't.

So Cynthia has decided to be a wild, wild woman herself. . . . "A petting, smoking, drinking flapper. . . . Then maybe she'll get dates and be popular.

And so, while you're reading her letter, I'm putting it up to you, Jack and Harry and Al and Jim and Bill. Must a girl be a wild woman to get the breaks in 1930?

"Dear Sally—

"I shall tell you my story and I hope you'll agree with me.

"There's no need to describe myself. It's sufficient to say I've been called a 'peach of a kid,' and I'm not hard to look at. . . . But when I draw the line at free-for-all petting I became a back number. Not wanted.

"These boys you meet now-a-days rave about wanting to marry a nice girl sometime, but when you try being nice, why they drop you like you were a hornet or something. And I've found that my good qualities were not enough. I have to become a petting, smoking drinking flapper, to please them and get dates and be popular.

"Well, I shall. I'm tired of staying home, listening to romances over the radio. I intend to live romance, not just hear about it. Let Mother Grundy snort. Let these darned boys rave about their devotion to 'Nice Girls' that they leave sitting at home!

"I'm going to step out, high, wide and handsome. I'm going to have all the fun I can, like the others of my age, and take all that life can offer.

"What breaks does a good girl get? I'll tell you! She gets none! She stays home, waiting for the one and only, while he's enjoying himself with wild women. Fine idea, I'll say! And right here's where I'm changing. I'm no little 'sit-by-the-fire!' Sitting home is too dull and uninteresting for any girl with spirit, even if you do get rewarded by having one of these Wonderful (?) fellows offer you a wedding ring some time within the next thousand years—if at all. CYNTHIA."

Yes, I admit that the wild women do seem to get plenty of attention.

And the nice girl is too often left stranded, listening to the radio.

But I don't think she's left stranded just because she's nice, Cynthia. And I don't think the other girls get the breaks just because they're wild.

I think the "wild women" have a glorious time largely because they're honestly good company—merry, peppy, tolerant, understanding, full of sun and sparkle. They may (and usually do) kiss and smoke, too. But that isn't the basis of their popularity. The real reason men like them is because they're regular guys.

And all too often the nice girl isn't a regular guy.

She's good—she doesn't break any laws or start any scandals. But outside of that, she's apt to be dull as dish-water. She's limp and lacks luster. She feels no stimulation in her own life. But she expects suitors to throng about her and rouse her and make her sparkle. And when they don't, she bitterly concludes that "goodness doesn't pay." She's wrong.

But dullness is always a "pain-in-the-neck."

That, I think, is the answer to part of your problem, Cynthia. But it isn't the answer to all of it. If you want popularity you must acquire the right technique. But you must also pick the right sort of a man.

Violets wouldn't be appreciated in a soap factory.

And neither is virtue appreciated in a gang of rowdies. If you like niceness, go where it grows. And there is niceness amongst modern young men, Cynthia, just as well as amongst modern young women. But you'll have to look for it. Is it worth looking for—and waiting for? I think it is, little girl. If you really love beauty you'll never be satisfied with ugliness. And if you look for beauty in the right way, it will surely come to you.

Will Power Will Win the Seemingly Impossible, Fay King Points Out

LIFE CAN'T LICK YOU, IF YOU HAVE THE WILL TO WIN!
FAY KING
HOLD YOUR HEAD UP AND FORGET WHAT IS NOT WORTH REMEMBERING FOREVER LOOKING BACK GETS YOU NOTHING BUT A PAIN IN THE NECK

By FAY KING

The only really big mistake in life is not being able to live down a mistake.

Life can't lick you if you have the will to win.

Will power can overcome and conquer anything.

In a crisis it is not brawn but will that accomplishes the seemingly impossible. We live in a busy age when even great deeds are soon forgotten. How much quicker small mistakes.

Yet some become so self-centered and regretful that they sink to even greater depths.

The important thing is the first step upward.

Right about face.

Don't look back. Forget what is best forgotten.

To live down and win over a misstep is a greater credit than never to have stumbled.

Bitterness is a boomerang.

Forget. Begin over. WIN!

Madge Fears Boys Will See Revolver Safe

The door to Dicky's room was not the only one which had been left ajar. I realized that with a panicky little feeling as across my husband's shoulder I saw our small son and his cousin, Roderick Harrison, standing in the doorway. Behind us there swung wide the door of the small wall safe in which Dicky keeps his revolver. The existence of this safe always has been kept a secret from Junior. Indeed, we did not believe that he knew his father owned a weapon, and we had rested securely in that belief. Now my mind held but one flaming question: Had the boys caught sight of the wall recess and its contents?

There tore at me also the remorseful knowledge that it was my request to unload the revolver which had swung Dicky around facing me and made him forget to lock the tiny door as is his invariable custom. But I had no time to indulge in self-reproach. Instead I made quick mental measurements of angles of vision and decided that our bodies were so screening the little safe as to make it impossible of vision to any one standing in the doorway.

But realization and questioning both gave way to the necessity for action. With only a fraction of a second's hesitation I answered Dicky's query as to what was the matter with an apparently casual salutation to the small boys outside.

"Good-morning, Junior and Roderick," I called cheerily to the two youngsters snug in woolly bathrobes and warm slippers who stood grinning widely at me from the doorway. At the same instant I pinched Dicky's arm in warning, and stepped a pace backward toward the wall, pulling him with me. He caught my cue instantly, and I felt his arm go out behind me, heard the tiny click which told me that the door had been shut, and knew that the danger was over when Dick turned facing the boys.

"Hello! youngsters!" he called, his greeting following mine almost instantly, so swift had been his movements.

"Hello!" the boys returned, and then Junior, always voluble, offered explanations.

"Aunt Katherine sent us down to the bathroom to wash for breakfast," he said, "and when we were coming back we thought we'd better stop and ask you what all the noise was about downstairs."

I heard his father chuckle at his important tone, but there was no mirth in my soul. I was still too shaken by the fear I had had that the inquisitive meddlesome little chaps had seen the revolver and its hiding place. Even though the fear had been dispelled by my realization that Dicky's body and mine had concealed the wall recess, the memory of it was still too fresh with me for any emotion save panic.

"Did Aunt Katherine say you could come down here?" I asked, putting the first question which came into my head.

Junior looked mildly surprised.

"No, she didn't say we could come," he said, "'cause we didn't ask her. You see," he explained carefully, "we didn't think about coming here till a minute ago, when we were talking about the noise. Then we couldn't ask her."

"Your explanation is fully accepted, Junior," his father said, "and I can promise you that neither your mother nor Aunt Katherine will scold you—that is if you hurry back and dress, so that you do not keep breakfast waiting. Now the noise in the kitchen—" Dicky was plainly fumbling for an explanation, and I struck in with a question.

"How did you know about it, Junior? Did it wake you up?"

"No," my small son answered unexpectedly. "You see Roderick waked up awful early thinking about those real tools you said he could have. And he called to me to see if I was awake, too, and I was, for I was thinking about our going today to have a picnic and get the Christmas greens. And then we talked, but real low, so Aunt Katherine in the next room wouldn't wake up. And then we heard an awful screeching. It sounded like Katie. Was it?" He broke off abruptly.

"I'll tell you when you've finished," I said. "You know you never must interrupt yourself in the middle of a story."

"Yes, I know," Junior acquiesced meekly. "But I guess it was Katie, for it sounded like her voice. Then we heard Aunt Katherine jump out of bed, and she called softly to us the way she does when she doesn't know whether I'm asleep or not. And and—and—" Junior unexpectedly floundered.

"You pretended to be asleep and didn't answer her," I said with prescience born of reminiscence.

"Yes," Junior admitted. "You see I was waiting for Rod to answer, and he was waiting for me, and before we knew it, Aunt Katherine had gone out of the room. But I told Rod not to worry, Katie was probably scared of somebody, but that my dad would fix anybody that got too fresh. He'd shoot 'em with his revolver."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, July 12

A day of mediocre attainment, with affairs moving in rather routine grooves, is the presage based on the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. The disposition may be toward industry and application, but in a rather gloomy, dogged or ironical frame of mind, which may also tend to introspection or chaotic or visionary attitudes. It is suggested that correspondence and conversation be reduced to a minimum under this sarcastic mental tendency.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of steady application to the affairs in hand, with rather routine precision, but in a mental attitude that may be introspective, peculiar, chaotic and with a tendency to caustic and sarcastic speech and writings. These may cause unhappy conditions in personal as well as business relations.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be a steady and industrious worker, but may have to subdue a mental state of confusion, secretiveness or sarcastic and caustic expression.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Wrong Diet May Cause Dandruff

Dandruff is one of the most common diseases of the scalp. It is caused by over-activity of the oil-producing glands of the scalp. This increased activity of the oil glands of the scalp causes excessive greasiness of hair. In consequence there may be a constant shower of dry, white or yellow, fine scales from the scalp.

DR. COPELAND

Dandruff is known to the medical profession as "pityriasis capitis." Pityriasis is derived from the Greek word meaning "bran." You will see that the description, "Bran-like scales on the head," is well chosen.

There are diseases of the skin on other parts of the body, where multitudes of scales form. After these are brushed off others appear.

Persons who suffer from constipation are apt to have this symptom. In the past it has been thought to be caused by a germ, but it would seem to be more a matter of wrong eating. Excessive consumption of fats, like butter, cream or pork, will aggravate the trouble.

Keeping the scalp or hair immaculately clean is the only treatment that will bring relief. For a man this is an easy matter, but for the woman with long hair it is much more difficult of treatment. It is well to wash the hair twice a week, with massage of the scalp. Alcohol or strong bay rum should be applied freely and thoroughly rubbed into the scalp.

In washing the hair use a good soap. There are so-called "hard-water soaps" made to form a satisfactory lather in hard water. Wet the hair, work up a good lather, rub it into the scalp with the fingers, and then rinse it out well. Do this a second time, for a second washing will remove all the remaining oil and scales.

One of the secrets of a good shampoo lies in a series of thorough rinsings, using an abundance of warm water. Unless the soap is removed entirely it will add substance to the already dandruff-covered scalp.

It is wise for a person who is troubled with constipation and has dandruff to do everything to overcome the intestinal laziness. The diet should be extremely simple, as free from fats and oils as possible.

Let me repeat that one of the most important things to do is to keep the bowels open at all times. I say this because it is commonly overlooked that almost universally those who have dandruff and over-activity of the oil glands, particularly among young persons, are constipated.

The object of the treatment for dandruff is to dry up the secretions of the scalp and limit the activity of the sebaceous or oil glands.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Precious Jewel

Next to good sportsmanship, the quality that counts most in marriage is loyalty.

In that bright tiara, which most women and a lot of men expect to wear in heaven, the biggest and most glittering jewel will be Loyalty.

* * *

Many a proud woman, who has shut her eyes to faithfulness in her husband, would never have forgiven him for a moment of disloyalty.

A loyal wife may not always be an angel; she may sometimes be a thorn in the side. But she is never a ball-and-chain around a man's ankle on the road to success. She is his booster, cheer-leader and best press-agent.

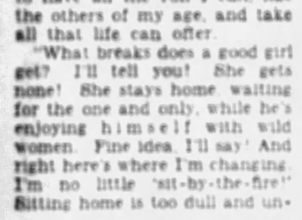
She will always rise promptly to her husband's defense in a quarrel or an argument, even though she may go home afterward and haul him over the coals for being so "unreasonable."



She will valiantly maintain her allegiance to the stand he has taken in the community feud or the town election—even while she privately implores him to be "less pig-headed."

She will annihilate the woman who hints that he has been seen lunching with a blonde—and then go home and examine his coat-lapel for golden hairs or the trace of an unfamiliar perfume.

* * *

She will swear without a quiver of the eyelash that he never touches anything stronger than water—and then sniff his breath, suspiciously, and gaze into the whites of his eyes, to see if she is right.

* * *

She will never fail to boast stoutly that her husband's acts, motives and judgment are perfect and unassailable—even though she often wonders privately why he "does so many fool things."

* * *

She will "tell the world" that he is the best husband that ever walked to the altar and took the wedding-vows—even though there may be bitter moments, when she can't help reminding him that she "might have done better."

She will stick to him through thick and never desert him through thin—and all she asks is that he will try to LOOK like the glorified picture she paints of him.

She will insist that the world shall have twice as much faith in his wisdom, integrity, genius and ability as she has, herself. And all she requires is that he will remain "in character," while she does the ballyhooing.

* * *

Loyalty is the most beautiful thing in the world and the strongest link between a man and woman.

We can manage to worry along without romantic love, sex-attraction, and even without money and automobiles. But, no partnership, no friendship and, above all, no marriage can stand long without LOYALTY!

* * *

Funny how little we hear about "loyalty" these days. Yet, we continue to love dogs because they have cornered so much of it.

Household Hints

Brush over the tops of yesterday's rolls with fresh milk and put in a covered pan in the oven to steam through. After they are heated, remove the cover so the crust will crisp up again. They will be like newly baked.

Don't take the children with you on a shopping trip if you can possibly avoid it. It is always hard to concentrate on your buying if you have restless children with you, and they will always tire first and curtail your shopping.

Bamboo rakes are much better for the lawn than the old ones of iron. The rake is lighter and the finer prongs will remove the leaves and grass without injuring the new growth.

If you want a cigarette that is milder and of better taste..

Smoke Chesterfield

MILDER, YES—BUT SOMETHING MORE. Chesterfield offers richness, aroma, satisfying flavor.

BETTER TASTE—that's the answer; and that's what smokers get in Chesterfield in fullest measure—the flavor and aroma of mellow tobaccos, exactly blended and cross-blended. Better taste, and milder too!

They Satisfy

AN ATTEMPT WILL be made to bring leaders in the National Open Golf Tournament to the microphone tonight when the CBS System broadcasts from Minneapolis the highlights of the second day's play. WJAS will have the feature at 10 o'clock.

"O Sole Mio" and "Funiculi Funicula" will conclude the Armour program on KDKA at 9:30.

"Make Believe" and "Why Do I Love You?" from "Show Boat" will attract many ears to WCAE at 10 o'clock.

Optimistic as ever, the Cavaliers Quartet will sing "Cheer Up, Good Times are Coming" for Cities Service on WCAE at 8. Jessica Dragonette will open the program with "Romance." Later she will sing Victor Herbert's "Sweet Sixteen."

Pattie Moore

Billy Jones and Ernie Hare will describe the difficulties of the cook in mastering the game of bridge when they sing "Bridget Learning Bridge" on KDKA at 9.

Pattie Moore, Dick Powell, George Dewey Washington, Sammy Lewis and others will entertain over KQV at 6:15.

For her part of "A Summer Eve" on WCAE at 9:30, Virginia Harmon, soprano, has chosen Bowers' "Chinese Flower," Clara Edwards' catchy "Spain" and the ever romantic "Kiss in the Dark" by Herbert.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT Mary Hopple is a Quaker?

THAT a portable set weighing 15 pounds and mounted in a knapsack is being used by Ted Husing in describing the national open golf play at Minneapolis? The set is strapped to the announcer's back, permitting him to move about at will.

THAT doors at WCAE swing the unorthodox way to permit quick entrance and exit of artists?

THAT the cracking of macaroni before a microphone creates the impression of a burning log fire?

THAT stenographers practice dictation by doing a shorthand report of Floyd Gibbons' evening radio talk?

Butch Learns Truth After He Shoots Morgan

CHAPTER XXIII.

When Kent saw Morgan approach he stared at him in frozen terror, and flattened instinctively against the wall. He attempted a scream—but accomplished only a dry, noiseless wheeze. He stood a moment in the doorway of the cell and looked out over the corridor below, where Butch's men were fighting their losing battle.

He knew that when the gang realized there was no chance in their desperate last stand, they would find out and kill him. There would be no time for arguments and explanations then. Morgan decided to sell his life for what it was worth. He threw open the chamber of the pistol which he had taken from Olson and saw that there were but three loaded shells in it.

He extracted the spent ones, reached into his pocket and drew out three others. As he slid them into the chamber, Kent, who had been watching him in mad horror, believing the gun was being loaded to shoot him, slumped to the floor, uttering strange, half-articulate animal yelps.

Morgan turned and looked down at him. Kent raised his face in supplication.

"Don't kill me!" he slobbered. "For God's sake, lay off. I swear I didn't want to squeal. They forced me. They told me they'd let me go—free—if I did. I couldn't stand it here—I was going crazy! I didn't mean to sell them out. Don't tell Butch. I didn't plant that knife on you . . . I didn't . . ."

"You'd beg an' lie at the gates o' judgment. I'd hate to waste a good bullet on you," sneered Morgan.

Butch After Morgan

"Don't kill me! Don't please! I didn't mean it! Oh, God, don't hurt me—Anne!—Anne! Save me! Save me! Save me!"

At the sound of her name Morgan lost all control. His face went blue with fury.

"Keep her name out of it—damn you!—or I'll shoot you with her name on your purple lips!"

Then Morgan dropped his arms helplessly. He remembered his promise to Anne. Kent, seeing him thus and realizing, with the last cunning of a man on the threshold of death, his chance, slipped past Morgan and ran out the door. Morgan did not try to stop him or follow him. "Anne"—in this tragic phantasmagoria, this human idiocy of love and blood and revenge and self-preservation and slaughter and all society against a handful of anti-socials—her name! her pure, white, forgiving, faithful Christian name!

The tears popped from his eyes. Then he laughed. It was all so dramatic, all so anti-climatic—all so sublime, all so absurd!

"Haul out another guard!"

Through the bedlam of shots, yells and splintering of glass, Morgan heard Butch's behemoth voice. The place reeked and roared with dead and dying. Morgan could hardly see for the smoke. It choked him, but he dared not cough.

"The door's locked!" Morgan heard Joe call back.

"Curtains—I guess we're cleaned up. Everybody's breezed. I wanted to get Morgan myself, though."

"Butch! Butch!" Joe was calling.

"Yeah?"

"There's Morgan—up there on the second tier."

"Morgan!"

With a delirous whoop he ran around to the steps. Morgan heard them nearing the cell. When they were a brief distance away he said, and he meant business:

"Stay where you are, Butch!"

"I'll get you now—you—"

"Listen, Butch you're nuts—I didn't turn you up. I can't powwow with you now—if you come a step further I'll plug you—an' you know me."

Joe Is Shot

Joe raised his gun and fired. The bullet struck the corner fo the cell door, bounced like a handball and fell at Morgan's feet. Morgan poked his hand out, took a no-time aim, exposing his face, and fired. The bullet hit Joe in the arm and his gun dropped.

"I'm hit, Butch! He done it—"

Butch only growled. Both darted into the next cell to the one where Morgan was entrenched. Meantime, the guards outside, evidently emboldened by the lack of return of their fire, had crept up to the cell-house and had tossed teargas bombs. The fumes were beginning to mount in horizontal streaks.

Morgan stood his post at the door. Under the stress of the excitement he had reverted to type. He was now the gangster on the defensive—abysmally hard, fearless, heartless. He called to Joe, who was moaning:

"I warned you fair, Joe. I didn't rat on your gang—and I'm not goin' to take the slap for nothin'. You ain' after no sucker—lay off or I'll bump you off."

"You squealin' swine," Butch shouted. "If you stick your dome out o' that there cell door, I'll pot a slug between your cheatin' lamps."

Meantime, Pop Riker had staggered from his bunk and drew himself alongside of Morgan.

"Get back!" ordered Morgan, pushing the guard toward the bunk. But Pop Riker wouldn't be so easily quieted. He called:

"Butch, do you hear me? This is Pop Riker. I'm in the coffin with Morgan. You're wrong, Butch—Morgan didn't buss on you. I swear it— he never rattled no tin cup——"

"You're a liar!" roared Butch in maudlin rage. "even the screws is backstoppin' the rat. Come on, Joe—I'm going in and get the both of 'em—you got the guts to be in on the play?"

Morgan heard the feet of the two men scraping along the concrete floor. He jabbed out his rod and fired, "by ear." The teargas was floating into the cells. Morgan felt his eyes burn. He heard Joe's distorted voice:

"Wait! My eyes, Butch. They got me—my eyes!"

Morgan Wounded

"Gas," growled Butch. "I suck it for desert."

"Let's get out of here," from Joe. I'm going blind."

Morgan felt his own eyes begin to water. He heard the other two grumbling. The rarified ether of the bombs had decreased the visibility in the place. Morgan could hardly see his hand before him. But he felt his hand before him.

"I'm goin' to get Morg—I'll see him dead if that's the last thing I ever see," snarled Butch.

"Hold it, Butch," Morgan warned. He could hear Butch's labored breathing.

"You filthy, spyin', spewin—"

Morgan pulled. At the same time the pistols of both Butch and Joe rang out. A whirl of gas almost obscured the figures of the other two men now in the door. All were firing, close range, point-blank. Morgan felt a sharp pang in his shoulder and another in his calf. He saw the great hulk of Butch flop. Joe was choking and coughing and crazily feeling for—somewhere.

"I got him! I got him!" cried Butch, squirming on the floor.

Morgan had taken him back in the cell.

"Pass me more cartridges, Joe. I want to make a good job of it." Butch blithered hoarsely. "Killin' him once ain't enough."

"Shut up Butch, you've settled your pal," said Pop Riker, leaning over Morgan.

Kent Killed

"Lemme finish him—he ain't dead yet." Butch's voice was growing weaker. "I'm Butch—the Killer——"

"Shut up, you clown, it was Kent who tipped off Wallace—not Morgan—Kent! Kent!"

"What y'mean Kent?"

"Yes, Kent—he's the traitor."

Butch laughed long and loud and his laugh rattled off to a moribund gurgle in his throat.

"Kent—ha! ha! — they got Kent—riddled him like a sieve. So he would—that skirt, he's just the type—Kent! Wow!"

"Where are you, Morg?" he called.

"Here, Butch, here," answered Morgan, faintly.

"Did I drill you, Morg?"

"It ain't bad, Butch—are you hurt? Lemme see . . . Gee, I hate to see a good guy lam—inside the gates."

"You can't nick ol' Butch—no metal can touch me—lead—or even copper! I'm glad it wasn't you what peached, Morgie. Mitt me—we're old cellmates, ain't we?"

Morgan gave him his rocking hand.

"I know, pal. You never had me pegged queer."

"Not you, buddy—not you. It was Kent. He welched an' yammered the first night, didn't he? . . . I feel funny, Morgie—I ain't Butch tonight. What happened? It was Kent, huh? Ha-ha, . So you copped his frail—'at's like you, Morgie, hope you keep her—tell her about me—Butch, the Killer—sometimes, huh? Sometimes? some——"

The fishy claw of the one-time killer fell away, finger by finger.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXXI.

So the flat was closed and Kathleen went off on the road, her heart high with a sense of adventure, yet a little low because of some one she was leaving behind. Frank Young, an impetuous and clever newspaperman whom she had met through her brother, had become an emotional factor in her life. She admitted as much to Anne.

"That's one reason why I'm taking this road-company job," she said frankly. "It will keep me away all summer, and by then I ought to be sure. I am sure when I'm with him, but I've been that before," said wise Kathleen, "and it's being away that counts. If I don't miss him as much as I'm afraid I'm going to—why, that's proof enough."

"Has he asked you to marry him?"

"Yes. Of course, he has. The first time I met him, for that matter!"

"If you marry him, will you stay on the stage?" Anne asked, feeling that this young sister of hers had matured amazingly in the last year.

"Of course. Frank doesn't mind. He likes it," Kathleen told her. I'd like to have a baby," she announced further, "but there's plenty of time for that. We've talked it over."

"You've talked it over, and still haven't said you'd marry him?" Anne asked.

"Not yet. Not until I get back from the road. Not until I'm sure," Kathleen answered. But her eyes were sure as she spoke.

Kathleen gone, Anne moved back to the red brick house.

Her mother told her flatly: "You're not happy."

"Of course I am. What makes you think such a thing?"

"You're not," her mother insisted—"not the way a girl should be who's looking forward to her wedding."

Mother Doubtful

"Girls don't sit on silk cushions and hem napkins and dream and flutter and swoon the way they used to," Anne told her. "I'm perfectly happy, and Ted and I understand each other."

"I doubt that," Mrs. Murdock denied instantly. "There isn't a man and woman living who understand each other. If they did," she added with unconscious cynicism, "they'd never fall in love, much less marry. Of course, it's natural for a girl to have—misgivings. All of them do. I did. But I married your father and I've never really regretted it, although I used to think I did when you were all small and there wasn't . . . h money, and it was summertime and hot in the kitchen, and I had an ailing baby or two to look after and fret over. But that wasn't regret, really. It was lack of faith in my own strength. You'll know, some day, when you've children of your own."

Children?

Ted "liked kids." He said so; he acted as if he did. Anne had seen him with Jim's uproarious pair.

Children—hers and Ted's!

She tried to face that veiled future. Kathleen's open discussion of it had brought the matter close. And here her mother was talking, hinting . . .

But Anne's first response to Ted's love-making had vanished. It had produced in her loneliness and her tired heart and her grief; born too of the natural demands of her unblunted senses.

His kisses, his arms about her, had brought her a certain comfort. And she had thought, her lips warm under O'Hara's and her heart longing for Lawrence Eaton, that that forbidden dreaming, that perilous make-believe, would lessen, would vanish and leave her wholly Ted's. But it had not.

This she had faced as the weeks went by. And had faced also that dreams are not nourishment for healthy young appetites. There came, inevitably, a time when Ted's arms and Ted's lips were, as she had hoped, just Ted's—and not, in imagination, another's.

But once released from her imagination, once robbed of their dreaming, deluding quality, they left her indifferent, cold. And lately Ted had complained bitterly.

"Why won't you kiss me? Why do you always put me off?"

She knew why and could not answer. If she was so numb to Ted's ardor now, what would become of her as Ted's wife?

Anne Explains

This realization came to her, not suddenly but painfully and slowly, over the first part of that summer in the sweltering red-brick house.

And when it no longer could be evaded, she knew that she could not marry O'Hara. And after a time she told her mother so and told her why—in part, with no mention of Eaton.

Mrs. Murdock was unastonished, but indignant. "I knew it," she said, "and you knew it all along. It's not been like you, Anne, to keep the boy dangling like this."

She was ashamed of her daughter and said so, and Anne answered humbly:

"I don't blame you. I've been dishonest with Ted and with myself. It was a way out, an escape. I truly thought, when I said I'd marry him, that I could come to care the way I should—the way he wanted me to."

"You must tell him at once," said her mother.

Ted was taking his vacation. He had not left the city, but was staying with three other young men in a bungalow at Manhattan Beach. This was in order to be near Anne and to get the exercise he loved: tennis, handball, swimming.

Decides to Tell Ted

The evening of her talk with her mother, Anne was terribly restless. Having made up her mind, she was impatient to have the whole thing settled. Ted had said something about a party—moonlight swimming—that night and had offered to drive in and take her down. She had refused, and he'd been hurt and angry about it.

Sometime after supper, she put on her hat, slipped a white flannel coat over her sheer sleeveless dress and spoke to her mother.

"I'm going to drive down to the beach and talk to Ted," she told her. "I must. I can't go on a minute longer."

"You've gone on the better part of a year," her mother inforr'ed her. "Can't you wait until tomorrow?"

"No. Please, please understand," Anne begged. "I've been such a fool, and so unfair. I can't go through another night, thinking, thinking."

"You can't go down there alone with a party going on."

Anne argued that she knew Ted's friends. They wouldn't think it strange. The party didn't amount to anything, just a few young people going for a swim and building a beach fire.

"I'll be going with you," said her mother. And that was that.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When Meeting Acquaintances While Dining Out

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—A girl is dining with her escort and four other couples when a young man friend of hers, who is a stranger to her group, stops at her table. Should she introduce him to her entire party?

2. Isn't it proper for him to ask for a dance under the circumstances?

3—If she accepts, with her escort's consent, and the chap asks her to stop at his table to meet some of his friends, is the girl being rude to her escort—providing she does not stay longer than necessary?

CAROLYN.

1—This introduction is not necessary. And the people who are the most accustomed socially do not do this. Indeed, this kind of promiscuous introduction is considered a bit provincial.

2—It isn't necessary for him to ask for a dance. But it is proper, if he wishes.

3—No, she will not be rude if she stops only a minute or so—but it must not be longer.

Inviting a Young Man to a Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it polite for a girl to hold to a car strap while standing?

2. What is the best way to ask a young man to a party? I do not want to write, but want to ask him verbally.

3. Is it all right for a girl to send a boy a postcard or rather to telephone him? M. S.

1. That's what they are for, lady! And we had best use them for our own and our neighbor's safety.

2. It is the best form to write a note of invitation, unless you know the man exceptionally well. It is obvious that it is more thoughtful for us to send such an invitation so that it will be made easy for the man to "regret" the invitation if he wishes to.

3. It is friendly, if she is traveling, for a girl to send a man a postcard, to greet him. But it is wiser for her not to telephone him unless it is really necessary for her to do so.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

With new frocks with little short sleeves one needs a pair of perfect arms. Round, young arms love abbreviated shoulder puffs. An excellent rejuvenating treatment is accomplished by massaging with a heavy cream, powdering over with almond meal, applying steaming moist towels, then bathing with cold water, to which simple tincture of benzoin has been added. It is a combined softening and whitening arm-bracer.

Let the girl who yowls and weeps about oily hair lay in a stock of straw hats. Felt ones keep the scalp too hot and stir all the little oil gushers to a state of abnormal activity. Oily hair needs ventilation. It should be worn bouffant if possible, not sleeked down flat. Wiping the strands with a soft cloth that has been dipped in eau de cologne will remove some of the oil when a shampoo is not convenient.

BANKER WEDS MISS SCOTT

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—Smart society gathered here yesterday for the marriage of Miss Jean Brown Scott of Stratford, Pa., and Donald Weston Darby, of Philadelphia, banker, aviation enthusiast and former college athlete. The ceremony was performed in Washington Memorial Chapel by the Rev. W. Herbert Burk.

The bride, daughter of John B. K. Scott, Philadelphia attorney, and Mrs. Scott, is one of America's best-known horsewomen and had won ribbons at most of the important horse shows.

In 1926 she broke off her engagement to Nigel Claudian Coleman, member of the British Parliament, and a retired captain of the British Royal Air Force. The only reason given a week before the ceremony was a statement from her father that Miss Scott had decided her temperament and Coleman's were not congenial.

The wedding is the culmination of a friendship that started in the school days of the young couple.

After a honeymoon in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Darby will live in their New York home at Glenhardie Farms, the estate of the bride's parents at Strafford.

More than 200 boys from the North Boroughs Branch "Y" and the Uniontown and Greensburg Y. M. C. A.s will enter camp for a month's stay, Martin said.

TOOK KONJOLA YEAR AGO; ITS RESULTS ENDURE

That Modern Medicine Gives More Than Mere Temporary Relief Is Proven In This Case.

Quit experimenting . . . quit groping as if in the dark for the right medicine. Put your faith in Konjola, the new and different medicine, for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

MRS. V. B. HICKMAN

And Konjola does far more than bring mere temporary relief, as is illustrated in the case of Mrs. V. B. Hickman, 705 Arch Street, Pittsburgh. A year ago Mrs. Hickman told how this master medicine ended a severe case of nervousness, kidney and stomach trouble that had made her life miserable for ten years. Day after day Konjola has continued to win amazing victories in Pittsburgh, of which the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, will gladly tell you. Just recently, after a whole year had elapsed, Mrs. Hickman eagerly tells of the wonderful health she still enjoys, and gives all credit to Konjola. She made the following statement:

"When I endorsed Konjola about a year ago, I told how only two bottles of this splendid medicine gave me amazing relief from indigestion, nervousness and kidney trouble. Well, I continued taking Konjola until I had used eight bottles. By that time I had regained my health, strength and vitality, and I am happy to say that these feelings of good health have remained with me ever since. I am still amazed at the way Konjola worked in my case, and I can't find words to express my gratitude for Konjola, the master medicine, if there ever was one."

Konjola contains no alcohol; no nerve-deadening drugs; no heart-depressing chemicals. It is designed to give thorough and lasting relief. Like any worthwhile treatment, Konjola should be taken from six to eight weeks, giving it a chance to produce the best results. And the results will amaze you, as they have countless thousands of men and women.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

PHOTOS SPUR BRIDGE RAIL REPAIR

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

In a certain Pittsburgh morning paper a few days ago there appeared in the "For Sale" column, this short story:

"Beautiful Heywood-Wakefield English baby coach, brand new, never used, bought for one, we got twins——"

At Grant street and Sixth avenue the other day something happened which pleased a crowd. An automobile plastered with signs advertising the convention of Fraternal Order of Police and the police field meet was parked on a no-parking street and, what's more, too near an intersection. A policeman came along and promptly tagged the car, which belonged to Harry Hyer, an official of the Fraternal Order of Police. This incident proves there is no such thing as influence with the police, and now it's your turn to tell one.

Pitt's Dr. Bowman, one of Sidewalks' favorite educators, has returned from Europe with a new admiration for the sovereign state of Minnesota, not one of Sidewalks' favorite states. The good doctor received a splendid reception from the people of Norway. Everybody in Norway seems to have a son in Minnesota. With this bond of Americanism between them, Dr. Bowman and the Norwegians had a good time together. Dr. Bowman himself has no particular feelings for or against Minnesota, but he did not betray his neutrality to Norway. He may write a book "Minnesota, What It Means to Me."

Between 200 and 300 young men have just begun a year's work for nothing. They are interns attached to Pittsburgh hospitals. A few months ago they were graduated from medical schools and assigned to various hospitals. At the end of the year the hospitals will give each a gift of from $50 to $100 (a few don't give anything) and then the young men will be privileged to practice medicine. The internes are on duty 24 hours a day, sleeping and eating at their hospitals. If a hospital patient complains in the middle of the night, the interne is called. If he feels the patient has taken a serious turn for the worst, he must call the attending physician from bed. Internes are not allowed to practice on serious cases. The interne seldom complains about this year's internship because, following three or four busy, difficult years in medical school, he welcomes the change.

A near tragedy occurred in a Pittsburgh bank a few days ago. Discovery was made that $10,000 was missing and the clerk who seemed to feel that he was responsible promptly fainted away. While he remained in more or less of a faint, the officials checked and learned that $10,000 too much had been sent to the Federal Reserve Bank. The Federal people, being honest, promptly returned the money and the clerk immediately regained his composure. No runs, no hits, one error.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 11.

The Lindberghs have always known they would call the baby Charles Augustus, but what has held them up all this time was whether to use the Jr. on the end or not. So they finally decided to use it.

The picture shows him sleeping with his eyes shut and his mouth open. So he don't take after his father. He slept with his eyes open, and his mouth shut.

Was with Flo Ziegfeld this morning. The present show, in our old Follies theater, the New Amsterdam, was raided by the police yesterday. He says show business is getting pretty tough when you have to guarantee a raid with each ticket.

Yours,

WILL.

THIRD CLASS CITIES BLUE LAW FOES

McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne Vote 5-1 for Repeal in Current Poll

Results of the poll of Wilkinsburg, last and largest borough of the county, and five townships, Harmar, Indiana, Wilkins, Patten and Penn, will be published tomorrow. Final results for the county will be published Sunday.

McKeesport, second city of Allegheny County, throws the weight of its influence back of the widespread demand for removal of the Eighteenth Century yoke upon Sunday recreation by a preponderant majority in the Blue Law poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph.

The other two third class cities of the county, Duquesne and Clairton, join with McKeesport to produce a collective ratio of five votes for repeal to each vote for enforcement, about the same proportion shown by their second-class neighbor, Pittsburgh.

Each of McKeesport's 11 wards oppose the Blue Law and more than 2,000 voters of McKeesport give a majority of 4.3 to 1 for repeal, while Duquesne and Clairton give majorities of 7 to 1. The totals are:

	Enforcement.	Modification.	Repeal.
McKeesport	368	163	1,587
Duquesne	61	34	476
Clairton	59	39	431
Total	488	256	2,494

Ballots from the third-class cities total 3,238, representing 27 per cent of the 11,637 votes cast in these cities in the May primary.

Four additional townships, Shaler, Snowden, West Deer and Reserve, enter the lists of opposition to the closed Surday, giving a total ratio of four votes for repeal to one vote for enforcement. The totals are:

	Enforcement	Modification	Repeal
Shaler	31	25	185
Snowden	50	20	122
West Deer	38	22	124
Reserve	9	6	74

Their total vote, 706, is 23 per cent of the number of ballots cast in the four divisions at the May primary.

CLEAR GROUND FOR INSTITUTE

The Mellon Institute soon will clear the ground on the old Lloyd property, Fifth and Bellefield avenues, to begin excavation for its new building. The structure will house all the activities of the institution.

The contract for the removal of the old Lloyd residence, which occupies the plot, has been given to the John Eichleay Jr. Company. Application was made yesterday for a permit to move the house across Bellefield avenue. It will be placed on the University of Pittsburgh property and will be used until the new institute building is completed. The Lloyd residence has been occupied as laboratories for several fellowships, and during the removal operations the paraphernalia of these will not be disturbed.

Pittsburgher Hurt In Freedom Crash

Clarence Miller, of Filbert street, was brought to St. Francis Hospital from Freedom, Pa., last night, suffering from slight injuries as a result of an automobile crash near that place. He was riding in a car driven by W. E. Close, of Ben Avon, which was struck by one driven by Harry Hill, of Freedom, police said.

$200 Each to Sons $11,000 for Daughters

The will of Mrs. Ida Porter Brown, of Verona road, Penn Township, leaves a $12,000 estate to her children. Two daughters, Miss Ida Brown and Miss Eva Brown, receive a farm in Penn Township and a dwelling in Verona, and four sons each receive $200.

Camera Looking at Rotting Rail on Smithfield Street Bridge

TOP JUST MISSING! One of the rail uprights on the Smithfield Street Bridge.

WIRED TOGETHER! Haywire holds the rail sections to this particular upright.

WHAT IF CROWD, ATTRACTED BY RIVER ACTIVITY, PUSHED? The rambling rail at about the middle of the span. Notice the missing top-guard and the unevenness of line along the top.

HOW STRONG'S THIS? Just another upright, but for how much longer will it be?

COLLAPSE APPEARS NEAR

Twisted Wire Holds Section; Engineer Inspects Defects, Orders Work at Once

Spurred to action by photographs in today's Sun-Telegraph revealing rotting railings on the Smithfield Street Bridge, Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer, city department of public works, ordered necessary repairs made immediately.

The appearance of the rail indicated it would probably collapse should an unthinking crowd attracted by some sight on the river lean heavily against it. At several points members were entirely rusted away, and one section is held together by twisted wire.

Reppert said he personally would inspect the work late today. The bridge is an old span, having been built in the '80s, he said, and that for some time the city has been doing emergency work when urgent.

Reppert said:

"A new bridge will be an absolute necessity soon.

"Only a limited sum is provided for bridge repairs each year, and we can make only those that are most needed. The South Twenty-second Street Bridge is in even worse condition, but repairs estimated to cost $20,000 have been authorized for that structure.

"To make complete repairs to the Smithfield Street Bridge would cost a larger sum, as new foundations of the handrails would be necessary."

MICHAEL, GREETING THE DETECTIVES

What Has Gone Before

Alvin Merle, famous Broadway stage star, is mysteriously murdered in his dressing room after an evening performance. Robin Dale, reporter, finds Capt. Blake and Sergt. Jardin, of the Homicide Squad, at work on the case. Michael, stage-door keeper, and Murray Clyde, the stage manager, are questioned. All the testimony shows that no one entered or left the dressing room during the period Merle was killed. A single window in the room is iron-barred. A mysterious face suddenly appears at the window. It is Permela Gregory, Merle's leading lady, who was in love with him. In a theater across an alley from Merle's is the dressing room of Merle's wife, known professionally as Etheline Wynne. Visiting this room, Dale finds the torn card of Ralph Byrnes, well-known gambler. The police next day discover that Byrnes and Etheline Wynne leased an exclusive apartment in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Byrnes, before Alvin Merle's death.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER V.

A period of dead silence followed this bombshell. The eyes of Etheline and Byrnes met as though each were striving to question the other. The man was the first to speak.

"Now I'm sure you know everything. Great work, captain."

"I'll explain, Ralph." There was a steely note in the actress' voice. "No use denying what you gentlemen very cleverly discovered. But there are some things you do not know. You're probably wondering why I'm not in tears because of my husband's death. Well, the truth is, I'm not sorry . . . I haven't loved him for five years and we were only married for six! Parmela Gregory wasn't the first woman, nor the last, nor the only one. Long ago I had gotten to the point where I didn't care and the only thing I wanted from him he wouldn't give me—a divorce. Said it would hurt his standing in the profession. I tried to get evidence but a woman needs a lot of it in this state and I failed. I've loved Ralph for over three years and we've been decent about it. Finally—there was no other way, and I'm not ashamed. We're going to be married now.

"But I can tell you this much: there's a woman concerned in it. I know, because it has been in my heart, often!"

Byrnes rose and came beside Etheline's chair. She raised her hand and he took it in his. For these two there was nothing more to be said. Shortly thereafter Wilfred Sands let them go. She put her arm through his as they went out of the door. Capt. Blake was the first to speak.

"What an actress!"

"What a fool Merle was." It was Dale. Etheline had left a deep impression on him. "A remarkable woman . . . courage enough to do anything. But I'm wondering . . ." He paused.

"Wondering what, Dale?" The district attorney wanted Dale's views on the case.

"I'm wondering, if she committed a crime, whether her courage wouldn't carry her through to the point of coming in here and tell the truth about it."

"You're wrong, boy," said the captain decisively. "There's one law above all of them: self-preservation. They didn't answer a question and still they told us all we wanted to know—and more. Tangible evidence—we haven't a bit of it yet. If we were sure they did it, we couldn't hold them."

"By the way, is Michael, the doorman, coming in today?"

"Mr. Sands wants to look over the scene of the crime. We've arranged to be at the theate, at 3 this afternoon. Want to be there?"

"Try and keep me away."

Robin Dale was waiting outside the theater when Blake drove up with the district attorney. Sergt. Jardin was with them. As they walked up the tiny alley, Dale stepped beside the detective.

"Good work, Sarge, how'd you dig up all the dope on Byrnes and Wynn so quick?"

"Even if I tried to explain that strange phenomenon you wouldn't be able to grasp it. Have a cigaret?"

"You and I are getting to understand each other, Sarge."

At first they were able to elicit nothing from Michael other than what he had already told them. It was Robin Dale's question which brought out the information they wanted and opened up the second startling and unexpected phase of the case.

"Michael, didn't anything happen yesterday, or perhaps the day before, that concerned Mr. Merle—in any way?"

"Now that you put it that way, there was a young lady come in just before the curtain went up and asked for Mr. Merle. She seemed terribly excited and I had a hard time keeping her from running on to the stage. You see, Mr. Merle was on at the rise and used to sit out there sometimes five or 10 minutes before curtain."

"Why didn't you say that before?" growled Jardin.

"But ye didn't ask me."

GULF BUILDING PERMIT ASKED

Representatives of the Gulf Refining Company and the Mellon Stuart Company yesterday applied for the permit for the $4,000,000 super-structure of the Gulf Building to be erected at Grant street and Seventh avenue. E. E. Appel, engineer in charge for the Gulf company, and Roy A. Clark, engineer of the Mellon Stuart Company, presented plans yesterday to H. L. Ley, superintendent of Bureau of Building Inspection.

The plans show that a 40-story building is to be erected on the foundation, which is within two weeks of completion. The foundation, permit for which was issued last February, cost approximately $250,000. The building is expected to be completed for occupancy by May, 1932. It will be 580 feet in height from the street to the ornamental cupola and approximately 12,000 tons of steel will be used in construction.

City inspectors will immediately begin an inspection of the foundation. As soon as the permit has been issued, workmen will start erecting steel.

Mother's Dream Reveals Son's Body in Morgue

The dream of Mrs. Albert F. Uhl, of 211 Moye street, Mt. Oliver, that the body of her stepson, missing for three weeks, lay in the county morgue, became a reality when her husband found the body there.

Oscar A. Uhl, 25, was killed June 15 when an allegedly stolen automobile he was driving collided with another car on Brownsville road, near the Brentwood Municipal building. Uhl suffered injuries which caused his death a short time later. The body was removed to the morgue, where it lay unidentified until last night.

'Kick' in Root Beer, Mrs. Pennington Declares

POPULAR HOME PRODUCT HELD VIOLATION

W. C. T. U. Hears Ginger Ale Put Under Suspicion by State Director of League

By AL. GOUGH,
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

RIDGEVIEW PARK, Pa., July 11. — Ginger ale and home-made root beer were condemned as alcoholic beverages at the annual inter-county institute of the W. C. T. U. of Southwestern Pennsylvania in the closing session of a two-day conference here today.

Root beer made in the home in accordance with the usual family recipe, it was revealed by Mrs. John D. Pennington, wife of the Prohibition Administrator, contains three times the alcoholic content allowed by law.

'KICKLESS COCKTAIL'

The revelations of Mrs. Pennington were made in the course of an address in favor of the "kickless" cocktail, which, she declared, "just the thing for that embarrassing pause between a guest's arrival and the time for serving dinner."

Mrs. Pennington, who is the state director for the W. C. T. U. department on non-alcoholic food products, laid before the delegates three of her own recipes for these latest prohibition beverages.

They are the W. C. T. U. special; grape juice and an elderberry toddy.

To six sprays of green mint, Mrs. Pennington prescribes for her W. C. T. U. special, a pint of boiling water and allow to set for five minutes. This mixture she detailed, is strained and then the juice of two oranges and one and a half lemons is added, and to the whole tea leaves and sugar in proportion round out the first beverage.

The directions for the grape juice cocktail follow:

Wash and pick grapes from stems. Take three quarts of cold water to eight quarts of grapes and boil five minutes; then strain through jelly bag. To two quarts of the juice add one half quart of sugar and boil five minutes.

The elderberry toddy is an easy one.

To one heaping tablespoon of elderberry jelly, Mrs. Pennington explained, add one cup of boiling water and then serve with ice.

PENNINGTON THERE

Commander Pennington sat in the audience while his wife spoke.

He and his wife were en route to Philadelphia, new headquarters for prohibition enforcement in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. They remained only long enough for Mrs. Pennington to fulfill her speaking engagement, and then continued East by automobile. Pennington declared:

"I'm sorry to leave Pittsburgh. As to my work, the past must speak for itself. I am going into my new duties realizing that I am facing a tough proposition.

"When I think of New Jersey, Pittsburgh seems lily-white in comparison. There have been some able men in the enforcement service in New Jersey, but they haven't stayed long—six or eight months at the most. I don't know how long I'll stay, but I am determined to do my best.

"There is no need for new laws; more judges or more district attorneys, but an honest administration of the laws we now have.

"I have long wanted to try out that Jones 'five and ten' law on some of those Pittsburgh gangsters—but maybe I'll have an opportunity in the East."

HOW BOAT WENT OVER ASPINWALL DAM

HOW SPEEDING OUTBOARD MOTORBOAT IN LIGHT FOG PLUNGED OVER ROARING DAM

Bound down the river to the day's work, Pete Miller, 26, and Harry Levine, 16, couldn't see the Aspinwall dam in a light fog and plunged over it in their speeding boat.

MAN AND BOY SAVED BY RIVERMEN

Lock Believed Hidden From East End Boaters by Dense Bank of Fog

An East End man and youth were rescued early today by lock attendants after their small outboard motorboat plunged over the spillway at Lock No. 2, on the Allegheny River near Aspinwall.

They gave their names as Pete Miller, 26, and Harry Levine, 16, but did not divulge their street addresses.

The pair apparently were unable to see the lock through the fog which enveloped them, and had no chance to avert the accident. Lockmaster Edward Crowley and Charles Gmuer lowered a skiff over the dam and rescued the pair who were thrown into the water when their craft capsized. The two had removed their clothing when the craft struck the dam.

When they reached the shore they were met with an automobile by two unidentified friends, who had an appointment with them at the lock.

CITY EXTENDS WATER SURVEY

Encouraged by the success of a water survey now being conducted on the South Side, engineers of the Water Bureau plan to extend their activities to other sections of the city, they said today. This survey is conducted by means of special scientific instruments, including outfits for detecting leaks by amplified sound from the escaping water. It is estimated that with the extension of the study the city will be able to save more than $255,000 yearly. Already more than 1,100 repairs to water pipes have been made, 125 of which were underground.

The South Side survey will cost about $25,000, of which $12,000 will be paid to the Pitometer Company, whose experts have aided city engineers, using the instruments owned by the company. Labor and materials used in getting to the leaking pipes and repairing them will cost $13,000.

Seeks to Destroy Big Beer Seizure

A forfeiture libel against 6,000 pint bottles of high test beer was filed in Federal Court by Harold D. Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator, in which he asks that the beer be condemned as contraband and ordered destroyed.

WIFE DEFEATS DIVORCE

Young people who get married should live in a world of their own and steer clear of "in-laws."

That is the advice of vivacious Rose Schreiber, 23, of 2036 Fifth avenue, who contested the divorce action of her husband, awarded in Common Pleas Court when Judge Ambrose B. Reid gave a decree to Harry Schreiber, then appealed to Superior Court and won, that tribunal reversing Judge Reid.

Attorney Warren H. Van Kirk, who represented Mrs. Schreiber in the divorce action, said today he would go into court soon and ask for an increase in the amount of alimony now paid by Schreiber, who operates a garage in Mellon street.

Mrs. Schreiber has a $25,000 alienation suit pending, which she has filed against Morris and Esther Schreiber, 5521 Stanton avenue, her husband's parents, claiming that they were to blame for her husband leaving her.

bother Mr. Merle . . . bless his soul."

"Do you know who the girl was?"

"Sure, I don't have much to do with girls the last few years, so I don't pay any attention to them . . . but she was like the Sargent girl as worked in the company when the show opened."

"It was Belle Sargent, Michael." They all turned at the unlooked-for interruption. It was Murray Clyde. "Merle had been mixed up with her at one time, that's why I discharged her from the company. When she saw me she ran out last night. At first I had a little trouble with Merle about the affair, but he got over it and didn't want to be annoyed with her any more."

"Where does this Sargent girl live?"

"I haven't the least idea. I think she worked last in 'The Nifties.' They might be able to tell you at the Chalmers Theater, but I think you'd be wasting your time, Captain. She's been out of Merle's life for some long time even though she wouldn't believe it."

Jardin failed to get Belle Sargent located that day. The address they gave him at the Chalmers Theater led nowhere. She had moved away six weeks before, address unknown.

The case seemed to have come to a standstill when the second tragedy struck and opened the bloody trail that led to the culprit. Robin Dale had not left his apartment the next morning when the telephone bell rang. It was Capt. Blake.

"We've found Belle Sargent. She was strangled to death in a flat on Fifty-third street!"

TODAY'S QUESTION—How would you remedy the "tag-

A. W. Smith, Jr.

Chairman ommittee, East End — My suggestion for remedying this situation is to get busy and arouse public opinion against tag-fixing and, in that way, bring pressure that will be strong enough to give satisfactory results.

Frank L. Duggan

FRANK L. DUGGAN, chairman Better Traffic Committee, Squirrel Hill—I think the best thing to be done is to find out who it is who is doing the "fixing" and then take those persons from a position in which they can continue. Such people become professional "fixers" and make more trouble.

MRS. HILDA L. HAMMERSCHMIDT, Agent, Squirrel Hill—One solution would be to provide more parking places on side streets, although, of course, there isn't room enough for many more of them. But if something of that sort could be done then people could park their cars conveniently and safely without being tagged.

Mrs. Hilda L. Hammerschmidt

MISS MARY GORDON, switchboard operator, McKees Rocks—I don't think I could make any very valuable suggestions but something ought to be done soon because the situation is obviously an unfair one.

Mary Gordon

EMIL NEDOBYLK, Taxi driver, Oakland — The 'cops' should be more strict about their system of tagging cars and about what cars they tag. Also they should be more careful about handing in the tags and making reports.

Emil Nedobylk

JOHN GILLESPIE, traffic officer, Knoxville—I haven't heard who is "fixing" these tags but whoever it is should be stopped. It would be a good idea for Pittsburgh to follow Chicago's example and prohibit parking in the city except in parking lots.

Gilbert, police said, was arrested in the South Side yards of the P. and L. E. Railroad by a railroad policeman. His name was obtained from a card in his pocket. When it was discovered Gilbert was still in a stupor. Late last night his removal to the hospital was ordered.

TWO CROSSING PERMITS ASKED

The Public Service Commission has been asked by Allegheny County Commissioners and the State Highway Commission to approve construction of two crossings where the relocated Lincoln highway will cross above tracks of the Pittsburgh Railways Company in East Pittsburgh and North Braddock.

Commissioner Samuel A. Walker at a hearing here yesterday was informed one crossing, built of steel, concrete and brick, would span Electric avenue near Ardmore boulevard, North Braddock, for a distance of 260 feet. It would have two 30-foot roadways and have a 15-foot minimum clearance over the car tracks. The cost, estimated at approximately $300,000, would be borne equally by the state and county.

The other crossing, a reinforced concrete span, would cross Bessemer street at South Park, East Pittsburgh. It would be 60 feet long, 40 feet wide and have two six-foot sidewalks. The minimum clearance over the tracks would be 14 feet. The cost, estimated at $32,300, would be borne equally by county and state.

P. R. R. APPLIES FOR RAIL LINK

The Pennsylvania Railroad has filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission an application for the acquisition of the Sharpsville Railroad between Wilmington Junction and New Wilmington. The Sharpsville road, operating under a receivership, has applied for permission to cease operation of the line. The application of the Pennsylvania system is made on condition that the application for cessation of operations of the line is granted.

Should the Pennsylvania acquire the line, it would mean a freight line by way of the Pennsylvania Railroad into the college town. New Wilmington business men presented strenuous opposition to the move of the Sharpsville Company to cease operation.

MEARS PLANE AT FACTORY

DETROIT, July 11.—(Universal.)—John Henry Mears, who will seek to lower the Graf Zeppelin's record in a round-the-world flight, landed at Grosse Ile airport late yesterday for repairs on his Lockheed plane, City of New York.

Piloted by Henry J. Brown, veteran mail flier, Mears made the trip from New York in slightly more than four hours.

Mears explained here that the compression bar in the tail assembly of his plane needed repairs. The new part will be installed at the Lockheed branch today. Afterwards the plane will take off for Chicago.

Mears said the Chicago visit has been arranged for a recheck on instruments and to allow Brown to gain additional familiarity with the plane. He expects to return to New York either tonight or tomorrow morning. The round-the-world flight is scheduled to start early next week.

Hooded Klansmen Attend Rail Policeman's Rites

In full hooded regalia, men and women members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan appeared yesterday at the funeral home of Fred W. Fife, 28, railroad policeman, in Uniondale Cemetery. Fife, a policeman for the Nickel Plate railroad at Cleveland, formerly resided in the West End. His service was conducted by fellow klansmen and auxiliary klanswomen of Pennsylvania Post No 63, South Hills.

Fife died Tuesday, after eight months' illness. Services were held in the Lowrie funeral home, Beaver avenue, after which came the Klan ceremonies at the cemetery. Six uniformed police officers detailed from the Nickel Plate offices in Cleveland acted as pallbearers. They lowered the body into the grave and stood with bared heads as Walter H. Klinzing read the klansmen's farewell. A white robed klansman on the hillside then sounded taps.

Prisoner Faces Murder Charge As Mother Dies

George Wood, 22, who is serving a three and one-half-year sentence in the workhouse for the shooting last April of his aged mother, today probably will be formally charged with murder as a result of the death of the victim last night, police said.

The mother, Mrs. Mathilda Wood, 64, who was paralyzed by the wound, died in the home of relatives at 1245 Resaca place, North Side. Wood, a former inmate of Mayview, shot his mother in the spine in their home, in Orchard street.

At his trial several weeks ago, Mrs. Wood was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher. Tears streamed down the crippled victim's cheeks as she forgave her son. After her forgiveness, the son was sentenced to the workhouse.

The refusal of a physician to issue a death certificate brought deputy coroners to the house. When relatives refused to turn the body over to morgue attaches, police were called and the body was removed to the morgue for an autopsy.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

July Filled With Small Affairs

Have you ever known a month more studded with small informal luncheons and teas and dances than July? It seems to be a special month set apart from the rest for affairs of the kind. It furnishes a bit of variety to the social whirl which during all the other months of the year features such large, formal affairs debuts balls and what not. But it begins to pall on society folks and they welcome the summer months with these smaller events and house parties at summer homes. Many people are entertaining house guests this month, before leaving in August.

Leaving for Lake

The William Breitwieser's of Summit avenue will go to Canadohta Lake in August. Their younger daughter, Dorothea will go to the Lutheran Girls' Camp at Zellanople and Eleanor Louise, their eldest daughter, probably will spend the summer in the White Mountains with classmates from Wooster College, Wooster, O.

Eleanor has Sara McCarrel of Hickory, Pa., as her house guest this week and is entertaining for her and Rebecca Robuns, of Greensburg, and for her cousin, Robert J. Morrow this evening in the Keystone Club. The third week of this month another classmate, Helen Owens, of Wooster, will be Eleanor's house guest. On Saturday evening she will again entertain for her guests and on Sunday afternoon she will have an informal tea.

Gone To Newport

To exclusive Newport have gone Mrs. Paul Tunnell, of Bellefonte street, and her daughter, Helen. They will be the guests of Lillian Newlin at her summer home, the Play House. Miss Newlin is a sister of Mrs. Tunnell.

The J. Twing Brookses of Beaver road, Edgeworth, with their daughters, Bertha and Ruth, leave this week for Hyannisport to spend the summer. They plan to return in September.

The Henry Vaughans and their daughter, Dorothy, their sons, Henry Vaughan, Jr., and George Harold Vaughan, of Bennington avenue, will leave in August for Hot Springs, to spend the remainder of the summer season.

And still more travelers. The social set has indeed caught the travel bug. On Tuesday the Warren Ira Bickfords, of Devon road, leave for their summer home in Centerville, Mass., and, of course, with them will go their daughter, Marie Louise, a deb of the past season, and their other daughter, Gretchen Macomb Bickford.

Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, of Sewickley, is leaving this month for Watch Hill, R. I., where so many Pittsburgh and Sewickley society people have gone or plan to go.

Resort Affairs

Watch Hill, R. I., is one of the most popular summer resorts among Pittsburgh folks. The first dance of the season at the Watch Hill Yacht Club was given last Friday night. And Mrs. Eben Knowlton, of New York, gave the first afternoon tea last week. The yacht races are taking place every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon all season.

The Sidney Scotts, of New York, were the winners of the first tournament of the season at the Misquamicut Golf Club last week. The first dinner dance was given Saturday night, and the first Sunday buffet luncheon was held the next day. All the activities there are just beginning. The Sunday afternoon musicales will begin this month, too. Henry B. Gray, of Colonial place, and Alice Gray, are at the Ocean House, and the Sidney B. Liggetts, of Edgeworth, are arriving there soon with their daughters, Betsy and Laura.

Miss Elizabeth Arbuthnot is the guest this week of Mrs. Harry Darlington at Stonleigh. The W. B. Trainers were among the entrants in the first golf tournament at Misquamicut Golf Club on Independence Day. The J. B. Hollands are at the Ocean House and A. Rex Flinn and Simon Patterson, who summered at the resort last season, were at Ocean House on the Fourth of July.

To Hold Sale

Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, who has arrived at her summer home, Sunnymede, will open her cottage Monday and Tuesday for a sale to benefit the Pittsburgh Women's Exchange, of which she is the president. The former president of the exchange, Mrs. William R. Thompson, is summering there, and is assisting as manager of the sale. Mrs. William S. Moorhead and Mrs. Richard B. Mellon are at Watch Hill, too.

The Alexander Jay Wurtses, of Shady avenue, are at their shore estate, Canoe Point, Bar Harbor, Me., where Mr. Wurts has as his house guest Wiley B. Parker, of Pittsburgh. Mrs. J. D. Maxwell and the Robert J. Clelands are at Bar Harbor for several weeks. The new Bar Harbor Club is planning its formal opening and dedication on Saturday, July 26.

MISS VIRGINIA GOLDSBURY, DAUGHTER OF SOCIALLY-PROMINENT ROYAL S. GOLDSBURYS

Mrs. Dawes Presents 8 Americans to Royalty

LONDON, July 11.—(AP.)—Before the twin golden thrones of Buckingham Palace the last group of this year's debutantes, including eight Americans, made their bow at the final royal court of the season before King George and Queen Mary.

Among the most interested spectators of the glittering spectacle was the petite Japanese Princess Takamatsu, wearing a simple gown of silver cloth.

Prince George, Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood and her husband, the Earl of Harewood; Princess Victoria Marie Louise and other members of the royal household were grouped behind their majesties.

The eight Americans presented by Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the American ambassador, were: Miss Helen Lee Washington, Washington, D. C.; Miss Justine Townsend, New York; Miss Elizabeth Wurts, Philadelphia; Mrs. Roy Baker, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Nathaniel Davis, Princeton, N. J.; Mrs. Samuel Meek, New York; Mrs. B. B. Moon, Indianapolis, and Mrs. W. K. Botsford, New York.

Their gowns, indicative of the festive fashions called forth by the summer heat, were chiefly of pastel tinted satins and chiffons, instead of the heavy brocades so often seen at court.

COIN DOTTED FROCKS PROVE POPULAR FOR EVENING WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JULY 11.—Even the evening landscape is now dotted with spotted frocks. It has been moons since a design has become so overwhelmingly popular as has the coin spot motif, and it is proving one of the most liked designs. Perhaps it is because it is so very different from the night blooming floral prints that have become somewhat trite and ordinary. Perhaps it is because the coin dot pattern is so refreshingly youthful and informal. We do not know the reason, but we are quite content to dance a Paris evening away in a charming restaurant on the Bois, surrounded by trees and music-filled air, dressed in a little coin dotted chiffon with dots that are large, important and colorful. Chiffon, by the way, has taken on ever so many entrancing guises this year, not the least delightful being white chiffon beautifully embroidered with flower designs, leaves or petals. These dresses are hand-embroidered and therefore correspondingly costly, but they are a joy to gaze upon, even if they do engender a tiny twinge of envy.

WE SHOW TODAY sketches of two of Vionnet's newest evening frocks. The first is a boldly printed dance frock of chiffon with coin dots. It has the favored Vionnet scarf decolletage with the scarf passing across the decolletage from one shoulder to the other and tying in a soft bow at one side. Diagonal piecings, fitting snugly at the hipline and falling in long pointed godets form the skirt. The large coin dots are in dull shades of Italian red, green and orange on a beige ground.

* * *

VERY LIGHT AND summery is the other evening frock depicted here. It is one of Vionnet's best models and is of white chiffon embroidered with pink rose petals in an allover pattern. The uneven pointed flounce is veiled in black chiffon with an occasional embroidered rose petal matching those on the rest of the frock. The embroidery is hand done in heavy silk floss. This dress, too, features the Vionnet scarf decolletage described at length above.

Rivers of Mud, Rock Block Utah Roads

SALT LAKE CITY, July 11.—(AP.)—Rivers of mud, silt and boulders swept from the Wasatch Mountain canyons by one of the most destructive rains in the history of Utah, covered the streets of the state's principal cities and many acres of farm land today, causing estimated damage of $1,000,000.

The storm area extended from the Idaho-Utah line 150 miles southward. Five cloudbursts washed out railroad tracks, flooded towns and covered highways in many places under 12 feet of mud.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

SUNDAY MENU:
Clams on the Half Shell.
Veal Birds. Gravy.
Wax Beans. Boiled Potatoes.
Cabbage Salad. Cooked Potatoes.
Strawberry Cream Puffs.
Iced Beverages.

Clams are at their best just now and served on the half-shell are sure to prove a popular and appetizing first course for our Sunday dinner. Garnish the clams with sprigs of parsley and thick quartered slices of lemon. And serve them very, very cold.

Veal bird, despite the rather fanciful name, is simply veal steak cut from the round. But when it is deliciously prepared in this way, I warn you, the family will demand that veal be served in just that way ever and anon.

Cut a pound and a half of the veal steak into strips about 4 by 2½ inches. Put the trimming and 4 slices of bacon through the food chopper. Cook the chopped meats in 1 tablespoon butter for 3 minutes; then add ½ cup fresh bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, and 2 tablespoons milk.

Spread this mixture on the strips of veal. Roll and tie each piece with cord. Roll the meat in flour and saute it in 2 tablespoons fat in a frying pan. See that the meat is browned just a little on both sides. Place the veal birds in a casserole or a small covered pan and season one with salt and a small piece of butter. Add enough water to fill the pan about 1½ inches. Cook for an hour, or until the meat is tender, in a moderate oven.

For the gravy, add 4 tablespoons water to 2 tablespoons flour. Mix it carefully and gradually pour in the stock in which the meat has been cooked. Bring the gravy to a boil and serve.

When strawberries are in season I am sorely tempted to include them on every menu. If you are as fond of them as I am, you'll find these Strawberry Cream Puffs a special delight.

Melt ½ cup butter in 1 cup boiling water; then add 1 cup sifted flour, and stir it vigorously. Cool the mixture slightly, then add 4 eggs, beating each one in before adding the next. Drop the mixture by spoonfuls on a greased baking dish, 2 inches apart.

Bake in a quick oven 20 minutes, then reduce the heat and continue baking for another 25 minutes. When cooled, fill the cream puffs with sweetened strawberries mixed with whipped cream and serve immediately.

Iced tea is good—I know of nothing that so intrigues a warm-weather palate and that so effectively cools the wilting human frame, unless perhaps it be iced coffee.

Ginger ale and grape juice mixed are good. Orangeade is good, and so is lemonade. And there are any number of other drinks equally good, and interesting by dint of being somewhat unusual. We shall come to them.

But first of all let's consider the ice cubes. Of course, plain ice cubes are excellent. They are plain; they are neat; and they make the beverage satisfyingly frigid. But they aren't specially exciting. Whereas colored ice cubes possess all the above-mentioned virtues plus an ingratiating individuality.

Any pure food coloring can be used to color ice cubes. The coloring should be added to the water before it is poured into the trays. Care should be taken in adding the coloring not to get too much in, as a delicate color is the more attractive.

Candied or minted fruits are very appropriate for garnishing ice cubes. They can be frozen in plain cubes or with their respective colors. Two or three can be added to each cube.

When fruits are to be frozen in the cubes, the tray should be about 1-3 filled with water, then partly frozen before the fruit is added. Add the fruit, then finish filling the tray with water and allow to finish freezing.

This prevents the fruit from settling to the bottom of the cubes. Mint leaves are attractive additions to ice cubes, too.

Lemon, orange or lime juices are excellent flavorings—or ginger ale may be frozen and added to the beverage, with the most delightful result. Thoroughly chill the ginger ale in the bottle, then pour it carefully into chilled trays. In that way the cubes will retain more of the carbonization.

Orange slices, banana slices, cherries, berries, fresh pineapple and mint leaves each have their respective places in the beverage glass, though not all in one glass, to be sure.

If you serve an appreciable quantity of fruit with the drink, then do be generous-hearted and serve a spoon with the drink. It's discouraging to leave perfectly good fruit reposing in the bottom of the glass.

Pickles are poular—or is it the recipes I have scoured the culinary trails to find that are so popular? Well, I'd like to be vainglorious about the matter, but maybe it is the pickles after all, so we'll say no more about it.

However, here are more pickle recipes every bit as good and delightful as the last batch, too:

CANTELOUPE PICKLES—Select melons which are slightly under-ripe. Remove rind and all soft portion. Cut in pieces suitable for serving and soak in weak brine for three hours. The brine to be 2 tablespoons of salt to a quart of water. Drain and then rinse in fresh water. Add the rind to a boiling syrup made thusly: 4 cups of sugar, 3 cups water, 1 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 1 large stick of cinnamon.

Boil the rind and syrup for 10 minutes. Allow to stand overnight. In the morning drain the melon. Boil the syrup until thick, add the melon and cook slowly until the melon is clear. Pour into hot sterilized jars. Adjust rubber ring and cap and seal.

CANDLED CITRON—Remove the rind from citron melon. Cut the melon in thin slices. Cover with water in which ½-teaspoon of salt is used per quart. Boil slowly until tender. Drain. Make a syrup of 3 parts of sugar and 1 of water. Boil until it threads. Add the citron. Cook slowly until melon is clear and the syrup is thick.

Remove from fire and allow the melon to remain in the syrup over night. Remove melon from syrup, drain, roll in granulated sugar, place on rack to dry. Pack into sterilized jars. Adjust the cover and rubber ring. Seal.

BEEF LOAF IN ASPIC—Soak 1 tablespoon of gelatin in ½ cup of cold water for 5 minutes. In the meantime slice 1 small onion and 1 celery heart and boil for 3 minutes in 1 cup of highly seasoned stock. Strain, add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and add to the gelatin. When the mixture begins to thicken, add 1 cup chopped cold roast beef, ¼ cup pimentos cut in very thin strips and 2 teaspoons finely minced parsley. Turn into a wet mold and chill. Garnish with crisp lettuce leaves and asparagus tips with French dressing.

FROZEN VEAL SALAD—Combine 2 cups of cold rice with ¼ cup mayonnaise. Add 1 cup tiny June peas and 1½ cups of cold roast veal cut into small pieces. Season well. Pack into the freezing trays of the electric refrigerator and chill for 1½ hours. Slice and serve on lettuce garnished with mayonnaise.

* * *

PINEAPPLE ICEBOX CAKE—One tablespoon gelatin soaked in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water and add 1 cup crushed pineapple, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Stir until sugar dissolves. In the meantime heat ¾ cup evaporated milk in the top of a double boiler to the scalding point. Cool, then chill in a bowl surrounded by chipped ice and salt. When gelatine mixture begins to thicken, fold it into the milk which has been whipped. Line sides and bottom of mold with lady fingers or cake. Cover with pineapple mixture, then alternate cake and cream until mold is full. Place in icebox and let stand for 3 or 4 hours. Unmold and serve with fresh or frozen strawberries. Will serve six.

CHOCOLATE ICEBOX CAKE—Melt 2 square bitter chocolate in the top of a double boiler. Add ⅔ cup sugar and ¼ cup evaporated milk with 4 well-beaten egg yolks. Cook slowly over boiling water until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Cool, then add in stiffly beaten whites of the 4 eggs and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Line bottom and sides of a spring-form pan with lady fingers. (Brush beaten or unbeaten egg white over the sides of the pan will help to keep the lady fingers in place.)

Add half the filling, then another layer of lady fingers and the remainder of the filling. Arrange lady fingers on the top as spokes in a wheel. Let stand in icebox at least 12 hours. Just before serving heat ½ cup evaporated milk in a double boiler to the scalding point, cool and then chill in a bowl surrounded with chipped ice and salt. Whip until stiff. Melt ½ square chocolate over hot water, add 3½ tablespoons sugar and blend with the chocolate. Add ¼ cup water and boil directly over the flame, stirring constantly until a thick syrup is formed.

SWISS STEAK—Place 1½ pounds thick round steak on a board and pound ¼ cup flour into the meat. Sear it well in a heavy frying pan in 3 tablespoons hot fat. Add ¼ cup hot water. Cover the pan and simmer 1 hour, adding more water if necessary during the cooking.

Season with 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛

Ice Cream Becoming More Popular Each Year

It Should Be Eaten Freely by Everybody, Dr. Copeland Believes.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.
U. S. Senator From New York.

In the summer when the thermometer soars, what are we to eat? That is when ice cream becomes a popular dish with most of us.

Statistics show that during the months of May, June, July and August, 67.5 per cent of the total yearly production of ice cream is consumed. But this excellent and wholesome food should be included in the diet the year round. It has great food value, in addition to being refreshing and delicious.

We are told that Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth President of the United States, first introduced ice cream in this country. She served it at a social function in Washington.

But, history has it, too, that almost two centuries before this Charles I pensioned a French cook who first served ice cream at an English Royal banquet. It was stipulated in the terms of the pension that the Frenchman was to keep the recipe a secret and make the delicious concoction only on the command of His Majesty.

GETTING MORE POPULAR

Today a dish once served only to royalty is within the reach of every one of us. In the old days, however, the food value of ice cream was not appreciated. It was regarded only from the standpoint of palatability.

Since ice cream was first served in this country it has become more and more popular each year. A recent report of the Department of Agriculture states that in 1928 348,048,000 gallons of ice cream were made in the United States. To produce this quantity of ice cream, 6,000,000,000 pounds of milk were used, as well as 209,000,000 pounds of butter fat. In addition, 243,000,000 pounds of sugar, 174,000,000 pounds of milk solids other than butter fat, and 5,000,000 pounds of food gelatin went into the making of this delicious food. The manufacturing of ice cream has indeed become one of our great industries. The excellence of the product justifies its popularity.

HAS PLACE IN DIET

Ice cream is no longer considered a luxury. It has a definitely established place in our daily diet. As Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins University recently wrote in one of his articles, "There is no more attractive way of serving milk to your family than in good ice cream."

Be sure to include ice cream in your diet as often as possible. It is good for child and adult alike. Often an invalid is permitted to have ice cream when other foods are prohibited. Remember, too, that this delicious and nourishing food is as good for you in the winter months as it is in the summer months.

LEMONADE—Make a syrup by boiling together 1 cup of sugar and 1 pint water for 12 minutes, add 1-3 cup lemon juice, cool and bottle. When ready to use dilute with ice water to suit the taste. Add minced or shredded pineapple, a little orange or grape juice and a cherry to each glass when half filled with chipped ice. This bottled lemon syrup is excellent to keep on hand for beverages.

Press through a sieve and measure to each 4 cupfuls of the puree add ½ teaspoonful of salt and ¾ of a teaspoonful of sugar and let simmer slowly to the consistency of catsup, stirring constantly. Pour boiling hot into sterilized jars, filling each to overflow, adjust the rubber rings, dipped in boiling water, sterilize the covers, and tighten. Set aside until cold.

SHRIMP CURRY IN RICE RING—Place 4 tablespoonfuls of oil in a saute pan, and when it is hot add 1 medium-sized onion chopped fine. Cook until the onion is slightly brown, moisten 2 level tablespoonfuls of curry powder with a little cold water and add to the onion, together with 1 tablespoonful of soyu sauce, and 1 cupful of boiling water. Mix 2 teaspoonfuls of corn starch with a little cold water and stir it into the mixture, then cook until smooth, adding a few grains of cayenne pepper. Add 2 cupfuls of shrimps and cook for 6 minutes. Place cooked, well seasoned rice in a ring mold that has been well oiled, place in the over until heated through, turn out on a serving plate, pour the shrimps in the center, garnish with parsley, and serve.

WATERMELON PICKLES—Remove the rind from a watermelon and all of the pink part, cut it in pieces, two inches by one and one-half inches long, place in a preserving kettle and cook until tender. Drain well, place 3½ pounds of the cooked rind in a sauce pan with 1½ cupfuls of cider vinegar, 3 cupfuls of sugar, 1 ounce of stick cinnamon and 2 tablespoonfuls of whole cloves and 1 ounce of whole allspice, tied in a muslin bag. Bring slowly to a boil and simmer gently for 2½ hours. Pack in sterilized hot jars, filled to overflowing with the syrup, and seal tightly.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD—For the whole-wheat bread dissolve 3 cakes of yeast in 1 cupful of lukewarm water, add 1½ tablespoonfuls of salt and 3½ level tablespoonfuls of sugar. Sift 9 cupfuls of whole-wheat flour and mix to a smooth dough with 5½ cupfuls of lukewram water. Add the dissolved yeast mixture and knead for 5 minutes, place in a well-oiled bowl, cover and stand in a warm place for 2 hours, or until its starts to drop. Punch it down and let it raise again for 35 minutes, turn out on a board that has been dusted with whole-wheat flour, knead well, form it into three even-sized loaves, place it in well-oiled pans and let it rise in a warm place for 15 minutes, place in a moderate oven and bake for 50 minutes.

CANDIED CHERRIES—Place in a kettle 4 cupfuls of sugar and 1 cupful of water, and simmer until the sugar is dissolved, brine to a boil, then add 2 pounds of pitted cherries and cook slowly until the cherries are clear, pour off the syrup, spread the cherries on plates and dry in the sun or a slow oven. When thoroughly dry, sprinkle with sugar and pack in layers in a tin box and store in a dry place.

KANSAS FIGHTS CUT IN WHEAT

AMARILLO Texas July 11—(AP)—Ending a two-day campaign in Kansas expounding the Farm Board's wheat acreage reduction program, Alexander Legge, chairman, and Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture today brought their proposals to the Texas Panhandle.

They parted company last night with Gov. Clyde M. Reed, of Kansas, after he had sounded his opposition to the curtailment plan at Dodge City.

"The biggest hog," Mr. Legge told 1,500 Southwestern wheat growers, in answer to Governor Reed, "will always be in the trough. Kansas is now in the trough."

HOOVER GOING TO LEGION MEET

WASHINGTON July 11.—(AP)—Following a call by Commander O. I. Bodenhamer of the American Legion at the White House, legion headquarters announced President Hoover would attend the opening of its annual convention in Boston October 6.

The invitation, received some time ago, was taken under advisement by the President, whose plans for the remainder of the summer and fall have not yet been completed. It had been indicated previously that the chief executive hoped to be able to attend.

Turtle Surviving Falls Plunge Stolen

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—Sonny Boy, 105-year-old turtle which accompanied George A. Stathakis on his ill-fated plunge in a barrel over Niagara Falls last Saturday, has been stolen, Stathakis, while being strapped in the barrel preparatory to the plunge, told those assembled at the brink of the river that if he failed to survive the ride through the cataract, the turtle would "carry the secret of the trip and would reveal it at the proper time."

The turtle, supposed by Stathakis to be sacred, suffered no ill effects of the trip in which its human companion suffocated.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN HILL RAID

A prohibition agent passing a garage at 1632 Edna street, Hill district, this morning, noticed a group of men carrying 5-gallon cans from the garage. Suspecting that the cans contained liquor, the agent left to obtain aid. With other officers he later raided the garage and reported confiscating six 5-gallon cans of liquor on the outside of the building, 17 more cans on the inside and a 150-gallon still and 40 50-gallon barrels of mash.

When the agents made the raid, they found no one at the garage.

MINE PAY CUT THREATENED

NEW YORK, July 11.—(INS)—Anthracite miners, insisting upon at least maintenance of present wages, were confronted today with the possibility that operators would suggest a reduction.

While it is not likely that operators will press demands for a cut, it is known that such a proposal has been worked out and may be presented.

The operators' committee acknowledged the demands that operation costs be cut instead of wages but intimated that a wage cut also might be unavoidable. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, insisted that no wage cut would be tolerated.

LAND RED ARMY DESPITE BLUES

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., July 11.—(AP)—The Blue defenders of Maryland soil and hope of the Pittsburgh industrial area to save it from falling into the hands of the Red invading forces, last night had their backs to the wall and were powerless to resist the landing of additional Red troops at several points in Maryland and Delaware.

The Blue forces, with headquarters centered here, and composed of National Guard, regular and reserve army units of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and the District of Columbia are being deployed to meet the main attack of the Reds which is set for Monday.

The major defensive of the Reds Monday will be centered on breaking communication lines between Washington and Baltimore and breaking through the defense to capture the Pittsburgh area.

Ask 50,000 Watts For Station WBZ

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(Universal)—The Westinghouse company has petitioned the Federal Radio Commission for permission to increase the power of Station WBZ from 15,000 watts to 50,000 watts.

It is understood that the company plans to consolidate Station WBZ with Station WBZA, of Springfield, erecting the transmitter half way between.

Yoemans and D. W. Seaboldt were arrested.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Annoying and expensive . . .

these troubles that come from harsh toilet tissue

A MONTH AGO she would have ridiculed the idea of contracting rectal trouble from inferior toilet tissue.

Now she is receiving treatment daily from a specialist. A costly and painful operation is her only hope for permanent recovery.

This is not an unusual case.

There are literally millions* of men and women suffering from troubles caused or aggravated by harsh, chemically impure toilet tissue.

Only recently has the importance of bathroom tissue to health been fully realized.

Today those responsible for the purchasing of bathroom equipment are insisting upon the tissues that physicians and hospitals have thoroughly approved —ScotTissue, Sani-Tissue and Waldorf.

Scott Tissues are made from specially processed "thirsty fibres." Extremely soft and cloth-like fibres that absorb quickly . . . completely.

Crumpled in the hand, they feel as suave and yielding as old linen. Yet they are tough and strong in texture.

Treat a sheet of ordinary glazed tissue this same way. You can actually feel its cutting edges—frequently sharp enough to cause a seriously inflamed condition.

Scott Tissues are twice as absorbent as ordinary toilet tissue. And absorbency is absolutely necessary for thorough cleansing.

Only the finest fresh materials go into Scott Tissues. They are chemically pure—neither acid nor alkaline in reaction.

The rolls are closely wrapped to fit the standard built-in fixtures.

Don't take any chances. Always ask for ScotTissue, Sani-Tissue or Waldorf. They cost no more than ordinary tissues.

*A prominent New York hospital surgeon estimates that between ten and twenty million people in the United States are suffering from ailments of this nature. In many cases the trouble is directly traceable to harsh or impure toilet tissue.

They fit the built-in fixtures.

Scott Tissues

NOTE: ScotTissue and Waldorf are the two largest selling brands in the world . . . Sani-Tissue is the new popular priced white toilet tissue embodying the famous thirsty fibre qualities.

Plans are being completed by Ingham and Boyd, architects, for the new auditorium of Historical Hall, which will be erected by the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania on Bigelow boulevard, near Parkman avenue. The building with its equipment will cost approximately $110,000, according to William H. Stevenson, president of the Historical Society.

Upon the letting of the contract the society will receive an appropriation of $40,000 from the state. The balance of the fund was raised through private subscription. Upon the completion of the building early next year offices will be opened for the activities resulting from the gift of $70,000 awarded to the society by the Buhl Foundation.

The building operations will not interfere with the functioning of the organization in the present building and the library and museum will remain open to the public as usual. It is expected that ground will be broken early in September.

PIE HITS SAFELY 16 GAMES IN ROW

THE GAMES OF today and tomorrow at Forbes Field will bring the Pirates up to the half-way mark in the National League race. The Buccaneers had engaged in 75 contests up to today, and if both events in the short series with St. Louis opening this afternoon are played out to decisions, they will have completed exactly half of their 154 game schedule when they set sail tomorrow night for their second long Eastern cruise of the year.

Pie Traynor

There is every promise that the second part of the campaign will be productive of more satisfactory results than the first, as the team will be stronger all around. Aside from the return of Lloyd Waner and Steve Swetonic and the vast improvement in the pitching form of Remy Kremer, another very helpful item not to be overlooked nor underestimated is the fact that Pie Traynor recently has been making rapid progress toward a complete recovery from the eye ailment to which he fell a victim in the early spring. In addition, there must be reckoned the rise in morale that should result from the generally improved conditions.

FOR A LONG time after he returned to the Pirate lineup Traynor was handicapped by impaired vision but that the last traces of the trouble are disappearing is indicated by the difference in his work. Not only is he fielding again with something like his old brilliance, but his batting has improved to such an extent that he has now batted safely in 16 straight games. He has not gone hitless since Phil Collins, of the Quakers, blanked him in the first game of a double-header here on June 26.

And in that game, Traynor had only two legal times at bat. Up to today he was within one of the 1930 Pirate record for sequential hitting, held by Paul Waner, who batted safely in 17 consecutive contests. George Grantham ran one string up to 16, but tripped in the next game. Traynor's improvement goes far to brighten the Buccaneer outlook for the second half of the season. The Pirates are not the Pirates when Pie is absent or below form.

GABBY STREET'S club, playing here today and tomorrow, is the only one in the league except the Phillies against which the Rovers have won more games than they have lost on the home grounds. Their record against the Cardinals at Forbes Field showed three victories and only one defeat up to today. Against the Phils they have won four and lost two.

The next best showing locally has been made against the Reds, an even break in four games. The Pirates have won three and lost four here against the Cubs, won two and lost three against the Robins, won two and lost five against the Giants, and won two and lost five against the Braves.

Gabby Street

BALL CLUBS, AS a rule, make a much better showing at home than on the road, but just the opposite has been true of the Buccaneers. At Forbes Field, the Corsairs have won 18 games and lost 22, for a percentage of .450, but they have made a slightly better average on the road, where they have won 16 and lost 19, for a mark of .457. They have won six games out of eight played in Cincinnati, four out of seven in St. Louis, two out of five in Chicago, one out of three in New York, one out of three in Boston, one out of four in Philadelphia, and one out of five in Brooklyn.

ANOTHER OF THE old baseball guard passes in the release of First Baseman George Kelly, given his unconditional freedom by the Reds. As all the other big league clubs passed him up rather than pay the waiver price for him, it is doubtful if Kelly will get a job in the majors, as under a new rule any club taking him on within 60 days would still be required to pay the waiver sum to Cincinnati.

Kelly, who will be 35 years old on September 10, first went to the Giants from Victoria in 1915, but did not become established as a major leaguer with the McGrawites until 1919. On August 2, 1917, he was obtained by the Pirates on 10 days' trial, but made something like one hit during his stay here and was turned back to the Giants, who shipped him to Rochester for a season and a half. New York traded him to Cincinnati in 1927 for Outfielder Eddie Roush. Kelly holds a record of seven home runs in six straight games and once made three in successive times at bat.

KELLY WAS A member of the famous four-time Giant champions of 1921-2-3-4, and his release almost completes the passing of the team that won the National League pennant during the first three years of that period. Of the Giants who played in 1921, 1922 and 1923, only Frankie Frisch now remains as an active regular in the fast set. Hank Gowdy, who caught in 1923 and 1924, works only occasionally, behind the bat.

George Kelly

Travis Jackson was used only as a reserve in 1923, and Freddie Lindstrom, Bill Terry and Hack Wilson did not win jobs until 1924. Ross Young is dead, Dave Bancroft and Irish Meusel are coaches, and George Burns, Johnny Rawlings, Frank Snyder, Phil Douglas, Fred Toney, Art Nehf, Earl Smith, Heinie Groh, the Barnes brothers, Casey Stengel, Hugh McQuillen, Jack Scott, Rosy Ryan, Bill Cunningham, Lee King and the rest have left the majors.

FANS ARE AWAITING with much interest the introduction of night baseball here in the games to be offered at Forbes Field on Friday and Saturday nights of next week, when the Homestead Grays meet the Kansas City Monarchs, of the Negro National League. The lighting equipment is owned by the Kansas City club and is hauled about the country on a fleet of 12 machines, which include the cars utilized by the advance agent and the players. In all, four night games will be played at Forbes Field, nocturnal contests also being scheduled for Friday and Saturday, July 25 and 26. On each of the Saturdays there will also be an afternoon game.

PITTSBURGH FANS ARE not the only ones who will be privileged to witness night games between these clubs, as Manager Posey, of the Grays, has arranged to stage contests in Cleveland, on July 16; Akron, July 17; Altoona, July 21, and Columbus, July 27, 28 and 29. Negotiations are under way to put on games in Western Pennsylvania towns on July 22, 23 and 24.

Tom Baird, the Kansas City club's advance representative, has been in Pittsburgh several days completing preliminary arrangements for the installation of the lights at Forbes Field. He visited the Oakland enclosure yesterday and made measurements of the field so that the trucks on which the equipment has been installed may be placed in the most advantageous locations.

THIRTY-FIVE PROJECTORS ARE used, each containing three lights of 1,500 watt lamps, or a total of 4,500 watts for each projector. The power is furnished by a 250-horsepower generator. Eighteen men are employed to install and operate the lighting apparatus and as the Kansas City club has 15 players on its payroll this means that a total of 33 men are required, exclusive of officials of the club, to handle the Kansas City club's side of the games alone.

The novelty of the attraction, combined with the fact that the

GENE SARAZEN SLUMPS AFTER ARGUMENT

from his throne at Oakmont in 1927 and MacDonald Smith, the stout-hearted Scott from New York. To his rear, only a stroke away, were two fighters for which he has always held respect—Walter Hagen and Horton Smith. Tied with him stood Wilfred Cox, a product of Brooklyn's public links.

From today's melee only the low 60 and ties were to be permitted to play the final 36-hole tomorrow.

Walter Hagen, with a threatening 72 to go on, started one over par with a 5 on the first hole of his second round. His drive hooked to the rough. He then sank a 20-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the par 4 second. Sir Walter got his par 3 on the third.

SARAZEN IN ARGUMENT

Gene Sarazen slipped for the first time on the fifth when he put his tee shot into a trap bordering the green of this 178-yard layout. He needed a four, but was even par for the first six holes.

Sarazen finished the first nine in 36, even par, after a mixup on the ninth hole that brought in Findlay Douglas, president of the United States Golf Association, to settle the debate. Gene sliced his tee shot to the borderline of the out-of-bounds mark, leaving him the choice of trying to clear the big pond between him and the green, or of shooting up the first fairway.

The referee of Sarazen's round decided Gene had to try the over-water carry and under protest, he promptly put his second shot into the middle of the pond. A call then was sent for Douglas as Sarazen's behest. The U. S. G. A. president ruled Sarazen had the right to play up the adjoining fairway and Gene did so, chipping on the green beautifully for his par 5.

The breeze picked up considerable force by the middle of the morning and prospects of another outbreak of low scoring such as marked the opening round did not seem so good.

Sarazen, either upset by the episode at the ninth, or bothered by the brisk wind, got into trouble starting home and scored 6-5-5-4. This put him three over par.

Walter Kossman, Bellville, Ill., was the first entry to complete 36 holes, his 82 giving him a two-day total of 170. Eddie Schultz, Troy, N. Y., had an 80 for a total of 156, tying with the old champion, Chick Evans, who came back this morning with 39-36—75. W. R. Lovekin, Minneapolis, had an 82, for a total of 163.

Al Espinosa rounded the turn in 35, one under par.

Tommy Armour, the "Black Scot" who helped blaze the way with a great 70 yesterday, got away to a poor start on his second 18-hole round. He was in the deep rough on the left with his first and second, and required a 5 for the first 478-yard hole, par 4. He also took 5 on the par 4 second. Tommy's second overshot the green and the ball landed on the third tee behind a low, spreading tree. His out was spectacular, but he took two putts.

Armour then scored 3, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4 to the eighth.

Closely following his pace-setting rival, Mac Smith, who also had a par-cracking 70 yesterday, started badly. He took a 6 on the first hole. The veteran Scot steadied down to par on the next two holes, which he scored in 4-3.

FOX TO BE 2-5 CHOICE

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Gallant Fox, the super-horse of the year, probably will go to the post a 2-to-5 favorite in the $80,000 Arlington classic at a mile and a quarter, to be decided at Arlington Park tomorrow afternoon.

This was the guess after the Fox, already proclaimed the 3-year-old champion, because of his five successive victories in rich stake events in the last 60 days, went through his final training gallop yesterday. The Fox, with Earl Sande up, did a slow gallop twice around the mile and an eighth track, which was a trifle heavy, due to a drizzling shower. He will be sent through an exercise dash of three furlongs today, in the nature of a tightening-up sprint.

Gallant Fox has not run this year on a muddy or heavy track, but won both the Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes on a slow track. His handlers naturally want fast going, but say that no track conditions will stop him Saturday. A heavy, muddy track might make considerable difference in the number of starters in the classic, but the prospects tonight were that the field would number 10, including two fillies.

Chocolate Stops Burrone in Third

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—Kid Chocolate knocked out Vic Burrone, of New York, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Burrone was troublesome only in one round, the first. After that Chocolate deliberately and systematically cut him down. He was down three times in the third, taking a full nine count from a right hand cross, then an eight count from a left hook, and was on one knee, but unable to hear the count when he tumbled beneath a barrage of wicked blows half way through the third.

Chocolate was unmarred and gave a wonderful exhibition of boxing and sharp hitting.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, it will look pretty keen to see Lloyd startin' a game today, but it will be about five times as nice for Jule if he is able to stay there all afternoon. If we could jes' get the club back to where it belongs defensively, I think we would stop losin' them ball games by one run. I guess you're a real second division team when you can drop so many by one tally.

It's a good thing for Lloyd that he didn't make the trip to St. Louis. He'd probably be back in a nice hospital again. There was a hot series for you—even the St. Louis players were glad to get away from their own ball park.

It was so warm down there that a fella didn't feel like goin' anywhere, but I guess it's a pretty hot breeze that doesn't blow somebody good. I didn't spend hardly anything all the time I was there, so I'll be in fine shape till the pay check comes again.

Looks like we're facin' a pretty tough Eastern trip, but I guess both Lloyd and Steve will be able to go along. Steve looks as if he ought to be able to "go" in about a week. We'll need all the pitchers, though, because there's a flock of bargain bills to be staged on the trip.

Strub Stops Reed In Washington Bout

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—Maxie Strub, 136, Erie, knocked out Jimmy Reed, 132½, Columbus, O., in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round match here last night.

Ray Collins, 135½, Erie, won a 10-round decision from Dud Eades, 132, Pittsburgh. Eddie Hebner, 135, Clairton, and Mickey Caruso, 133, Weirton, W. Va., fought six rounds to a draw.

Nick Polis, 162, Aliquippa, knocked out Harry Spencer, 165, Washington, in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout.

Kelly Plans to Go To Coast League

CINCINNATI, July 11.—(INS.)—George Kelly, released as first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, said today he planned to return to California and may play with a Pacific Coast club. Tony Cuccinello, obtained from Columbus in the American Association last winter, will take Kelly's place.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Perhaps it is a bit too late for them to get back into the flag fight, yet the Pirates intend to go down fighting. Back from their gruelling series in St. Louis, the Buccos this afternoon will take on the Redbirds in the Oakland Orchard. Single games between the two clubs are on for today and tomorrow, after which the teams will move across the mountains to take on the Eastern teams.

The Freebooters will reach the half-way mark of the race tomorrow. Today they were 11 and one-half games from first place. The gap separating the Oaklanders from Brooklyn appears a gigantic handicap, but the tough part of the grind is yet to come and many things can happen. On the other hand, the home boys are only six games removed from fourth place, which is a money position. The team has been in the money for many, many seasons and they will contest every inch of the way to get back where they think they belong.

LLOYD TO PLAY

Lloyd Waner is slated to make another attempt to play this afternoon. He suffered a relapse after he had accomplished a few short tricks earlier. The physical appearance of the little fellow after being discharged from the Baltimore hospital was so impressive that his return seems to have been rushed. From an outward viewpoint, Lloyd appeared almost in perfect health, but as soon as he began to run fast a bad reaction set in. However, he will make his first attempt to start a game this afternoon.

Manager Ens will be the most tickled person in the Pirate family provided Lloyd is able to stay in the game. It is not meant to disparage Fred Brickell or any of the others when it is stated that quite a few ball games have been lost through loose play in the outfield, especially in centerfield.

The importance of the middle pasture is not realized until a star is gone. Consider what would be the plight of the Redbirds were Taylor Douthit to leave the lineup for an extended period. Ens, himself, thinks at least 10 games have been dropped through the absence of Brother Lloyd. Give the Buccos 10 victories and take away 10 defeats and they would be right on the wings of the Robins. And that is no hot-weather dream.

BRAME, SPENCER READY

Skipper Ens will use either Ervin Brame or Glenn Spencer on the mound against the Redbirds this afternoon. The last named worked a two-hit masterpiece against the Cards Sunday, but Glenn dropped the battle with Jess Haines by a 2 to 1 score.

Gabby Street, pilot of the Redbirds, has any number of pitchers ready for the two games. It is believed that Burleigh Grimes will work one of the two fights here, but Haines worked ahead of Grimes in the double bill of Sunday and it is likely that Jess will twirl today. In that case, the former Pirate probably will pitch tomorrow. Southpaw Bill Halahan is another probability for one of the scraps with the Pirates.

MEET ROBINS NEXT

The Buccos again are slated to open their Eastern invasion in Brooklyn. They will jump off Sunday in the Flatbush. From Brooklyn they will proceed to

Nick Altrock Says:

BOSTON, July 11.—The Red Sox told us a new one on Shires today. The Sox were in Chicago the day the Great One learned he'd been traded to us. He goes into the Red Sox dressing room to deliver an oration of indignation at his transfer and winds up with this crack: "And if I get any help from the Washington team I'll win the pennant." That's our chief worry now. We're afraid we will win the pennant and make Arthur's hop dream come true. And if we do, you will never hear the end of how Arthur The Great, assisted by eight ventriloquist's dummies, won the American League flag.

GUNN, M'ILVAIN IN STATE AMATEUR FINAL

WEPPNER, GILES DEFEATED IN CLOSE DUELS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Watts Gunn, of Oakmont, the colorful little Southerner, who was runner-up to one Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., of Atlanta in the 1925 National Amateur championship at Oakmont, has turned his guns on Greer McIlvain, a fellow Oakmonter, who only last night retired as president of the state governing body, in the final battle in quest of the Pennsylvania Amateur championship at the Allegheny Country Club this afternoon.

In the penultimate round matches this moring, Gunn advanced to the grand final by eliminating the Stanton Heights star, Fred B. Weppner, 1 up, the contest going the full distance, and McIlvain put out the former Princeton star, Ellsworth Giles, Jr., of Shannopin, who caused the big sensation yesterday in disposing of S. Davidson Herron, of Oakmont, the defending titalist. Giles lost 3 and 2 when McIlvain produced some of his finest golf to have two 4s left for a 70 when the contest was brought to a close.

McILVAIN IN FORM

In spite of the fact McIlvain was shooting his finest game thus far in the tournament, Giles kept pretty close to him until after they passed the turn, when a birdie and a flock of par holes proved his undoing. Going out McIlvain made it tough for the Shannopin youth by winning two holes in a row with birdies, getting a 3 on seventh and a 2 on the eighth to Giles' 4s. Giles had two birdies also, a 3 on the fourth and a 4 on the par 5 sixth. McIlvain held a 1 up advantage at the turn, and then went 2 up by clicking for a birdie 3 on the tenth and became 3 up by winning the twelfth with a birdie 3 on the twelfth after having halved the eleventh in 4s.

With Gunn putting at his best and Weppner making marvelous recoveries to keep up with the former Atlantan, their semi-final match was a real battle from the first tee to the home green. Weppner shoved off with a pair of birdie 3s to get away right, but Gunn dropped a 15-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the fourth, won the fifth with a par 4 and became 1 up at the sixth with another par 4. Weppner was 2 down when Gunn again sunk a long putt, a 12-footer, for a birdie 3 on the seventh, but broke that up by winning the last two holes out with a par 3 and par 4. Weppner had Gunn one stroke, with a 35, going out.

GUNN GETS BIRDIE

Gunn's 20-foot putt was good for another birdie 3 on the tenth, both found trouble to halve the eleventh in 6s, and after they split the twelfth, Weppner copped the thirteenth with a birdie 4. Watts' fourth long putt for a win came on the fifteenth, where he had 15 feet to go for his birdie 3 and made it. When they halved the last three holes, the match was all over with Gunn on top by only one hole. It was really Gunn's last long putt, on the fifteenth, that won him the match. Both had total medal scores of 73.

Sport Vignettes

Comes to hand a letter from Billy Henderson, veteran manager of boxers, of Boston, who first visited here some years ago with Eddie Shevlin, the welterweight, a prime favorite, and more recently with Andy Martin, the featherweight, who also has won his way into the hearts of the local fans and is ready to return against anyone from Jackie Rodgers on up, or down, as the case may be . . . . Andy last appeared here against Johnny Dunn at Duquesne Garden and left the following morning for Los Angeles to box Goldie Hess . . . . Hess ran out on the bout and Andy took on a Coast lad named Montayo and defeated him and repeated in a return bout and then outclassed Benny (Kid) Carter, winning in two rounds . . . . That was enough of mingling with Andy for the Coast boys, and, having fought himself out of work in California, Martin returned to Boston, where none of the good ones want to tangle with him . . . . Henderson, who is connected with Johnny Buckley's string of boxers, which includes Jack Sharkey, the uncrowned heavyweight champion, believes the new foul rule perpetrated by the New York Athletic Commission, whereby fouls are not recognized, is a good one and will solve the problem, seconding our motion on the idea . . . . Henderson is one of the experienced managers who think that in not one case out of 100 is a boxer injured by a foul blow to the extent he would have the fans believe . . . . Henderson adds in his letter that Sharkey may retire from the ring if he does not get a chance to fight Schmeling or some one else for the world title soon, since becoming the recognized champion is his life ambition . . . . Mel Sheppard, the oldtime middle distance running star, now has a son, Mel, Jr., who is a member of the Princeton track team and one of the best half-milers on the squad . . . . Peerless Mel, as the elder Sheppard was known in his palmy days, now is the personnel director of a large department store in New York and was a cinderpath star from 1907 until 1913 . . . . He won the 800 and 1500-meter championships in the 1908 Olympic games in London . . . . He won his first national championship in the half-mile in 1906, his time being 1.55 2-5 . . . . He repeated in this event in 1907, '09, '11 and '12, and during this period held every world record from 500 yards to two-thirds of a mile. His mark for 600 yards stood until 1926, when it was beaten by Douglas Lowe, of England . . . . Young Saylor, the Charleroi junior-middleweight ring star, who is regarded as the "Old Man River" of the active local mittmen, is happily married and the father of three children, with another one dead, yet he is only 28 years old and has been boxing only since 1922, and he finds the "old man" reference to himself quite embarrassing at times . . . . He believes he is good for several more years and that he has yet to turn in his best performances . . . . There is no question that he is one of the smartest of the fist-flingers in these parts, in a ring sense, and what he can't do with a left hand just simply isn't in the book.—HARRY KECK.

Referees to Rule Alone on Fouls

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—The minions of the boxing law marshaled in New York state yesterday for the supreme assault on the foul fighters and foul pretenders who have been grimacing and groveling main bouts into fiascos for the past year or more.

One important change in the rules was revealed. In the future the referee alone can judge whether blows should be marked down as low. He cannot call either of the two judges into consultation to aid him in reaching a decision on the validity of a blow.

Club May Attach Mandell's Earnings

INDIANAPOLIS, July 11. — (AP.)—Officials of the Washington Athletic Club here announced yesterday they expected to attach the earnings of Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, when he fights Al Singer in the Yankee Stadium, New York, July 17.

Mandell was matched to fight Spug Myers here the night before the Memorial Day automobile race and posters advertising the show had been distributed for several days when Mandell refused to fill the engagement because "the hall was too small."

LIFERS MEET MINE SAFETY TODAY

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

WEST PENN LEAGUE.
Wilmerding at Universal.

C. & I. LEAGUE.
Mine Safety at Reliance Life.

CITY LEAGUE.
North Side Civics at Homewood.
Book Shoe at Dormont.
Stowe Civics at Pleasant Valley.

By TOM BIRKS

Mine Safety will be the big attraction at Carrick Park this evening, meeting Reliance Life, first half champions of the Commercial and Industrial League, in a loop fray. Mr. Scott, of Reliance, expects the boys led by George Miller to cop the second half title in this well balanced circuit and stop any idea of a playoff.

Only one game will be staged in the West Penn League, Wilmerding making the trip to Universal to meet McKeag's hitters. Max Kummer feels that the Cement boys are going to cop second half honors in the West Penn, but every game is going to be bitterly fought.

SMILERS FACE TEST

Pleasant Valley will face a test when the Stowe Civics make the trip to Pleasant Valley. Manager Johnny Dunsky has been working hard trying to get together another championship team, and if the fans around Charles street will support the club, there is more than a chance that the Smilers will meet Book Shoe in the post-season playoff games.

Homewood meets the North Side Civics at the playgrounds, and the presence of Art Rooney and his mates should attract a large crowd. The East Enders will be fighting mad this evening following that unlooked for setback at the hands of W. O. W. last Tuesday.

The other game in the league will find Book Shoe, first half champion, meeting Dormont at the South Hills grounds.

COSLETTS SEEK GAMES

Jock Collette, new booking manager for the Jimmy Cosletta in the Wagner Central League, wants games with the best clubs in the tri-state district. A big independent schedule will be built around the league games. Managers wanting to book this attraction should write 342 Center avenue, West View, Pa., or call Wellington 0945-J.

When Allegheny Collegians and Fintex clash at Sullivan Field tomorrow evening, the first half title of the Central League will be at stake. Managers Pickles and Carson are priming their best pitching bets for the game. The game will be called at 6:30 p. m.

In last evening's City League battles, the North Side Civics nosed out W. O. W., 2 to 1 and Stowe walloped Dormont, 14 to 1. In the C. and I. League, Hornes defeated Dravo, 6 to 4 at Camp Horne and in the Greater Pittsburgh League, the Dan Heeps held Reliance Life even, 2-2.

NORTH SIDERS LOSE

Byllesby defeated the Equitable Gas nine in the Philadelphia Company circuit, 15 to 1. Immaculate Heart walloped the North Siders in the North Side Twilight League, 8 to 4 and in the Crafton-Ingram Church League, St. Phillips tied the Methodists, 9 to 9.

Book Shoe defeated the Crawfords, 9-8; the Homestead Grays downed Elwood City, 9-7; J. L. Thomas won over the Allegheny Collegians, 9-6 and Lincoln Civics defeated Swissvale, 11-8 in independent tussles.

INTERNATIONAL MEETS

While an all-British team is to meet an all-American track team in Chicago on August 27, this is not the only international track meet between ourselves and the British this summer. The combined Princeton-Cornell track teams have sailed and will meet a combination of the Oxford-Cambridge stars at Stamford tomorrow.

Knute Rockne

The Princeton-Cornell team, with several injuries, does not stand much of a chance of beating the English team, but that is of little or no importance. There can be no question but that contacts of this kind go a long way toward clearing up misunderstandings that crop up between the two great English speaking nations.

SCOTS ANNEX M.-A. LEAD

Scottdale slipped into first place in the second half race in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday, defeating Jeannette for the third time in a row by a 12-to-7 score. The victory, coming as Clarksburg lost, elevated the Scots to first place.

Clarksburg lost to Johnstown by a 7-0 score, the Johnnies putting on two-run rallies in each of the last four innings to win.

At Charleroi, the Guys lost a slugfest to Fairmont, 13 to 9. Wheeling hammered out a 9-to-2 victory over Cumberland at Cumberland.

STACY W. VA. GOLF TOURNEY LEADER

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 11.—(AP.)—Palmer Stacy, Lewisburg, was 2 up on L. R. Seibert, Wheeling, at the end of the morning round of the championship match for the West Virginia amateur golf title today.

Stacy was out in front most of the time, but Seibert spurted at the start of the home-coming nine and squared the match at the twelfth hole. Stacy regained the lead, however, on the thirteenth and increased it to two on the fourteenth, holding it until the end of the morning round.

Miss Fritzi Stifel, of Wheeling, was 3 up at the end of the third hole in her match with her mother, Mrs. E. W. Stifel, Wheeling, for the women's golf championship of West Virginia.

Mrs. Stifel reduced the lead of her more noted golfing daughter to 1 up at the turn. She won the seventh hole with a 5 while Fritzi was taking a 6. They halved the eighth with 5s and Mrs. Stifel then took a 4 while Miss Stifel had a 5.

Miss Stifel held her lead of 1 up after 12 holes. They halved the tenth, eleventh and twelfth with 6s, 5s and 5s.

DRAW MADE FOR PUBLIC PARKS NET TOURNEY

SUN-TELEGRAPH PLAY OPENS MONDAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

All is primed and ready for initiation next Monday of festivities in the Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh Public Parks tennis championships on the municipal courts in Schenley Highland, Olympia, Riverview, West and Frick Parks here. Last preliminary details were cleaned up yesterday when draws in men's and women's singles were made for hostilities in each of the six lots where contesting will be sponsored.

A last-minute ruling by the Tournament Committee granted entrance to players whose entry blanks failed to arrive before midnight Wednesday, the announced closing deadline, but which were post-marked before the final hour. By virtue of this concession, 10 new names were added to the list to boost the total to 164, 26 of these being women and the remaining 138 being masculine performers. This is probably the largest group ever bracketed together in a properly organized and sanctioned local tournament.

SCHENLEY ENTRY LARGE

Schenley Park, topping all rivals numerically in both the men's and the women's divisions, boasts 62 contestants of the stronger sex and 15 of the so-called weaker. Irving Goodman, Pitt ace, heads a powerful seeded quartet among the men, with Alex Blumberger, Zola Alpert, and Sammy Braemer, Panthers all, succeeding him in the order given. Jeannette Miller, consistent little West Penn luminary, leads the fair troop and is followed by Eleanor Lemon, Florence Schneider, and Marion Klein.

Frank Broida, hard-hitting Harvard southpaw, and Paul Elliott, Wilkinsburg youngster who copped the Pittsburgh Center boys' title in 1928, stand forth seeded at Frick. Broida is flashing mighty clever tennis this year and merits serious consideration for the parks championships and consequent right to represent Pittsburgh as the Sun-Telegraph's guest at the national public parks tourney at Washington, D. C., the week of August 18.

If he is able to get past Elliott at Frick, he will stand excellent chance of advancing to the inter-parks final.

The field at Olympia is uniformly strong. Bob Philpott, veteran Duke varsity contender, appears to enjoy slight advantage, but young E. G. Artzberger is stepping right along and Dick Creighton and Ward Murphy, other seeded aspirants, must be reckoned with—Creighton for his steadiness and headiness and Murphy for his dazzling, though too frequently uncontrolled, pace. Mrs. Jean Artzberger, Western Pennsylvania women's doubles victor at Stanton Heights a fortnight ago, easily rates first among Olympia feminine medal-seekers.

REDMOND FAVORITE

Jack Redmond, youthful Peabody forkhander and City High School premier, looks likeliest at Highland and is seeded number one. Next to him is Joe O'Connor, Boys' Central Catholic High star and brother of the famed Jimmy and Dick of Duquesne. H. C. Link, Pittsburgh Center boys' runner-up last summer, is third and Bill Purcell, Duke Prep satellite, is fourth.

Over on the North Side at Riverview, Jack Herrmann, Shady Side Academy stylist, is favored foremost with Bob Meyer next to him. The Beilstein brothers, Karl and Ralph, dominate the West Park array at one and two respectively, with Marjorie Artzcaptor of West laurels in the Public Parks events of several years back, looming formidably in the ladies' sector.

Superintendent of Parks James Moore yesterday placed official O. K. upon the requested schedule of use of park rectangles and issued orders to reserve ample courts for tournament play at periods sought by the committee. 'Tis all set now—all but the going, after which comes hectic competition whence shall emerge new Pittsburgh champions to bear Steel ( ) colors on fields long untrod by home talent in quest of nationwide honors. The pairings follow:

MIDGET MIKE WINS

JOHNNY WILLIS MIDGET MIKE O'DOWD

O'Dowd, veteran featherweight, defeated Willis, young Negro, of Erie, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night. Photo shows a bit of the close range action. Most of the time they were on the move, with O'Dowd forcing the fight and Willis jabbing as he broke ground.

O'DOWD DEFEATS WILLIS IN TAME GO

BY HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

One man anxious to fight and another keen to keep him from fighting combined to make up a bad main bout at the Hickey Park arena, Millvale, last night.

It promised to be a good scrap and drew a fair-sized crowd, but turned out to be just the opposite. Midget Mike O'Dowd, veteran featherweight, of Louisville and Columbus, O., and Johnny Willis, rangy young Negro, of Erie, were the principals.

Throughout, Mike did the chasing and threatening and harder hitting, while Willis, taking no chances, kept on the move, stabbing lightly with his left. A few times when he was warned by the referee to step in and do his share of leading and by the crowd to stand up and fight, Willis made an effort to mix, but always was quick to realize the folly of such a plan of battle against his more seasoned opponent, who was only too anxious to get a chance to slug toe to toe.

WILLIS TOO FAST

The net result was that Willis kept back-pedaling too fast for O'Dowd to catch up with him and do any effective scoring, and the crowd was not slow to hoot and jeer the tame action. At that, Willis was not to be blamed very much for his safety-first tactics. He is a good young prospect and he was taking no chances of being annihilated by O'Dowd, a noted hard hitter. Boxing as he did he lost the decision, but never was in danger. If he had opened up and slugged, he would have risked a knockout setback, and he likely was considering his future. He is a smart youngster.

O'Dowd weighed 126¼ pounds against 125¾ for Willis, but the latter had a distinct edge in height, reach and speed afoot.

Al Becker, of Sheraden, 153¾, won the referee's decision over Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, 148¾, in the eight-round semi-final. The recent graduate from the amateur ranks piled up a winning margin in the first five rounds that Belmont could not overcome with better work in the last three, during which he had Becker bleeding from the nose, mouth and a cut on his right eye. Judge Meininger voted for Belmont.

BALINT BEATS BUFF

Paul Balint, of the North Side, 124½, defeated Frankie Buff, of New Kensington, 126, in the six-round second bout. He scored knockdowns for counts of nine in the third, fourth and fifth rounds.

Joe Kearns, of Washington, Pa., 151, was no match for Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill, 154½, and the referee stopped the uneven battle after Kearns had been floored twice in the third round.

Al Grayber and Joe Krally alternated as referees with Grayber handling the second and main bouts. The judges were L. K. Meininger and Frank Ferris, and the timers A. C. Couch and Mike Russell. Henry Klaas did the announcing.

JAP NETTERS FACE ITALY

GENOA, July 11.—(AP.)—On the day of the European zone Davis Cup final between Italy and Japan there appeared to be little to choose between the Italians, led by the redoubtable Humbert De Morpurgo, and the well-balanced team from Nippon.

The winners of the series here today, tomorrow and Sunday will play the United States in the inter-zone final in the Roland Garros Stadium in the outskirts of Paris next week for the right to challenge the French on the same courts one week later.

The question on the lips of thousands of fans here is whether De Morpurgo will prove equal to the task of beating Japan almost singlehanded. He is to be used in doubles as well as singles and Italy hopes to take the series by winning all three of the matches in which he is a participant.

Between Rounds

Willie Davies is training in his camp near Everett, Pa., for his 10-round bout with Black Bill, their sixth meeting, at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night. He also prepared there for their recent clash in the same ring and was in such fine fettle that he was able to come from behind after a late start and turn to a clean-cut victory.

Sparky Kwak and Joe Chocota, heavyweights, will box the feature bout of the outdoor amateur boxing show of the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., on the club's North Side grounds next Tuesday night.

The card was completed last night for Monday's show at the Bowl with the signing of Jack Pelle, of Aliquippa, to box Harry Harris, of Nine O. In the eight-round semi-final Pelle last night knocked out Harris, former in three rounds at Washington, Pa.

Cowboy DeLuca, of Lawrenceville, meets Thunder Perez, Mexican, in the second bout, and Jackie Wilson, negro bantamweight, of Homewood, boxes Jackie Ward, of Cleveland, in the six-round opener.

Prince Carnera tosses an exhibition bout to top off a card at Idora Park, Youngstown, tonight. Paul F. Jones meets George Russell for 10 rounds, Harold Mackney engages Cleveland Jack Sharkey and Russell Wilson boxes Stan Watts. Joe Grim referees and Louis Severo boxes Young Weakley in a four-round bout.

Answers to queries—Jack Sharkey scored a 10-round decision over George Godfrey in Boston in 1926. Godfrey is 59 years old.

Al Fay, Charleroi heavyweight, is in training for bouts his manager, Jack Kearns, is arranging for him around the country and pointing for a contract that is bound to come here with George Parks, Homestead fighting bricklayer.

George Levine, veteran welterweight boxer, now is the matchmaker of the Ridgewood Grove Club in New York.

Harry Rhoads boxes Nick Palmer, National Guard middleweight champion, at Dexter Park, New York, Monday night. Kid Chocolate, ex-champ, will officiate in the main bout of a benefit show for a children's outing fund at the Queensboro Club, Tuesday, and Phil Kaplan and Leo Williams meet in the same arena July 22.

Eddie Wentzell, of Youngstown, manager of Mickey Galeopolis, the middleweight, also has the following boxers in his string whom he would like to show here: Dick Reed, 161 pounds, former amateur champion of Ohio; Eddie Jacobs, Syrian 170-pounder; Al Brown, welterweight, and Frankie Candi, 118 pounds.

The Meyers Bowl is working on another return bout between Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Dunn to replace the canceled Tommy Crawley-Louis (Kid) Kaplan bout one week from next Monday night.

Night Game Fans To 'Hear Plays'

WHEELING, W. Va., July 11.—When the Wheeling Stogies open up here next Monday night with the first permanent night baseball lighting system in this section of the country, something new to baseball will be experienced by fans.

President Charles Holloway, of the Wheeling club, will have a public address system put into the press box, from where all close and thrilling plays of the game will be given to the fans verbally as they happen on the field.

Feeling that hundreds of fans do not know players well enough to know who knocks home runs or executes double plays, or that they are not familiar enough with pinch hitters and relief pitchers, President Holloway has taken this method of informing the fans who attend night games here. The same system will be used in night football games carded on the field this fall.

Glenna and Maureen N. Y. Title Favorites

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 11.—(INS.)—Glenna Collett, ranking woman golfer in the country, and Maureen Orcutt, rated just about second best, were favored to meet in the final of the New York state championship tournament at Oak Hill Country Club here.

Two semi-final matches are listed for today, and the winners will clash in a 36-hole engagement for the crown tomorrow.

BIG BILL REPEATS

NOORDWIJK AAN ZEE, Holland, July 11.—(AP.)—For the second successive day, Bill Tilden won his match in three straight love sets in the international tennis championships of Holland yesterday. The American champion reached the fourth round by shutting out Rupe, of Holland, without a game as he had done against another Dutch player, Wetselaar, yesterday.

Yesterday the Buccos stopped off in Coshocton (pronounced Coshocton) and drubbed a specially recruited team in that town, 16 to 3.

Manager Ens used a pair of southpaws, Martin Lang and young Jimmy Bradley on the mound, the pair of fork handers limiting the Ohioans to nine hits. Three of these blows were gathered by Toby Uansa, former University of Pittsburgh all-America football star, who also is a baseball player of parts. The score:

Stake Victor Sets Record at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 11.—(AP.)—The fifth annual $2,500 Home Brew stakes for 2-year-old trotters and the feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit was won in straight heats by Calumet Bush, driven by Marvin Childs. The son of Peter Pluto trotted in 2.08 2-5 and 2.09, setting a new record for the stake in the first heat.

He trotted two faultless miles and repeated his excellent race in the main division of the Rainy Day sweepstakes, which he won over this track last week.

In the day's opener, the 2.15 pace, Sep Palin furnished the winner, taking three straight heats with Alexander Direct, belonging to E. J. Baker, of St. Charles, Ill.

Monarchs enjoy the same prestige in the West that the Grays hold in this section, has caused much speculation as to the size of the crowds that will turn out for the games. Guesses have been made that the attendance will exceed 10,000.

Kid Chocolate

THAT KID CHOCOLATE has lost none of his rare flair ability as a result of the automobile mishap in which he was injured two months ago, was indicated by his success in stopping Dominick Petrone in the sixth round recently. Last December Petrone went the 10-round limit with Chocolate and gave him a hard fight, but in their recent meeting the superiority of the Keed was evident from the start. Chocolate continues to add to a remarkable record. The Petrone fight was his one hundred and sixth, and he has never been defeated. As an amateur he took part in 129 bouts and won all of them, scoring 86 knockouts. As a professional he has had 65 fights, with 43 knockouts. That gives him a total of 129 knockouts in 165 contests, amateur and professional, a record surpassing that of any other present-day boxer, big or little.

DERBY EVENT TO FEATURE CLOSING

Eight crack distance runners will clash tomorrow at New Kensington in the first annual derby final, feature race of the closing night's program. Another meeting is planned there in the fall.

The entries for the derby include Keno Thought, Bingo Boy, Spindle Top, Hunters Home, Alloon, Fire Chief, Diamond Crown and His Shadow.

Last night, at Bridgeville, Jerry Duggan won the feature race over the five-sixteenths mile course coming within one-fifth second of the track record.

As the dogs resumed racing at the Aspinwall track, Another McGrath copped the first race and paid the best price of the evening, $22.40 to win.

The Bridgeville meeting will continue for an indefinite time, according to the sponsors of the meet.

Weetamoe Takes Fourth Test Race

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—(AP.)—In the closest race since the start of competition for the honor of defending America's cup, Enterprise beat the Yankee yesterday and Weetamoe won from Whirlwind by the narrowest of margins.

It was Weetamoe's fourth straight victory. Enterprise, in the opening race of the day, scored her second victory of the series by finishing 34 seconds ahead of the Boston boat.

Yankee was surging along bow to bow with the Aldrich-Vanderbilt boat on the last leg of the 30-mile course when a long rent appeared in the Boston boat's big jib. Yankee lost the race during the next few minutes, for the time getting in the torn canvas and sending up new head sails was far more than the narrow margin by which she was beaten.

TRUSTS BUYING UP COMMON STOCKS

Investment Group Heads Consider Many Shares Now at Bargain Levels

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Investment trusts, inquiry has disclosed, have been substantial buyers of selected high grade common stocks, especially public utility and industrial issues, at recent depressed prices.

The spokesmen of one of the largest groups of investment trusts in the world confided in me:

"There are very many American common stocks today which are in the buying zone from an investment viewpoint, particularly for well-equipped institutional investors. We have acquired a vast volume of the best American common stocks at what I consider to be truly bargain levels."

The head of another of the largest American investment companies, in response to my questioning, said:

"We believe that common stocks of leading industrial and public utility companies are in the buying zone from an investment point of view. We have in the recent past acquired some leading utility issues."

The outsider, in judging the stock market, should seek to make up his mind as to whether the quality of the buying or of the selling has been better in recent weeks. Unquestionably, while scientific institutional investors have been buying, tired amateurs, who were wrong in buying at or near the top, have surrendered their stake at the market place.

TO CHANGE STRUCTURE

The next phase of investment trust management will be in changing the capital structure of such institutions through the sale of their own bonds. Such a rearrangement will give the trusts an opportunity to show a profit through trading on the equity, that is, through getting a larger dividend and interest return on securities held in the portfolio than is paid out to holders of the bonds of the trust. The favorable differential, if any, will accrue to the stockholder. If the capital structures are revamped in this way within reasonable proportions, trusts will be on a securer footing, and will be less obliged to earn dividends through restlessness in cashing in paper profits.

Of course, the market is not yet quite ready for such new style bond financing. The president of one of America's biggest trusts, which at present has only one class of security outstanding—common stock—said:

"At the moment the bond market is still in poor shape. However, with the improvement that is bound to set in before long, with present easy money rates, the stronger trusts should have the opportunity of securing funds from the public by issuing senior securities bearing low coupons.

"Many lessons have been learned in the course of the last 12 months by investment trust managers. The experience has not been dissimilar to that of the English trusts in the nineties. With these lessons learned, we believe definitely in the future of investment trusts in this country."

FALSE STARTS SEEN

Though the stock market is looking to business for its cue, it is unlikely that the market upturn will coincide precisely in time with the recovery in business. As traders sense the market has been oversold, they are likely to experiment on the bull side, and the market may conceivably make several false starts upward before the genuine, solid comeback takes place. Last spring's prolonged rally proved to be a false start. From a long-term investment standpoint, however, there seems little doubt that the next major swing would be upward. Meantime, the counsel of a balanced investment diet, consisting of reserves of cash, bonds, preferred stock and common stock, seems timely. The stage seems set for a better bond market."

Washington is inclined to look for a moderate upturn in business late in August, and for normal business by the end of the year. But recent experience has demonstrated anew that the mantle of public office gives an individual no special divine gift for gazing into the crystal ball, and finding out the unknowable.

It is a matter of common gossip that the tactical position of the Farm Board has been improved, especially among farmers, since the United States Chamber of Commerce denounced it by resolution. Farm leaders have been quoted as saying:

"Industry doesn't like the agricultural marketing act, therefore it must be good for the farmer."

The newly formed Book Publishers' Research Institute points out why the attempt to sell new novels at a dollar is a fallacy. Meantime, pioneering publishers are going ahead with the experiment. Those older publishers who take their own propaganda too seriously may in time find themselves behind in the procession.

Forbes

One Bull Says Government is Eager for Rise.

—By B. C. FORBES—

HOW REFRESHING it was yesterday to meet a 100 per cent Wall Street bull. Let me give you his reading of what's what—remember, it is his, not mine:

"The United States Government never, in its whole history, was so active in trying to bring about a better stock market than it is today. More is going on in this direction than the public knows anything about. President Hoover himself is eager to see the starting up of more cheerful conditions in the security markets.

"The Federal Reserve Board is prepared to go to any lengths to make money cheap and plentiful. It was the Reserve Board's constant attacks upon the money market that brought about the terrible collapse in stocks last fall. It took the board some time to get its own way. The board is even more eager now to see stocks advance than it was last year to see them decline. It has been working to bring about favorable money conditions for nine months, and you can bet that it will win out. Cheap money will be as effective in raising stock prices this year as dear money was in knocking them on the head last year.

"THE SHORT interest in the stock market today is the largest ever known. Not only that, but brokers are carrying extremely few stocks for their customers. Some of the biggest Stock Exchange firms have reduced their loans to the lowest totals in a blue moon. Every Tom, Dick and Harry has felt safe in selling stocks short this year. It used to be that only professional traders and others thoroughly familiar with stock speculation sold short. But apparently a great many fellows feel that they now know a lot about the stock market and how to beat it. So, they have been having a wonderful time going short.

"BUT THEY are soon going to learn that it can be just as dangerous to be a bear as it proved to be a bull last fall. Developments are under way which, if they go through as planned, will give the bears a terrible shock.

"The biggest bull pool ever attempted in Wall Street is now being formed. I feel sure that it will be successfully organized. It isn't only a pool of a few stock market operators, but is to include far stronger banking co-operation than any other pool Wall Street has ever known.

"Tests are being made now to find out just what the actual condition of the market is. It is being discovered that it takes only orders for a few thousand shares to send up a stock. This means that the market has not only been sold to a standstill but that it has been oversold tremendously.

"Already there has begun quite a little quiet accumulating of stocks by important people. One trouble is that it hasn't yet been possible to accumulate enough. The big fellows want to get much larger lines of cheap stocks before they start the fireworks. Maybe, they will engineer an attack with a view to bringing out a lot of stock before the real upward move is launched.

"Anyway, the stage is being set for big things on the up-side. Here you have the government, the Federal Reserve Board, the country's largest employers, the banks, investment trusts, wealthy individual investors, everybody, in favor of putting an end to pessimism and falling prices. Add to this the present 1½ to 2½ per cent money in Wall Street, and you have a combination that can't be licked."

THERE YOU have one view not hedged by ifs, ands and buts. Use your own judgment as to how sound the view may be.

One Stock Exchange house has issued this statement:

"We know of excellent buying. It has been going on for several days and while it has not stimulated prices it will have a steadying effect that will be cumulative. London has been a persistent buyer since early in May, as our records and those of other houses doing European business show. They have been pretty accurate over there in their estimates of conditions here. Don't forget that London began selling our stocks two months before the October break in New York. It may be that their reversal of attitude now is worthy of consideration."

Admittedly, only pessimists and bears are thus far able to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again." The rest of us will sooner or later have our inning.

Frisco Gross Cut; Lumber Traffic Off

NEW YORK, July 11.—J. M. Kurn, resident of the St. Louis-San Francisco railway, said that June gross revenues for the road showed a substantial decline from figures for the same month last year, but it is estimated that due to a careful paring down of expenses, the road's surplus after charges will approach last year's figures. He said the greatest decline in the company's business is in lumber traffic, and that other commodities are holding up relatively well.

Merchandise Car Loadings Show Well

The car loadings of merchandise and other miscellaneous manufactured commodities during the first five months of 1930 are compared with the same periods of the past nine years. Figures exclude raw materials such as coal, grain, live stock, lumber and ore. Source: American Railway Assn.

Car loadings of merchandise and other manufactured products on their way to the ultimate consumer are a truer index of commercial activity than all loadings which include raw materials. 1930 is only 2.68% under the average for the five preceding years. And part of this decrease is due to the large number of bigger cars which have been placed in operation during the past year.

Stocks Drift Off — Local Session Dull

STOCK MARKET PRICES DRIFT DOWNWARD

Shares Recede, but Without Accompaniment of Strong Bear Selling; Some Resist

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP.)—The stock market appeared frightened today in viewing in retrospect its boldness in advancing three days on end for the first time since May, moderate though the advances were, and recession was again in order.

There has been circulated some bullish but uncomfortable rumors this week of plans to revive the long dormant bull market, but traders appeared unconvinced and anxious to take profits on shares bought at the recent low levels. The rails in particular reacted after their brisk upturn yesterday.

TRADING DULL

There was no aggressive bear selling, however, and the market was about as loath to decline as it has been to rise. Losses in pivotal shares were held to small proportions, and trading was again dull. The opinion was held in brokerage circles that the market had reached an impasse which would not be broken without important news from business.

The day's quota of industrial and trade news was no more decisive than it has been during the last few days.

After renewing at 2½ per cent, call money sank to 2 for the first time in a week. Last night's Federal Reserve statements showed no inclination on the part of out-of-town banks to withdraw funds because of the low rates at this center. The decline in brokers loans, while amounting to only $16,000,000, was not viewed unfavorably, as it occurred over the holiday suspension.

POOLS CAUTIOUS

The possibility that bull pools which were rumored to have been in the process of formation may have been made cautious by the suspension of Sutro & Co. for allowing itself to be used in improper manipulation was a topic of board room conversation, but it amounted to no more than gossip, so far as tangible information was concerned.

Such issues as Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, New Haven, Chesapeake and Ohio, North American, Consolidated Gas, American Radiator, McKeesport, Eastman Kodak and Johns Manville sold off about 2 to 4 points. U. S. Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Radio, American Telephone and Standard of New Jersey encountered moderate pressure but offered considerable resistance.

Sugar Consumption Shows 4.95% Drop

NEW YORK, July 11.—Willett and Gray estimate sugar consumption in the United States in the first six months of 1930 at 2,860,420 long tons, against 3,009,377 tons in the like period in 1929 or a decrease of about 4.95 per cent.

Copperweld Sales Reach New Record

Copperweld Steel Company reports that its sales for the first six months of 1930 were the largest in its history, being 13 per cent above the sales for the same period in 1929. Shipments by the company are reported as 15 per cent above those for this same period last year.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 11.—All grains scored early advances in price today, notwithstanding that the wheat market was at first influenced by bearish aspects of the government crop report. Persistent hot dry weather Northwest and reports that severe damage to spring wheat had been done acted soon as more than a counterbalance for the government's increased forecast on wheat production. Starting ½c off to ½c up, wheat later sagged all around, but then rose to well above yesterday's finish. Corn showed strength from the outset opening ⅝@⅞c higher and then reacting somewhat, but afterward jumping upward. Oats were firm. Provisions declined.

At noon wheat was ½c net lower, and corn showing ½-1½c advance.

Harbison-Walker Buys Brick Plant

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

HARBISON-WALKER REFRACTORIES COMPANY has acquired the Barrett works and clay properties in Clearfield County, Pa., of the United States Refractories Corporation of Mt. Union, Pa.

This property will give Harbison-Walker an increase in capacity of about 12,000,000 first quality fire brick. The plant is in an advantageous location in relation to the company's other properties in the highest grade fire clay field in Pennsylvania. The purchase price was paid in cash but officials of the company would not divulge the amount.

The purchase is in addition to other improvement work which will be started within a short time in accordance with plans in preparation. Improvements are to be made in all the five districts in which the company operates. These are Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Alabama.

Other Improvements Made

FOR SEVERAL YEARS the company has been making large expenditures for plant modernization and for the expansion of producing capacity. In 1929 a total of $1,483,071 was spent for new plant facilities.

A major portion of recent modernization work consisted of the construction of tunnel kilns for burning fire brick. These replace the older type of intermittent kilns in the production of a large share of the output. The new type of kilns has resulted in satisfactory reductions in operating costs.

Expansion at St. Louis

A YEAR AGO Harbison-Walker acquired additional capacity in the Middle West by the purchase of the Fulton Fire Brick Company at Fulton, Mo. This followed the purchase in 1927 of the large reserves of high-grade fire clay and the Vandalia plant of the Walsh Fire Clay Products Company at St. Louis, Mo., giving the company its first operations west of the Mississippi River.

The company holds the exclusive American rights for the use of new German patents for the burning of silica brick in continuous kilns. A portion of the recent construction work has been done under these patents.

Earnings Large

UNFAVORABLE BUSINESS conditions have not affected the organization's earnings. Net profit for the three months ended March 31 was officially estimated at $1,436,000. After deducting dividends on $3,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock this was equivalent to 96 cents a share on 1,440,000 shares of common stock.

In the previous quarter net was $1,331,000 or 89 cents a share while in the first quarter of 1929 $1,190,000 or 79 cents a share was earned. Earnings in the first quarter showed an exceptional increase but those of the second quarter, which will be made public within the next two weeks, may not be quite so large. Results for the six months will compare quite favorably, however, with those of the corresponding period of last year.

Business depressions do not seriously affect the fire brick industry. Consumers take advantage of dull periods to reline furnaces while in the busy times minor repairs are made. This tends to keep sales at a fairly constant level.

FEW BAD DEBTS FOR BIG STORES

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.)—Credit losses in 1,371 independent retail stores in Philadelphia varied with the size of the stores, the Domestic Commerce Division of the Department of Commerce announced today, following publication of its study of credit conditions and causes of failure in that city. The surve, was conducted in co-operation with Yale University and had the indorsement of several regional and local associations.

The range in Philadelphia grocery stores was from an average loss of 8.3 per cent of credit sales for the smallest stores to 0.2 per cent for the largest. Bad debt losses of the smallest stores were computed to be 40 times as great proportionately as those of the largest. The report said:

"The percentage of bad debts of the 1,077 stores which sold for both cash and credit averaged 1.5 per cent of credit sales in 1928 and 0.7 per cent of total sales. There were 133 stores with the very small credit loss of less than 0.2 per cent, while 50 stores had the exceedingly high loss of 20 per cent or more on credit sales.

"Total net sales in 1928 of these 1,371 stores of different sizes in all sections of the city totally $29,425,041, of which 40 per cent were on credit. Only 21.4 per cent of the stores sold for cash only. In the remaining stores, which did both cash and credit business, credit sales represented 47.1 per cent of total sales, the percentage of credit business handled increasing directly with the size of the store. The range was from 34.9 per cent of total sales on credit for stores with annual sales from $5,000 to $9,999 to 69.2 per cent on credit for those with sales of $250,000 and over."

DAILY TRUE STORY

Story . . . In Sections

Mark popped into the sombre law offices of Leach & Leach.

"Hello, there," he said, "I'm here for some."

"A hem, er—sit down, Mr. Markham," said the younger Leach, who was the more dignified.

"Playing polo all the morning down at Hi Orlander's place, prefer to stand."

"I want to explain. You came in relation to the legacy from your late aunt, I presume."

"Oh, you don't presume at all, you're dead right."

Mr. Leach regarded the calendar.

"It is now June 10. Your twenty-fifth birthday anniversary will not occur until—er——"

"The last day in July, but do you bring this up as something against me?"

Seeks Job

Marky grinned. Mr. Leach was a young man without humor. He felt annoyed. He wondered why anyone so dumb as Freddy Markham should fall heir to so much wealth.

"I am merely stating it as a fact. The legacy is to be turned over to you when you are 25."

"In other words, nothing doing for 51 days, is that it?"

"Out of ready cash, it's been a tight squeeze getting along on the income from my securities."

Mr. Leach looked up and smiled.

"This is hopeful. Mr. Markham—learning that you have not touched the principal. Naturally, since the date is so close at hand, we shall be glad to advance something—"

"No, thanks."

Freddy Markham breezed out of the office with a grin on his face. He had securities, but was too stubborn to cash them; he also had a handsome car, garage bill paid to date. A nice little bachelor apartment, rent paid to date, and $11 in coin of the realm.

Marky, as he was affectionately called, could have dropped around at scores of places and borrowed a few thousand as easy as the telling of it, but Marky had a stubborn streak or perhaps a strain of old-fashioned New England thrift, in his makeup.

So Marky drove his car to the garage and left word that he wouldn't be back for it for about six weeks. He went to his apartment and scanned the papers. He was looking in a section of the paper that he had hitherto ignored—the "Help Wanted" columns. Usually he glanced at the weather "ear," scanned the headlines, took a slant at the society column and carefully perused the sport pages.

Marky knew just what he could do—drive a car.

He couldn't very well don livery and drive around the city—some might think it a prank and others might not. He laughed as he thought of this. Perhaps it would be better after all. So many designing mammas had pestered him with their eager-to-be-married-to-wealth daughters that he was simply fed up. He could be seen as a chauffer and explain that the immense fortune he was to inherit had collapsed, proved worthless. That would keep away the mammas and the daughters. Besides, he didn't care for the society girls at all, they didn't seem any more natural to him than the gilded pine cones in a gift shop.

Marky would have found a job in the city but for one thing—he detested the city and he loved the country.

And so he telephoned to Mrs. Goodwin, who had advertised, and went up into the mountains "on trial."

Mrs. Goodwin was a timid lady of 60 who wanted a careful driver. She permitted Marky to drive her down the mountain from her summer home and back and engaged him permanently.

Mrs. Goodwin lived alone except for well-trained, silent servants and now and then a lady friend of her own age. Certainly a quiet life for Marky. The old lady brought good books to his quarters over the garage—she said he looked so intelligent she hoped the books would enrich his mind. Marky wouldn't tell her for worlds that he had read them all, and the dear old soul was amazed at the intelligent way he discussed these books with her after he had said that he had read them.

This is the end of the first section.

Lives With Aunt

About the time that Freddy Markham was being told that he had to wait 51 days for his legacy, June Raleigh was getting rather desperate.

June lived with her aunt and was 19. June had lived with her three years, ever since her mother left her alone and without sufficient funds. Mrs. Thayer, her aunt, had taken June into the family along with Mr. Thayer and their daughter Muriel, about June's age. The Thayers were more than comfortably well off. Mrs. Thayer got great pleasure in giving June a home. It enabled her to tell all of her acquaintances of her generosity.

June had her own little room and her own maid.

She also had a tiny allowance.

More than that, when Mrs. Thayer clothed the girls she always said to June, "You are to have the same quality of clothes as my own Muriel, my dear—I don't want it ever said that I slighted my own sister's child."

Very well and good for once or twice, but to say this every time anything was purchased was wearisome. To overhear her aunt boasting to all of her acquaintances that she gave poor June exactly the same as she gave her own daughter, was a little more than June could stand.

June's own personal maid said to her one morning, "I'm leaving at the end of the week." I told Mrs. Thayer. 'Oh everything's lovely,' she added quickly, 'and I'll explain to you.' but I couldn't tell Mrs. Thayer she would be snooty about it. Dad owns a great big place up in the mountains where we serve luncheons, weenies, soft drinks and such things. It's a big place with an open dancing pavilion near a lake and in the pine woods and I wouldn't be cooped up any place for any money during the season."

"It's great," Molly agreed. "We have a nice crowd. Dad and my two brothers and two or three girls. the girls live at home with us and get fifteen a week and tips."

Molly hunted up some photographs and showed them to June. There was the big farm house across the road and the low log pavilion, with the lake and pine grove. June stared at the picture.

The Thayers went to Salisbury Beach, a hot, sandy place that June detested.

Leaves Home

Only that morning when June went down to breakfast in a new morning frock Mrs. Thayer had said: "It cost just the same as Muriel's. June. I wouldn't want it said— etc., etc."

June was more than fed up with it. She couldn't seem ungrateful and she couldn't stand this, much more, her stupid, selfish aunt simply basked in telling how June was living on their charity, even if she did tell it more diplomatically.

"Molly," June said suddenly, "take me with you!"

"Are you kidding me, Miss Raleigh?"

"No, I want to go. I want to leave a note and get away. I want to be self-supporting. I can save my summer wages and find work later and—I can't stand this here."

"I don't blame you. I'm wise. I'll write to Dad now to leave one place open."

June packed the necessary clothes and Molly sent them on ahead with her own things. Then June left a brief little note, breathing gratitude for all her aunt had done and saying that she had a nice position offered which she had accepted.

"White Notch" was even more beautiful than the pictures of Molly had claimed, and so June Hawley, niece of the wealthy Thayers, found herself working side by side with the girl who had through the Winter been her personal maid.

Very early one morning Marky took the roadster—Mrs. Goodwin had three cars—out to go down the mountain to the town and bring up certain supplies.

It was a glorious morning. He had been working for Mrs. Goodwin only a week. He noticed that the big log pavilion was open. A young man was affixing signs and two girls were making the open counter attractive. Marky stopped and got some cigarets. He had plenty in his pockets, but he was lonesome for a chat with young people, and one of those girls seemed to him to be just about as pretty as any girl ought to be.

This was June.

Marky talked quite a while. After he had gone June told Molly that he was certainly the nicest chauffeur she had ever met.

Married

Molly told her that she recognized the car and that he was evidently working for the nice little old lady, Mrs. Goodwin, who had the big place on top of the mountain.

Mrs. Goodwin did not drive out in the night air.

This made it easier for Marky to drive down to White Notch for evening meals and dancing. If the place wasn't busy June could have a few dances with him.

Miss Hollinger, desk girl at the place where Marky had his city apartment, under instructions, slipped his mail in new envelopes and addressed them to Mr. Frederick Marks.

One was from the elder Leach, of Leach & Leach. The elder Leach apologized for the error made—it was discovered that Mr. Markham's legacy was to be turned over to him after the first of the year. It was there—would he drop in and attend to the formal transfer.

Marky wrote back: "It will keep. Let it stay for the present."

June had been saving her weekly $5 and the tips. She had never taken a tip from "Mr. Marks".

At the end of the season Marky took a moonlight drive with June—business was dull. Mrs. Goodwin was going back to the city. Molly's father was going to close up the place. They wanted June to live at the farmhouse with them, but June was going to find something to do.

Marky confessed to her that his name was Markham and that he didn't have to be a chauffeur. He said he had some real estate interests and could support her.

By this time June was so madly in love with him that she would have married him if she had to support him, although she was too wise to admit it.

Mrs. Thayer, deeply impressed, boasts considerably of her extremely wealthy niece, Mrs. Frederick Markham.

ONWARD AMERICA!

Police say that they are suffering from lack of equipment in their war against the criminal element. We have therefore arranged to supply ambitious policeman with little books which makes it very easy for policemen to write down, with dispatch and neatness, the names of racketeers they meet socially. Or they can copy the names which appear frequently in the accounts of crime published in the nwspapers.

PRIVATE LIFE OF A LIFE GUARD

Consider, now, the life guard's life,
And, too, the life of the life guard's wife—
A life that's rife with storm and strife.

Pooh, pooh pa doop.

When cuties go too far (and oh! They will go far, as you well know)
The life guard gets 'em then in tow.

Pooh, pooh pa doop.

The life guard's wife, on the other hand,
Stands for a lot and stands on the sand;
To her he's not so hot, so grand!

Pooh, pooh pa doop.

For his pay is very small, you know,
By fall his tan is all he'll show;
He earns more gratitude than dough.

Pooh, pooh pa doop.

Mr. Hoover Mistaken

His Analysis of Opposition to London Pact Erroneous

President Hoover is entirely mistaken in his assumption that the opposition to the London naval treaty comes wholly or even chiefly from those who "in reality are opposed to all limitation and reduction of naval arms."

As a matter of fact the general board of the Navy, long before Mr. Hoover entered the White House, indorsed honest limitation and real reduction in naval armament by international agreement. The record is there to prove this.

But the general board condemns the London treaty because it is "unjust and unfair to the United States."

The Navy League, an organization of civilians, is also on record as approving "limitation of armaments by international agreement," but it repudiates "the reduction of armament by example as unwise and dangerous."

But the Navy League is opposed to the London treaty because it does more to confirm the injustices suffered by the United States at the Washington conference than it does to correct them.

Admiral Jones, whom President Coolidge sent as a delegate to the Geneva conference, was supporting honest limitation and real reduction of naval armament by international agreement long before Mr. Hoover began to study naval problems.

But the Admiral is strongly opposed to the London treaty and his able arguments against it have yet to be answered by Mr. Hoover or any member of his administration.

So it is with the senators in Congress who are exposing the weaknesses of the London naval treaty and will refuse their advice and consent to its ratification.

These senators have repeatedly declared themselves in favor of honest limitation and real reduction, but they charge that the London treaty does neither for the United States, and that charge has yet to be met.

Therefore the mistaken assumption of the President does not correctly represent the real nature of the opposition to the London treaty.

On the contrary, the mistaken assumption of the President does an injustice to the highest naval authorities of the United States, to the Navy League, and to those senators in Congress who are opposing the London naval treaty for very different reasons from those suggested in the President's recent message to the Senate.

This is a pity, because the mistaken assumption of the President in this important matter will tend to mislead the American people when what they have a right to expect from a state paper of this sort is enlightenment.

Tag Fixing Must Stop; Let Guilty Pay Penalty

The tag fixing situation, always disgusting to decent, justice-loving folk, has now become a public scandal of the first magnitude.

Everyone has been aware, of course, that if one had a "pull" with a politician, one could have charges of violating the parking ordinance dismissed without even appearing in Traffic Court. But probably few were aware of the extent to which the evil has been carried, or of the corruption it is alleged to have developed.

Of the many charges that have been made during the last few days, as investigation of the situation proceeded, the most serious, perhaps, is the allegation that certain persons have habitually parked with impunity in forbidden places by bribing policemen. The practice is, according to the allegation, for the policemen to tag the cars, but to tear up the stubs and make no report to Traffic Court. If this is true, the policemen have probably been guilty of an indictable offense, and if convicted should at the very least be dismissed from the force.

They can say in their own defense, of course, that they were taught to show favoritism in the enforcement of the ordinance by their "bosses," the ward chairmen, councilmen and others who, according to Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, "fixed" 60,000 tags last year, or 46 per cent of the total number issued.

Another ugly charge is that not only parking violations but more serious infractions of the automobile laws have been fixed.

If respect for law is to endure, if an earnest effort is to be made to solve the automobile problem and prevent accidents, if there is to be justice, tag fixing must stop. Let the guilty pay.

Electrifying Railroads Will Cut Laundry Bills

The Sun-Telegraph has added a new plank to its platform —electrification of the steam railroads in Pittsburgh.

As Councilman Robert Garland, acting chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee working to the same end, points out, electrification of the roads in the city and suburbs would eliminate an immense amount of smoke, reduce laundry bills and make housecleaning less of an ordeal.

New York, Philadelphia and other cities have succeeded in getting rid of coal-burning locomotives with their belching stacks. Pittsburgh, always inclined to be meek and self-sacrificing when dealing with great corporations, has had to put up with the smoke.

It is time for improvement.

Treat Is Promised in Sunday Movies in Parks

Pittsburghers are assured of another treat in the municipal movies to be given simultaneously in six of the city parks on six consecutive Sunday evenings, beginning next Sunday. This will be the second season of these Sunday evening entertainments, and as the administration promises that the same high standard that was set last year will be maintained this summer it can be confidently asserted that the films will be high-class.

No need to ask people to attend! They will be there by thousands at Schenley and Highland parks, and the shows at McKinley, East and Arsenal parks and the Washington playground will also attract throngs.

Establishment of Sunday evening movies in the parks is one of the finest things Mayor Charles H. Kline has done for the city. The entertainments brighten the day for multitudes. The municipal screen shows emphasize the absurdity of the Blue Law of 1794, with its ban on innocent amusement on Sunday.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Say It Ain't True

Our recollection of Ignace Paderewski is all hair and fingers. Something like a chrysanthemum with 10 stems.

"Bugs" Baer

He had no player - piano technique that thinks nickels are diplomas. When he banged that sound box you coul hear the angels whisper, the little birds twitter and the goblins, fairies and the gnomes grabbing their basket lunches for a wagon picnic.

In this age of syncopation Paderewski demonstrated that you didn't have to have capillary tremors to be a great musician.

A piano was a piano in those days when Paderewski toured America. That was before Helen Morgan turned that noble instrument into a chair.

No motion picture star seems able to sing unless she is sitting up on the piano. Instead of studying music now they want to absorb it.

Ignace may be right when he claims that this is not an age of genius, that ability has withered like dried herring and that the fine arts are deader than whiskers on the barber shop floor.

But we cannot agree with the former premier of the Polish corridor that genius is dead in America.

When we see two motion picture stars kiss each other in a five-minute fade-out, and realize that the picture was made during the leek, onion and radish season, then we know the director must have been a genius.

When we see a car parked in a space that wouldn't hold a folding opera hat, then ke know the chauffeur was a genius.

When we pipe a family of 16 in the back seat of a flivver, then we know that Henry was a genius.

When we take down the scaffolding on a new bungalow before we put up the wallpaper, and the darned thing doesn't collapse, then we realize the architect must have been a genius.

When a girl is so brilliant and full of personality that you talked to her for an hour without seeing the run in her stocking, then that girl is a genius.

If you can walk into a bank and shill the president into lending you money on this market, then you are papa genius himself.

If you can yell down the speaking tube and make the janitor think it is Rudy Vallee, then you are a genius.

All of our young men don't rub stay-dumb on their hair and there are many ways of attaining fame and fortune. If Ignace thinks that genius is dead in America we will walk him through our streets and show him thousands of speakeasies, which indicates that the Hall of Fame has exploded and everybody has grabbed himself a chunk of the debris.

SUBMARINE EXPLORATION

By Archibald Henderson

Man, endowed with powers of singular prescience, frequently makes extraordinary exhibitions of prediction and prophecy. From Mother Shipton down to Tennyson and Marconi, for example, we might enumerate scores and hundreds of people who offered amazing anticipations of the future. The scientists and the imaginative artist exhibit this power in its fullest development. They discern, human research and discovery; dimly or clearly, the trend of and predict the realization of the dreams of the creative spirit.

Half a century ago the minds of children were intrigued with what were regarded as the delightful fancies of Jules Verne. Captain Nemo and his wonderful undersea craft, The Nautilus, illustrated the imaginative ingenuity of the pseudo-scientist. Few people attached any importance to these fantastic premonitions of the future. Many of Verne's fancies have long ago been turned into realities; and even a trip to the moon or to Mars is today regarded as a possibility, nay more a probability, well within the bounds of reasonably early realization.

Submarine exploration holds out one of the great scientific opportunities of the future. If this particular feature has not been included among the previsions of Wells and Haldane, it is probably because they expect its successful accomplishment in the immediate future. Oceanography has become a highly important branch of science in our time. Virtually all the great oceans have been studied, mapped, charted and investigated for their hidden secrets—by Stefansson in the Arctic, by Byrd in the Antarctic, for example, on a small scale.

Aside from the polar seas, which yet await full exploration and study, all the great bodies of water are sufficiently well known, as to superficial features. Yet they continue to defy man in one vital particular. The sea-bottom still remains a virtually unknown land, an untrodden area.

It is highly important, from the scientific standpoint, that the great sea-bottoms be traversed and examined at first hand. For the ocean floors constitute a surface about two and a half times as extensive as the land surface.

The oceanographers, for all their great accomplishments in mathematics, physics and geography, and with dredger, cable and sounding line, are like a person lost in the dark, seeking a knowledge of his surroundings by tentative gropings. As Leslie Mitchell suggests in "Hanno, or the Future of Exploration:"

Perhaps these tentacular reachings have merely dragged and scraped along the canyons or across the unfertile hogbacks of the submarine world; perhaps a strange, alien plant life, hardly dependent on actinic stimulus, luxuriates in the remotest depths; perhaps the narwhal and the sea serpent and the giant polyp do truly inhabit the unplumbed depths, awaiting the time when a strange new metallic monster will invade their solitudes.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've been down hoeing beans. Sun up when I began, 'round four, with the light clinging like a wet, gilt web to the rough, black pines. Up in the branches, another web of sound. Birds call and whistle and chirp. Squirrels chattering like furry castanettes. And the fragrance of breathing leaf and grass and soil beating in waves across your sleepy face.

Great work, hoeing beans at sun up. Earth cool and yielding as flesh under your bare feet and the hoe slipping smooth and easy in your hand. But along toward 8, it begins to warn. Pretty soon the sunlight's crashing down like surf—your shirt's wet on your back and you're tasting the salt of your own sweat.

You straighten—wincing at the crick you're going to feel. But you forget the crick and just stand there, thinking of nothing at all. Stand there, with the earth and the air and the light pressing close around you—pressing close as they press around the unconscious plants—taking it all in as if you were a bean plant yourself. Not thinking—surrendering yourself to it all.

Sprawling, shimmering, blazing glory of color—bronze, green, burnished gold, pooled purple of the shadows—spreading vastness of air—opening, opening into infinite blue—crowding, pulsing pressure of the earth—the aromatic earth, swollen with the secret stirring of life.

So you stand without words, without thought—cleansed of words, cleansed of thoughts, cleansed of self. Gone back into life again as if, by some miracle, you had become a little child. So you stand, still as a child, still as a bean plant, drawing your life without consciousness from the earth and the air. Sweating.

Sweat is a great thing. It is as necessary to health as food or sleep or breath. People who never sweat are sick people—sicker even in their souls than in their bodies. I suspect that is what ails many of us—lack of sweat. Caught in a pattern of life that gives us no chance to hoe beans and sweat. Trapped in cities. Locked away from the sky by buildings—locked away from the dirt by streets. Thrown back into ourselves—into a cankering, constant contemplation of our selves and our piffling peeves and desires. No chance to sweat out those peeves and desires. No chance, ever, to lose ourselves or root ourselves in something greater.

Trapped in cities, picking at our souls. Sweat over bean rows for a while and you'll forget you have a soul. But you'll discover another soul which you've never known. You'll discover the soul of earth — that vast, beating pulse of creation from which you came and to which you will some day return, to rest and be born again.

And the soul of man—you'll discover that, too. Tasting your own sweat, you'll taste the sweat of all other toilers. And the salt on your lips will become a mysterious communication — a humbling communication. Standing there, sweating, with your mind asleep and your heart open, life will reach out from you, reach out into the secret places of other lives as the roots of the bean plant reach out into the secret places of the earth . . . reach out through the mystery of pain and weariness and sweat and tears until you come to the hearts of other men . . . until you come to God.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

You know, I reckon boys are getting more and more unreasonable in their demands. It used to be that a boy was tickled pink to have a girl marry him, and he didn't begin telling her what she had to contribute until after the wedding. But you take the case of this young man, Vince, that I heard about the other day. His girl was talking and talking about home and so on.

"I'm just crazy about being a sort of home body, Vince,' she says. "Do you feel crazy about having a home, too?"

"Sure," he says. "I'm nuts about it. I reckon I'd a-never asked you to marry me if it hadn't been for this swell home you got here. I'll surely enjoy the shade of these big trees, you know. Just you set your little mind at rest. I won't take you away from such a swell home as this."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

When mares previously bred to zebras were afterward mated with horse stallions, their colts were often without the least trace of zebra characters. In other cases, colts with some degree of striping were produced.

But one mare gave birth to a striped colt as a result of her first mating, which was with a stallion; while two later matings with other stallions, made after she had been successfully mated once and three times respectively with a zebra, gave unstriped offspring.

H. G. Wells

In other cases, when striped colts were born to a mare and stallion after the mare had been previously mated to a zebra Ewart took other mares, closely related to the first, bred them to the same Arabian stallion without having mated them previously with a zebra—and they, too, produced striped foals.

In short, the production of striping in foals (and also of erect mane) is not a very uncommon occurrence in horses; it may appear whether previous impregnation by a zebra has taken place or not.

The stripes of Lord Morton's foals were a mere coincidence, well illustrating the danger of drawing conclusions from single and therefore possibly exceptional cases, and the need for systematic and repeated experiments.

Most of the examples adduced to prove telegony have the same basis as Lord Morton's. They are coincidences, the resemblance of the latter offspring to the first sire being usually due to the emergence of some unsuspected hereditary combinations as the result of second mating.

As a good example, an actual occurrence in poultry deserves citing. A Wyandotte hen was successfully mated to a Leghorn cock. Three months later, on being mated to a cock of her own breed, she produced a number of clutches, in which some of the birds had the single comb of the Leghorn instead of the rose-comb of the Wyandotte.

But single comb is recessive to rose; and we also know that there has been a considerable infusion of single-comb Leghorn blood into many modern strains of Wyandotte; so that the occasional mating of two Wyandottes both carrying the gene for single comb would not be surprising, and would account for all the facts.

One or two cases, however, may have a different explanation. In many animals, the sperm of the male continues active for a considerable time in the genital tract of the female. In bats, for instance, impregnation takes place in the autumn, but the sperm lives on in the female until the following spring before fertilization takes place.

In domestic fowls sperm can continue to fertilize eggs for three weeks after insemination, and in turkeys one impregnation will suffice for a whole summer.

In such circumstances sperm from a previous sire might persist and fertilize an ovum even after a mating with a second mate; but the apparent telegony would then be the result of the ordinary processes of heredity, not of any new or special influence. This explanation, however, will not hold for mammals if pregnancy and birth follow the first mating.

In these ways the phenomena attributed by superstitions to telegony arise. But think how rarely they arise. We must not forget the enormous mass of negative evidence.

In mule-breeding establishments the mares are usually put to horses after three or four impregnations by asses; and yet no trace of ass-characteristics then appears in their offspring.

And in experimental breeding it is the commonest thing to mate an animal of new or unusual type with a number of different mates; yet no cases of telegony have turned up in the laboratory.

The converse, belief in telegony —that a male's subsequent performance will be impaired by a mating with an inferior female— is also held, though by no means so widely or tenaciously.

This idea of "infection of the male" is even less credible than telegony and the evidence in support of it is utterly unconvincing. It is to be hoped that both these beliefs will rapidly die a natural death, as in many ways they hamper the progress of scientific breeding, as well as involve breeders in considerable but unnecessary financial loss.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: The Paris tucked away behind the wide avenues and broad boulevards is the Paris of the true Parisian. In these networks of spidery streets will be found the native cafes with rowdy Rabelaisian names that so vastly amuse the French and have no effect whatever on their appetites.

Here, too, are the diminutive inns with their cigar-box-like offices and complement of five and six rooms. They are as antiquated as they were in the Napoleonic days, but fairly shine from perpetual scouring. They have been run by descendants of the same families for scores and scores of years.

One must step over a lazing mongrel dog asleep in every doorway to get inside. Candles are used for the lights. In one place, gaudily named the Grand Hotel Mont-Valerian, I priced a front room overlooking the street. It was four franc—or 16 cents a day.

The room was one flight up and spotless. The bed comfortable looking and the furnishings included a table, chair and wall mirror. One must go down to the little courtyard in the rear to use the community wash-basin. In such an inn a bath seemed utterly impossible.

I measured the sidewalk width outside—exactly twice and a half the length of my shoes. The street from sidewalk to sidewalk could be crossed in exactly two ordinary steps. The bistros were similarly dwarfed—the bar running about three feet in length—and containing a single and sticky card table.

Each bistro is a rallying point for political hot-heads of the community. After sundown there is always a fierce argument. Taxicabs cannot enter such streets and all deliveries are in narrow two-wheeled carts drawn by single horses. One may dine sumptuously with wine for two francs fifty—a dime.

The French curiosity in the petit rues is marked, and while embarrassing, is not so intended. The well-dressed stranger will find his path blocked by a native who blandly looks him over from head to foot and steps aside. They will even walk up to a table to peer into your glass in the same fashion.

The pen in my hotel room gives me a touch of homesickness. It is exactly like the one we had in the Gallipolis, O., postoffice for so many years.

On pleasant Sundays the malls running down the middle of the streets of Montmartre are dotted with "one-man" circuses. Strong men, jugglers, hand balancers, seedy contortionists and other exhibitionists spread their carpets and give their pathetic shows. Their tights are an amazing tribute to the French art of patching. Each one draws its crowd, but most of them drift—on second thought, they rush—away before the collection.

My wife and I drew up in a taxicab to watch one equilibrist perform on a ladder. He seemed to sense the "foreign atmosphere" in his audience and played almost entirely to us. I dropped five francs in his cap and he held out a handful of sous for me to take change, greatly surprised, too, when I didn't. I was a trifle surprised myself.

* * *

I do not know whether it is anything personal or not but in rue Balagne there is a shop called: "A la lyre McIntyre."

* * *

A certain pawnshop near the Hotel de Ville has closed. It prospered in the flourishing days of the gigolos. In it was pledged jewelry taken from American women in the cabarets.

* * *

In one of the haberdashery shops, a flunkey, following custom, brought the record of former purchases. The salesman looked at it while I pecked over his shoulder. It recorded: "One cravat." He left me and never came back, another salesman taking his place. I fear the poor soul made away with himself.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

A Silent Message

My lips can never quite express
The thoughts my heart would have them say,
Nor can my words' or tenderness
Full measure of my love convey.

Yet, when you are so far from me
Ambitions falter, proud hopes wane;
All else is only vanity
Until I have you back again.

Then when, returned, beside me here
You sit, I find no words to tell
How fair you are, how very dear,
For words would break contentment's spell.

You are life's all to me, and yet
My lips have never told you so;
And strangely, I have no regret,
Because I feel, Dear One, you know!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Somebody is "taking your measure."

You may not realize when you come in contact with certain people that they may take mental notes concerning you.

You are being judged from many standpoints at times when you have no reason to think that you are being appraised.

This fact should make you more careful of your actions, words and deeds.

Your crowd may consider you a pretty good fellow.

But on the strength of your good fellowship has anyone offered you a better position with more money than you make at present?

You may be fortunate in having a valuable place with a going concern.

Perhaps you are well located in an organization you control.

In these cases you may not be offered a job by certain of your friends.

But without good business connections why is it that your friends never give you a chance?

Someone has taken your measure and found your weakness.

Have you ever asked yourself in just what ways you fail to come up to requirements?

You must know you are not making the most desirable impression on those with whom you associate.
